Gray burned papers, lied about his actions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — L. Patrick Gray testified Friday that he read and burned Watergate-related documents with his family's Christmas trash, then lied about his actions —all while he was acting director of the FBI.

"I shall carry the burden of that act with me always," said Gray, remorseful and contrite.

Appearing at the Senate Watergate Committee hearings, Gray said that he burned the documents because senior members of President Nixon's staff left "no doubt" they wanted the material destroyed.

Gray, who asked Nixon to withdraw his nomination to be permanent FBI director April 27 while the Watergate scandal was burgeoning, read a lengthy statement to the committee which immediately adjourned without questioning him. He will return when the hearings move into the final week of their current stage at 9:30 a.m. EDT Monday.

Although he read without faltering, it was clear that the 57-year-old Gray deeply regretted the words he was forced to utter.

He said he had wittingly "permitted myself to be used to perform a mere political chore" in destroying the files removed from the White House safe of E. Howard Hunt, one of the Watergate conspirators. Then, he conceded, he lied when he said that he had destroyed the documents almost immediately —he actually waited six months before burning them in his fireplace.

The documents, some of which Gray said he read before burning them, included an apparently false State Department cable purporting to link the Kennedy administration to the assassination of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Declaring that he believed when he accepted and then destroyed the documents six months later that he was "acting faithfully, loyally, properly and legally," Gray said he had agreed to do it "pursuant to the instructions given me by top assistants to the President of the United States."

And Gray said he warned Nixon on July 6, 1972, that presidential aides were trying to "mortally wound" the President by using the CIA and the FBI in connection with the scandal.

Gray told the committee he received the documents 11 days after the Watergate break-in, put the files into two brown manila envelopes, then took them to his Washington apartment where he tossed them "on a closet shelf under my shirts."

After two or three weeks, he placed them in a safe in his FBI office, and late in September or early in October brought them to his home in Stonington, Conn.

"I distinctly recall that I burned them during Christmas week with the Christmas and household trash paper," Gray said.

Gray and the witness he followed, Deputy CIA Director Vernon A. Walters, both also testified Friday that they collaborated in limiting the scope of the FBI's Watergate investigation under pressure from the White House in the days following the break-in.

Walters said that on June 23, 1972, six days after the Watergate arrests, White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman ordered him to tell Gray that a thorough FBI investigation would uncover CIA secrets. Walters said he obeyed Haldeman until he found there was no truth to the assertion.

In a 51-page statement he read to the senators, Gray said that at the insistence of then White House counsel John W. Dean III, he ordered FBI agents to delay interviewing Manuel Ogarrio, a Mexican lawyer.

Nixon prepares rebuttal

CAMP DAVID, Md. — President Nixon worked alone Friday in the initial preparation of a new statement on the Watergate scandal to be delivered within two weeks. White House officials said Nixon had not yet decided the form of his first Watergate statement since May 22, but sources indicated it would be a point by point rebuttal of Senate testimony that implicated the President in the coverup. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the White House counsel's office, now increased to a staff of 10 lawyers, is preparing documentation for Nixon.

Mitchell trial still on

NEW YORK — A federal judge Friday reserved decision on defense motions to dismiss conspiracy and perjury indictments against former cabinet members John N. Mitchell and Maurice Stans. The judge told a battery of lawyers for the two to "proceed on the view that this case is going to go to trial Sept. 11th."

Senate unit reverses vote

WASHINGTON — Reversing an earlier 59 per cent slash in the Trident missile submarine program, the Senate Armed Services Committee Friday approved a Pentagon weapons procurement bill $1.6 billion below the $22 billion asked by the administration. After the August recess, the $20.4 billion measure goes to debate on the Senate floor, where strong pressure for additional cuts is expected.

Douglas to rule on bombing

YAKIMA, Wash. — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas agreed Friday to decide during the weekend whether to order an immediate halt to American bombing of Cambodia. The white-haired justice listened to an hour of legal arguments and warnings about the consequences of his decision before announcing he would rule by Monday — nine days before the scheduled halt of the bombing. Justice Thurgood Marshall refused to order an immediate cessation Wednesday, saying he lacked legal authority to do so.

Ill-fated jet equipment faulty?

BOSTON — The logbook from the Delta jetliner which crashed and killed 88 persons Tuesday lists three recent complaints from crew members about navigational equipment, the Boston Globe reported Friday. The newspaper said federal investigators confirmed the logbook recorded complaints about navigational equipment on July 25, 26, and 27.

Congress warned on bombing halt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress started a month-long summer vacation Friday but not before President Nixon sent them off with a warning of the "danger potential consequences" of the Aug. 15 Cambodia bombing ban voted earlier by the lawmakers.

Final approval was given to a minimum wage increase, a controversial farm bill and a highway act, among other items, before lawmakers adjourned until Sept. 5 or unless they are called back earlier by their leaders or the President.

The seven senators on the Watergate committee were left behind to continue taking public testimony for at least another week, but the rest of the members scattered quickly for private vacations or government-paid "study tours" abroad.

Nixon's parting shot was dropped at mid-afternoon in a message that said he intended to obey the law and stop the bombing during their absence but that "I would be remiss in my constitutional responsibilities if I did not warn of the hazards that lie in the path chosen by Congress."

"With the passage of the congressional act the incentive to negotiate a settlement in Cambodia has been undermined and Aug. 15 will accelerate this process," said Nixon.

He pledged to Cambodia that "we will continue to provide all possible support permitted under the law," and he had words of warning for North Vietnam in connection with the bombing ban.

"North Vietnam would be making a very dangerous error if it mistook the cessation of bombing in Cambodia for an invitation to fresh aggression or further violations of the Paris Agreements," he said.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, fearful Nixon might pocket veto the minimum wage measure while Congress is out of town, got unanimous consent in the Senate to hold up sending the bill to the White House until after Aug. 24. That way Congress would get a chance at voting to override any veto after that date.

Nixon to obey bombing cut-off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon pledged to Congress Friday that he will obey its mandate to cut off the bombing of Cambodia by Aug. 15, but he warned it amounts to "abandonment of a friend."

Nixon made the promise in a two-page letter to Congress. The Pentagon meanwhile announced that Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger was issuing orders to halt all combat activities in Cambodia at midnight Aug. 14, except for reconnaissance flights.

The President said he placed the blame for the consequences of the bombing cut-off directly on the shoulders of the Congress. And he added a stern warning that North Vietnam should not interpret the bombing halt as "an invitation to fresh aggression or further violations of the Paris (cease-fire) agreement."

"The Congress has expressed its will in the form of law and the administration will obey that law," Nixon said. "I cannot do so, however, without stating my grave personal reservations concerning the dangerous potential consequences of this measure.

"This abandonment of a friend will have a profound impact in other countries, such as Thailand, which have relied on the constancy and determination of the United States.

He said "this administration will do everything permitted by congressional action to achieve a lasting peace in Indochina"

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate has appropriated $5 million less than the House in reprogrammed funds to the National Park Service to accelerate land acquisition in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-10, a member of the conference committee which must resolve the differences in the House and Senate bills, said Friday he hopes the entire $10 million earmarked by the House will be included in the final bill.

McDade said he "deeply regrets the action of the Senate in deleting funds for land acquisition. We need the additional impetus the $10 million would give to the land acquisition program to remove the threat of condemnation facing many homeowners and complete the development of the park."

McDade also pointed out that the Senate deleted $700,000 for environmental improvement activities of the U.S. Bureau of Mines in northeastern Pennsylvania which the House had approved.

Stennis vows full CIA probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., almost completely recovered from gunshot wounds he suffered in January, said Friday he will conduct hearings on the CIA this fall and propose new controls to prohibit "false face" agency operations within the United States.

After the hearings and intensive study, Stennis said, he may find that only a few changes are needed in the Central Intelligency Agency. He said he is "no reformer," but wants the agency to be effective in what Congress created it to do.

"I would fix it clearly where they couldn't get off into this false face stuff and crowbars and burglary tools and all, operating in the United States," said Stennis, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Stennis was referring to testimony before the Senate Watergate committee that the CIA unwittingly provided paraphernalia used by White House undercover agents in the break-in and attempted burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office in September, 1971.

In his first news conference since he was gunned down by robbers in front of his northwest Washington home Jan. 30, Stennis —who observed his 72nd birthday Friday —said he intends to conduct the CIA hearings himself

Looking fit despite a loss of weight, Stennis said he plans to return to the Capitol for a limited work schedule when Congress returns after Labor Day from its August recess.

Skylab ferry gets confidence vote

HOUSTON (UPI) — The space agency's project director said Friday he had gained confidence in Skylab 2's Apollo ferry ship, but the Florida launch team pushed preparations of a recue rocket in case it is needed to bring the astronauts home.

The emergency atmosphere, however, was over and astronauts Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma went ahead with their 59-day mission by beginning valuable earth resources photography.

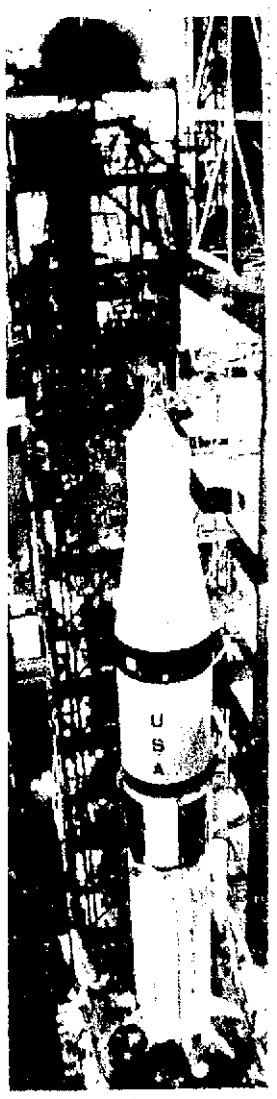

Project director William C. Schneider said ground tests in Apollo trainers by other astronauts showed that the space station crew has three backup ways to return to earth if necessary in the Apollo, crippled by failure of two control rockets.

"Therefore, we're feeling considerably better than perhaps we had yesterday," Schneider said in a briefing. "Our simulations have gone surprisingly good. We find we have a very versatile vehicle."

However, the big question left open was how and when the three astronauts would return to earth?

Schneider listed the options this way: they could come back in the five-seat rescue ship launched Sept. 10; they could ride the rescue craft back on their normal Sept. 25 return date; or they could fly their own Apollo back, making the rescue launch unnecessary.

Schneider also said Bean, Garriott and Lousma will attempt their oft-delayed first spacewalk Monday at 11 a.m. EDT.

More slaughterhouses close

Big beef squeeze tightens

The big beef pinch tightened Friday as more slaughterhouses shut down. Midnight hunters hungry for red meat were reported poaching deer, and a housewive's organization called for a one-day boycott on food buying.

Meat market shelves around the country offered less and less varieties of beef—or none at all. Some of the nation's big food chains were reported switching to an expensive "custom slaughter" system—buying their own cattle and hiring processors to cut it up—to keep beef in their meat cases.

Some Ohioans were resorting to the law of nature by poaching deer at record rates, reported Dale Roach, chief of the Division of Wildlife of the Natural Resources Department.

"The people we are catching say they need the deer for food," said Roach, "and this is the first time we have run into that kind of situation."

The beef battle between cattlemen demanding an immediate lifting of the retail price lid and the government which adamantly refuses to budge from the Sept. 12 free price date heated up as more and more organizations got into the act.

The American consumer was caught in the middle, with housewives trying to balance a food budget by substituting high priced lamb, pork and chicken for vanishing beef.

Almost lost in the beef controversy was the fact that staples such as bread, chicken, eggs and milk have shot up in many parts of the country.

In Los Angeles, for example, a dozen grade AA eggs Friday cost 89 cents, as compared with 63 cents Aug. 18, the day Phase IV went into effect.

In New York an uncut chicken sold for 89 cents a pound—a rise of 30 cents in 16 days. In Washington a loaf of bread had jumped 5 cents.

New farm bill urges production

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With an advance promise of presidential approval, Congress passed and sent to the White House Friday a comprehensive new farm and food stamp bill aimed at encouraging farmers to increase production.

Democratic farm bloc leaders in the House cleared the way for final congressional action on the bill by outmaneuvering conservatives, including Republican Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, who wanted to attach a ban on food stamps for strikers

Under House rules for the measure, only one amendment was permitted, so Democrats tacked on a minor proviso urging all-out farm production when food supplies are short and passed the bill on a 252-151 vote.

Minutes later, the Senate shouted its approval and sent the compromise to President Nixon for his signature.

The four-year measure, which replaces the existing farm price support structure at the end of the 1973 crop season, features a new "target price" support plan for grains and cotton and a reduction in the present $55,000 per crop ceiling on subsidies for big farming operations to $20,000 per farmer.

It also empowers Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to order increases in controlled prices of most foods, including beef, and gives needy families receiving food stamps a cost-of-living increase of at least $8 a month next January.

Under the target price plan, growers would be guaranteed government grain and cotton subsidy payments if market prices slip below target levels.

The bill's supporters said this means growers can step up production next season without fear of an income collapse.

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate has appropriated $5 million less than the House in reprogrammed funds to the National Park Service to accelerate land acquisition in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area.

Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-10, a member of the conference committee which must resolve the differences in the House and Senate bills, said Friday he hopes the entire $10 million earmarked by the House will be included in the final bill.

McDade said he "deeply regrets the action of the Senate in deleting funds for land acquisition. We need the additional impetus the $10 million would give to the land acquisition program to remove the threat of condemnation facing many homeowners and complete the development of the park."

McDade also pointed out that the Senate deleted $700,000 for environmental improvement activities of the U.S. Bureau of Mines in northeastern Pennsylvania which the House had approved.

Stennis vows full CIA probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., almost completely recovered from gunshot wounds he suffered in January, said Friday he will conduct hearings on the CIA this fall and propose new controls to prohibit "false face" agency operations within the United States.

After the hearings and intensive study, Stennis said, he may find that only a few changes are needed in the Central Intelligency Agency. He said he is "no reformer," but wants the agency to be effective in what Congress created it to do.

In his first news conference since he was gunned down by robbers in front of his northwest Washington home Jan. 30, Stennis —who observed his 72nd birthday Friday —said he intends to conduct the CIA hearings himself

Looking fit despite a loss of weight, Stennis said he plans to return to the Capitol for a limited work schedule when Congress returns after Labor Day from its August recess.

Skylab ferry gets confidence vote

HOUSTON (UPI) — The space agency's project director said Friday he had gained confidence in Skylab 2's Apollo ferry ship, but the Florida launch team pushed preparations of a recue rocket in case it is needed to bring the astronauts home.

The emergency atmosphere, however, was over and astronauts Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma went ahead with their 59-day mission by beginning valuable earth resources photography.

"Therefore, we're feeling considerably better than perhaps we had yesterday," Schneider said in a briefing. "Our simulations have gone surprisingly good. We find we have a very versatile vehicle."

However, the big question left open was how and when the three astronauts would return to earth?

Schneider listed the options this way: they could come back in the five-seat rescue ship launched Sept. 10; they could ride the rescue craft back on their normal Sept. 25 return date; or they could fly their own Apollo back, making the rescue launch unnecessary.

Schneider also said Bean, Garriott and Lousma will attempt their oft-delayed first spacewalk Monday at 11 a.m. EDT.

Court rule releases mental health fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge ordered the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) Friday to release more than $52 million in impounded funds intended to establish community mental health centers, declaring the impoundment unconstitutional.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell dealt with funds impounded last February and was the third time in two weeks that an administration impoundment policy was declared illegal.

The judge ordered HEW to begin accepting and processing applications for mental health funds which go toward staffing and developing community mental health centers and to construct such centers specifically designed for children.

Gesell refused to delay implementation of the order to give government attorneys time to appeal the decision. There was no immediate indiction whether the decision will be appealed.

In the past two weeks federal judges also found impoundments of housing funds to be illegal and ordered that applications for those grants be processed.

Community mental health centers are intended to provide good local alternatives to large state institutions. The National Association for Mental Health has a goal of about 1,500 such centers by 1980. Funds have been provided so far for 515, but the administration wants to phase out funding for new facilities.

Legislation passed overwhelmingly by both the House and Senate and signed into law by President Nixon June 19 ensures the continuation of community mental health centers for one year.

In unusually strong language, Gesell criticized the administration's efforts to impound funds and to defend the action by claiming the President has "political" discretion not to spend congressionally appropriated money.

"It is time this litany was displaced by a modicum of common sense," the judge said.

Highway trust finally opened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Friday gave final congressional approval and sent to President Nixon for his signature a bill allowing highway trust fund money to be spent for the first time on subways.

The measure authorizes nearly $20 billion worth of expenditures over the next three years from the highway trust fund, which collects $6 billion to $7 billion a year through federal taxes on gasoline, tires and trucks. President Nixon promised earlier this week he would sign the bill.

Although the measure pleased almost no one in Congress, it nevertheless sailed through the House by a 382-34 vote.

The fund, which was started in 1957 to finance the nearly complete interstate highway system, previously has been guarded from raids for non-highway purposes.

The compromise conference report, worked out over more than two months, protects the fund from non-highway expenditures in the first year. But it would allow $200 million to be spent on buses in the second year and free the $800 million urban portion to be spent on fixed rail systems such as subways in the third year.

New York hotel collapses; 6 hurt

NEW YORK (UPI) — An eight-story residential hotel near Greenwich Village collapsed with the roar of an explosion Friday afternoon, leaving a 30-foot high mound of rubble on lower Broadway.

At least six persons, including two policemen, were injured in the collapse of the 100-year-old University Hotel. Two hours after the collapse, police said they had not yet accounted for 15 residents of the hotel who might have been in their rooms at the time of the accident.

Fire officials said they feared passersby might be trapped in the sidewalk rubble.

"I heard a cry of distress," said Glen Warner, 55, a longme resident of the hotel. "...(I) opened my door and saw seven floors of nothing."

Leroy Z. Ambrose, 47, a resident of the hotel for eight months, said, "I just heard a rumble and the walls started coming in."

About 60 per cent of the hotel's residents were welfare recipients for whom the city had been unable to find apartments. Many of the residents were elderly.

The 400-room building, formerly known as the Broadway Central Hotel, was being renovated at the time of the collapse. It was one of the oldest hotels in the city.

Nixon proposes changing finances to lift dollar flow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Friday proposed sweeping changes in the nation's financial structure to provide lower-cost services, a maximum of mortgage money for homes and higher returns on savings accounts.

The proposals, outlined in a message to Congress, would cut through the maze of laws governing different types of financial institutions and put them on a more even footing.

They would permit savings and loan institutions, for instance, to handle checking accounts and would eliminate ceilings on the amount savings institutions can pay on deposit interest. A tax credit also would be provided as an incentive to encourage lending institutions to invest more heavily in residential mortgages.

At the same time, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., announced in a House speech that his House Banking and Cufrency Committee will propose legislation this fall to stabilize the rising interest rates.

And Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, warned the Joint Economic Committee of Congress that if current restrictive monetary policies do not soon ease money and credit supplies, "further measures will be adopted as needed."

In his message, Nixon said: "Interest rate ceilings proved harmful to Americans both as savers and borrowers in the late 1960s."

Because the interest rate ceilings on deposits were often below market interest rates, small savers who depended on banks and other savings institutions were denied a fair rate of return on their money.

Cambodian rebels close in on capital

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A large force of Cambodian insurgents advancing rapidly along Highway 1 moved to within three miles of Phnom Penh's city limits Friday despite heavy attacks by American warplanes and bitter ground fighting.

Government troops threw up blockades along the highway one-half mile from the capital and 2.5 miles behind the front line on the southeastern fringe of the city.

Many refugees fleeing the sudden, rapid rebel advance were caught in cross-fire between the two sides Friday and were wounded. Some were carried into the city by relatives and friends, and others were left lying where they fell.

A rebel force of an estimated 2,000 men launched the offensive up Highway 1 on Wednesday from a position about 18 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. The force advanced six miles Thursday to the village of Koki, 12 miles from the capital, and it moved forward another nine miles Friday.

As the insurgents advanced toward the city from outside its boundaries, police seeking rebel infiltrators inside the capital discovered a large cache of rockets and small arms hidden in the cellar of a house in the city center.

Delaware bill filed

Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-10, Friday co-sponsored a bill to include a 75-mile stretch of the upper Delaware River in the National Wild and Scenic River System.

Inclusion of the upper Delaware in the system would make it the first river in the northeast United States to receive such federal protection, the congressman said.

The Wild and Scenic Rivers Act was enacted in 1968 in order to federally preserve and protect certain outstanding rivers.

It would permit the National Park Service to insure proper federal management and development of the river and its recreational potential, and preserve the Delaware from industrialization, pollution, and unregulated land development, McDade noted.

The 75-mile stretch of the river designated by the congressman flows between Matamoras, Pa. and Hancock, N.Y.

$93 million in raises

State workers having good year

HARRISBURG (UPI) — This is proving to be a banner year for Pennsylvania's state employes represented by labor unions.

So far in 1973, the three major unions that represent approximately 84,300 state employes have won wage and fringe benefit increases worth $93 million over the next two years.

The wage increases negotiated in the contracts generally average out to the federal 5.5 per cent limit, but the fringe benefit increases have been, as one labor leader put it, "generous."

The state and the American Federation of State County and Municipal Employes managed to agree on a contract without a strike.

The contract—with a $76 million price tag over two years—calls for wage increases of 26 cents per hour over the first two years and a wage reopener in the third.

As far as fringe benefits go, the 72,000 employes covered by the contract will receive fully paid Blue Cross and Blue Shield, partial payment of prescription drugs, two extra paid personal leave days, shift differential and more job protection.

The 9,500 workers represented by the Social Services Union won substantially the same contract, but they had to call a two-day strike to get it. The price tag is $12.9 million over two years.

The only difference between the two is that the members will get an additional two cents an hour as a "bonus" for the next two years only.

Christ Zervanos, director of labor relations for the state, said contracts with seven other state employe unions representing 5,200 workers still have to be negotiated. They are:

—2,600 members of the Pennsylvania Nurses' Association. Most of them are nurses working at state hospitals and mental institutions.

—750 physicians belonging to the Association of State Mental Hospital Physicians.

—300 professional educators in the Department of Education who belong to the Pennsylvania Federation of Teachers (PFT).

Justice reopens Kent State probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying there were "several facts missing" from its original investigation, the Justice Department began a new inquiry Friday into the fatal shooting of four Kent State University students by National Guardsmen during nationwide antiwar protests in 1970.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson announced he had instructed J. Stanley Pottinger, assistant attorney general in charge of the civil rights division, to conduct the renewed investigation as a result of month-long preliminary study made by Pottinger.

At a news conference, Pottinger said he had uncovered some new evidence and that in reviewing the record of the case, "we think there were several facts missing."

He refused to give any details, but said the new inquiry could lead to a federal grand jury investigation, which then Attorney General John N. Mitchell declared in August, 1971, was unwarranted.

Kent State President Glenn A. Olds, reached on vacation in Greensboro, Vt., said he welcomed Richardson's decision as "the wisest step to take."

The shootings occurred May 4, 1970, when Guardsmen were called to the Ohio campus to quell a student demonstration against President Nixon's decision to send troops into Cambodia. A state grand jury returned no indictments against the guardsmen.

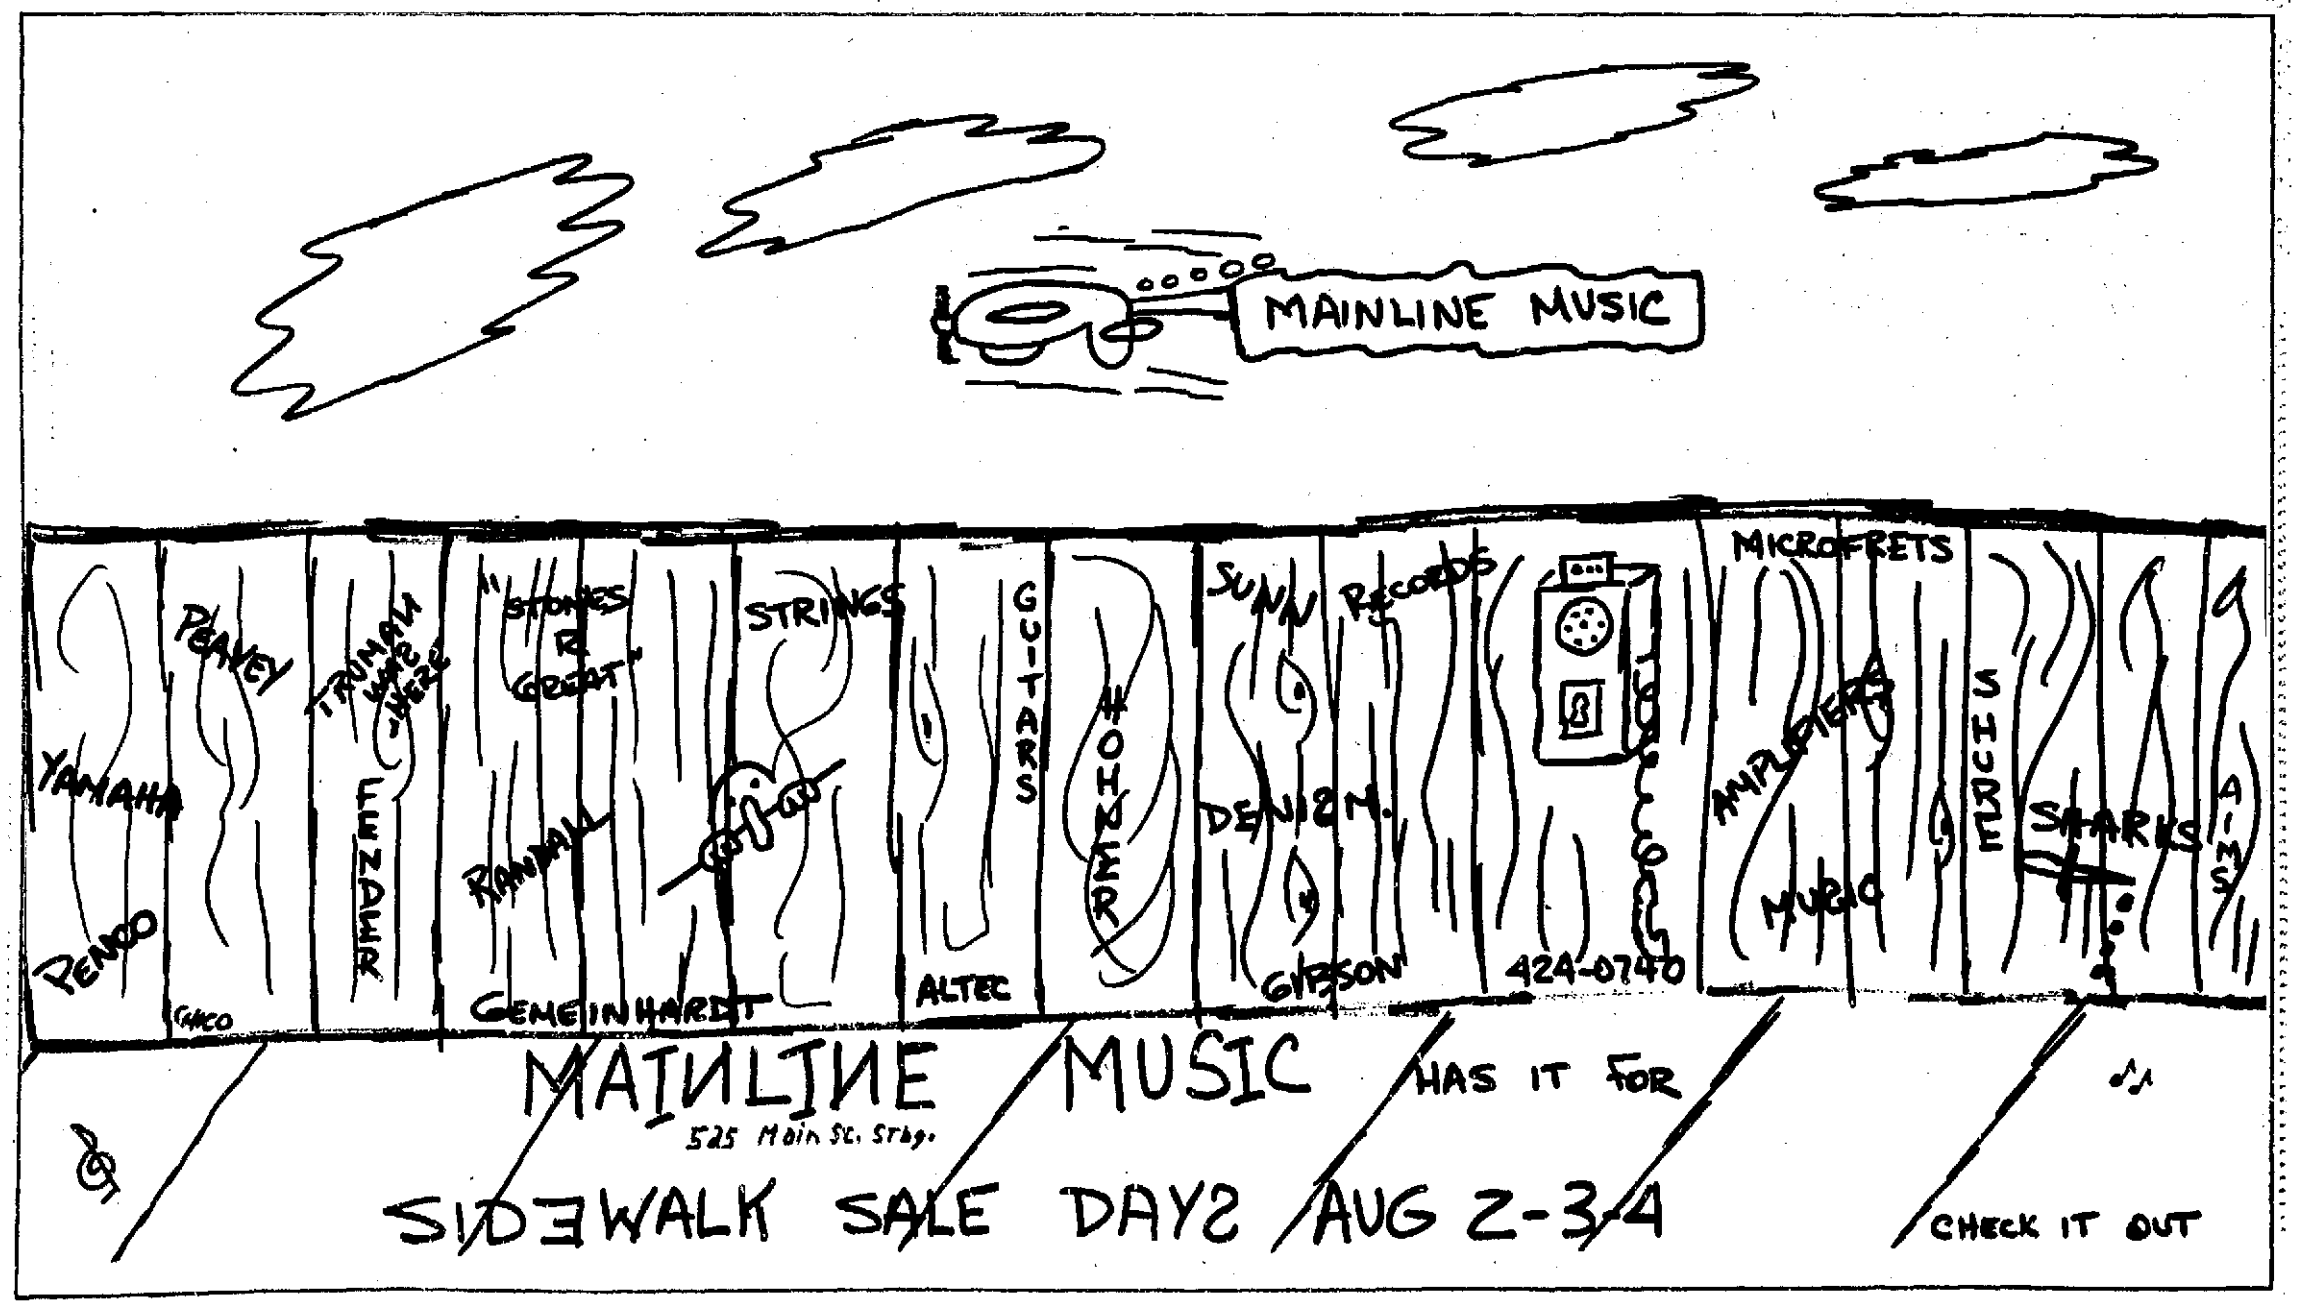

Parents of the victims have been pressing for three years for a federal grand jury investigation of the case, charging that some of the facts were covered up. They were turned down as recently as last June.

Jobless rate dips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment fell from 4.8 per cent to 4.7 per cent of the labor force in July, the lowest rate in more than three years, the government reported Friday.

The Labor Department, however, said the decline was statistically insignificant, with total employment holding steady at 84.6 million persons and the number of jobless workers showing little change at 4.2 millions.

Food industry spokesmen increased their pressure on the administration to lift beef price ceilings by predicting widespread unemployment in the meat industry and restaurants closings because of the growing beef shortage.

Court rule releases mental health fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge ordered the Health, Education and Welfare Department (HEW) Friday to release more than $52 million in impounded funds intended to establish community mental health centers, declaring the impoundment unconstitutional.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell dealt with funds impounded last February and was the third time in two weeks that an administration impoundment policy was declared illegal.

The judge ordered HEW to begin accepting and processing applications for mental health funds which go toward staffing and developing community mental health centers and to construct such centers specifically designed for children.

Gesell refused to delay implementation of the order to give government attorneys time to appeal the decision. There was no immediate indiction whether the decision will be appealed.

In the past two weeks federal judges also found impoundments of housing funds to be illegal and ordered that applications for those grants be processed.

Community mental health centers are intended to provide good local alternatives to large state institutions. The National Association for Mental Health has a goal of about 1,500 such centers by 1980. Funds have been provided so far for 515, but the administration wants to phase out funding for new facilities.

Legislation passed overwhelmingly by both the House and Senate and signed into law by President Nixon June 19 ensures the continuation of community mental health centers for one year.

In unusually strong language, Gesell criticized the administration's efforts to impound funds and to defend the action by claiming the President has "political" discretion not to spend congressionally appropriated money.

"It is time this litany was displaced by a modicum of common sense," the judge said.

Fire company's new home may be in airplane hanger

By LORA SHARPE
Pocono Record Reporter

MATAMORAS — The Matamoras Volunteer Fire Dept. may find a new home in an airplane hangar.

They are negotiating with the borough's recreation committee for use of the hangar at Airport Park, the borough's version of Coney Island, as a new firehouse.

Needless to say, the hangar will need considerable renovation before the firefighters can house their equipment in the structure.

Officials estimate the cost of renovation will be $25,000.

Right now, recreation committee members and firemen are haggling over the portion of the bill each will pay. The cost of utilities is also an item.

Matamoras' fire department meanwhile, is in desperate need of a new fire house, according to Chief Frank Josd. The brick structure that now houses the volunteers is filled to capacity, Josd said.

And recreation committee members are well aware of the firemen's plight.

"They'd like to move in right now if they could," said Mayor Joseph Ricciardi.

The issue at hand, however, is one that causes all boroughs pause — money and how much the borough government can afford to help its firemen.

Although present proposals for the hangar's renovation call for an equal division of expenses, neither party is willing yet to make a firm commitment to provide $12,500.

The borough is now making money from the hangar by renting it to a California-based electronics company for a yearly rate of $3500. The company is using the 100 by 100-foot building chiefly for storage.

The borough has already put a leanto-like addition on the building which serves as a borough shed. A large portion is devoted to recycling storage.

Construction is continuing at Airport Park, which is slowly evolving into an expansive community recreation area. A water line and comfort facilities were completed in July.

The borough is preparing for its annual clambake at the park on Aug. 26.

White House stew

By NORMAN LEHDE

The following conversation was overheard in the village the other day.

"I suppose you heard that someone broke into my uncle's restaurant the other night?"

"I always told you he was foolish to leave money in the cash register."

"Oh, they didn't bother the cash register. They just looked in the refrigerator for meat."

"Is he finding it difficult to keep the business going with food prices so high?"

"Yes, about all he served last week was a White House stew."

"What the devil is that?"

"Oh, he won't reveal the contents but he maintains that it is in the national interest."

"Why would anybody believe that?"

"I don't know, he claims he got the idea from watching the Watergate hearings."

"If he goes out of business he can always sell the building as somebody will buy it for the land that its on."

"You know that is really happening around Milford these days!"

"You better believe it. After my brother, who lives out in the township, decided that unless his chickens started to lay golden eggs, he couldn't afford to feed them, he started to take the coop down."

"What happened?"

"Two developers drove up and asked him if he would sell the land the coop was on. He thought it was funny and asked them what they would do with all that property."

"They told him they would probably subdivide it."

"Don't those people ever think about keeping anything green?"

"Oh yes, all the time."

"How can you say that?"

"It's the color of money, isn't it?"

Magistrate puts 'heat' on county for help in office

Record County Bureau

HAWLEY — A sweat box might be the most apt description of District Magistrate Dore N. James' Hawley office.

Mrs. James has sent a list of temperature readings to the Pike County Commissioners in appeal for some relief.

Temperatures in the 12 by 36 foot building reached an almost unbearable 90 degrees at 3 p.m. July 20th, Mrs. James reported. They began at only a somewhat less bearable 86 degrees at noon, she wrote.

In fact, only once, on July 23, in the span tested did the temperature dip below 80 degrees. And then it was only 76 degrees in the office at noon and the mercury jumped 10 degrees by 2 p.m.

Mrs. James wrote that "needless to say, the troopers (in for hearings) complain about the condition, as well as myself. Working is very difficult under these conditions, at times almost impossible."

Faced with such a plea, county commissioners felt they could do nothing else but look into air conditioning for the building.

"What else can we do?" laughed George E. Coutts, commission chairman. "I'll check with companies in the area about an air conditioner."

"You better believe it. After my brother, who lives out in the township, decided that unless his chickens started to lay golden eggs, he couldn't afford to feed them, he started to take the coop down."

"What happened?"

"Two developers drove up and asked him if he would sell the land the coop was on. He thought it was funny and asked them what they would do with all that property."

"They told him they would probably subdivide it."

"Don't those people ever think about keeping anything green?"

"Oh yes, all the time."

"How can you say that?"

"It's the color of money, isn't it?"

Record County Bureau

HAWLEY — A sweat box might be the most apt description of District Magistrate Dore N. James' Hawley office.

Mrs. James has sent a list of temperature readings to the Pike County Commissioners in appeal for some relief.

Temperatures in the 12 by 36 foot building reached an almost unbearable 90 degrees at 3 p.m. July 20th, Mrs. James reported. They began at only a somewhat less bearable 86 degrees at noon, she wrote.

In fact, only once, on July 23, in the span tested did the temperature dip below 80 degrees. And then it was only 76 degrees in the office at noon and the mercury jumped 10 degrees by 2 p.m.

Mrs. James wrote that "needless to say, the troopers (in for hearings) complain about the condition, as well as myself. Working is very difficult under these conditions, at times almost impossible."

Faced with such a plea, county commissioners felt they could do nothing else but look into air conditioning for the building.

"What else can we do?" laughed George E. Coutts, commission chairman. "I'll check with companies in the area about an air conditioner."

News is bad everywhere

One of our staff members sat leafing gloomily through the day's crop of news dispatches the other day, shook his head and sighed, "When are we going to get some good news?"

There certainly hasn't been much good news around lately. Watergate continues to bombard our sensitivities with hideous tales of official arrogance, furtiveness and corruption. Prices keep going up, beef is in short supply and may disappear altogether, everyone from stock analysts to George Meany is predicting a severe recession.

Things aren't much better on the local scene, either. Harrisburg has its own version of Watergate (those State Police wiretaps, remember?) and scandal is rife in the Liquor Control Board. Official boondoggling threatens to sabotage a 1974 assault on the gypsy moth and Department of Environmental Resources regulations plus local inaction have precipitated a strike of liquid waste haulers (septic tank cleaners, if you prefer).

Even the astronauts are in on the act, having troubles enough with their space ferry to probably need a lift home — history's first space rescue.

Our friend on the copy desk had part of answer. "Well," he said, "I guess it's the price we have to pay. . ." But then he stopped, because he didn't know for what. We could suggest for having had things too easy for too many years.

When things go well, we tend not to question anything, fearful of rocking the boat. And that allows some shabby thinking and rationalizing to become hardened into official attitude.

And then, when things take a turn for the worse, when the inevitable result of immoral and amoral thinking comes calling, the news is all bad.

We could sermonize quite a bit on this subject, but we'll leave that to fire-and-brimstone preachers. We'll satisfy ourselves with echoing our friend's wish for some good news for a change.

Mall going well

Today is the final day of the great mall experiment.

Even though the clouds opened up the faucets Thursday, opening day must be called a success. Most merchants were pleased with the concept. Those who weren't had been against the experiment in the first place, but it will be interesting to see how many converts were made.

Shoppers, wayward pedestrians and the merely curious seemed to enjoy the idea, too. Including one old-timer who carefully placed his shopping bag in the middle of Main Street and danced a happy jig to the tunes of a rock band entertaining the public.

Old habits are hard to break, though, and most people ignored the wide open spaces of the mall and kept to the hot, damp, crowded sidewalks on opening day. They loosened up considerably Friday, and seemed to revel in the casual way they could cross a street that usually is an obstacle course to pedestrians.

We do ask shoppers to take the minute or two to fill out the questionnaires supplied by the Stroudsburg Businessmen's Assn. It will be valuable in analyzing the experiment, and buttress arguments for a permanent mall. It's a small thing that provides some real direction for the borough's downtown development.

No time for butterflies

The other day a member of the Women's Liberation coterie came upon a member of the fair sex who had raised nine children on a midwestern farm, fed them, her husband, and the farm hands, done all her own housework and helped with the outdoor chores. And she was happy and had never been ill one day in her life.

Ms. Women's Lib was aghast. She declared that she knew plenty of women who had only one or two children and a house full of gadgets to lighten work, but who suffered from nervous exhaustion or psychosomatic aches and pains.

"How is it that you managed never to have a serious breakdown?" she asked.

"You know," replied the lady of the farm, "I've always wanted to have a nervous breakdown. But every time I was about to get around to it, it was time to fix somebody a meal."

Change of venue

A woman came into a police station to report her husband missing and described him as "30-years-old, 6-feet 3-inches tall, dark and handsome."

"I know your husband," said the desk sergeant. "He's bald, fat and forty."

"I'm well aware of that," replied the wife, "but who wants him back?"

Secret bombing in Florida

WASHINGTON — The Navy bombed and burned more than 1,200 acres of the Ocala national Forest in Flordia and then, Cambodia-style, falsified the reports.

Despite the disastrous fires, the Navy continued to explode live bombs in a preserve which the U.S. Forest Service describes as the biggest recreation attraction of any national forest in the East.

A confidential General Accounting Office field investigation found that, during March 1972, the Navy dropped 421 live 500-pound bombs on its Pinecastle test range in the Ocala forest.

On March 25, a hail of 56 bombs ignited a fire that burned 600 acres of the national forest. Two days later, 24 more bombs started another fire which spread from the testing grounds into the park, destroying 620 additional acres.

The Navy claimed in its environmental report that "permission was granted by the appropriate officials as the fire potential index was not at a level sufficiently high to halt operations."

This is disputed by the GAO, which found the fire potential index wasn't developed until after the March fires.

Again, the Navy's May 1973 environmental impact statement claimed that, "after the fires, the use of live ordnance was discontinued." On the contrary the GAO will charge that 655 live 500-pound bombs and 242 250-pound bombs were dropped on the test range between April 1972 and May 1973.

In Jacksonville, Fla., Navy Capt. E. W. Ingley confirmed to us that live ordnance "certainly" was used but insisted that it amounted to no more than "two or three per cent of the total practice ordnance." He also stressed that the Navy takes "elaborate safety precautions" when using live ordnance. "Naval aviation is national security," he added.

As late as last month, however, Rep. Bill Gunter, D-Fla., protested that bomb drops on July 18 had "needlessly frightened 250 youngsters at one children's camp in the forest."

The freshman from Florida called for the GAO probe after he had a personal experience with the falling bombs. While he was delivering a speech in the Eustis Civic Center near the forest, the building began to shake from the shock waves of the exploding bombs.

TAPES STALEMENT? Sources close to the Supreme Court suggest that the vote on the controversial White House tapes could end in a tie. Justice William Rehnquist, whose vote might break the tie, may have to disqualify himself, they say.

The Supreme Court is expected to rule, in the end, on whether President Nixon must surrender his secret White House tapes to Special Prosecutor Archibal Cox and the Senate Watergate Committee. The case is now awaiting action in the lower courts.

Rehnquist's law clerk, Robert Wild, conceded to us that "there definitely will be a question" whether the justice should participate in the decision. "He hasn't said a word about it," said Wild. "I'm not sure whether he's even looked into it, so there's no decision one way or the other."

The aide stressed it would be "a personal decision." Rehnquist would have to consider his past national security activities as a Justice Department official and his close association with key figures involved in the case.

During his Senate confirmation hearings, he said: "My client, in my position as the assistant attorney general for the Office of the Legal Counsel, is the attorney general and the President."

Supreme Court sources say the case of the White House tapes involved not only eavesdropping but executive privilege. Rehnquist worked on both questions while he was at the Justice Department.

Indeed, he assured the Senate that he would likely disqualify himself on a case involving national security wiretapping.

VESCO'S YACHT: Robert Vesco, the international financier indicted with former Attorney General John Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans in a swindle and coverup case, is now a fugitive from the F-BI. But U.S. Customs agents have cut off one means of flight by seizing his fabulous yacht, the Patricia III, formerly the Romantica, in a Miami boatyard.

Vesco was not aboard when the customs men struck, but the yacht is being held until the United States can decide whether Vesco owes customs duties on the English-built craft.

Nor is this the first time Vesco has had trouble with yachts. In June, we reported how his yacht sliced the anchor cable of another vessel, then sailed off to the Bahamas with Vesco calling: "You know my address. Send me the bill."

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Champion

In Latin, the Romans' language, a battlefield was called a "campus," a word meaning field or plain, because that was where battles were fought. A fighting man was called a "campion" — a man of the battlefield.

"Campion" became "champion" in Old French and in English, and acquired a broader meaning — one who fought for someone or some cause, on the battlefield or in an arena.

Tournaments among fighting men were held frequently during the Middle Ages. Through the process of elimination one man emerged unbeaten. This led to the present meaning of "champion" — one who wins first prize in a competition.

Piano

The piano, invented early in the 18th Century, was an improvement on the harpsichord.

The keys on the harpsichord activated quills that plucked strings, producing notes of the same intensity. An instrument that would produce soft and loud notes was needed for concert music.

Bartellommeo Cristoforl, an Italian, invented such an instrument. Its strings were struck by small hammers activated by a keyboard.

Cristoforl called the instrument "piano e forte," which in Italian means soft and loud. The name was contracted to "pianoforte" and later to "piano."

Faking Marilyn

In recent weeks I have drawn attention several times to the peculiar appetite that seems to exist for pseudo-history.

For example, we now have on the way a big-budget movie based on the theory that John F. Kennedy was assassinated by retired generals, Texas oilmen, and other assorted right-wingers—despite the public availability of evidence to the contrary. Julius and Ethel Rosenberg have been the beneficiaries of posthumous fictitious rehabilitation. A current academic study demonstrates how seemingly respectable historians consciously faked the evidence in order to transfer responsibility for the Cold War from Joseph Stalin to President Harry Truman.

Though William James noted the existence of a "will to believe," all of this strikes me as going rather far.

The latest specimen is especially weird. In his new book on Marilyn Monroe, Norman Mailer perpetrates any number of intellectual frauds, which the reviewers have not hesitated to point out, but he saves the biggest for the end, and it's a beaut.

Murdered by right-wingers

According to Mailer, Marilyn Monroe did not, as generally believed, commit suicide. No, she was murdered. I probably don't have to tell you who dunnit. But I will. She was murdered by right-wingers.

Mailer makes his case indirectly, using rhetorical questions, rather in the manner of a fellow hawking pornographic post cards, but the theory he floats is that she was murdered as a way of getting at Robert F. Kennedy, who was widely believed to be having an affair with her.

"For who is the first to be certain it was of no interest to the CIA, or to the FBI, or to the Mafia, and half the secret police of the world, that the brother of the President was reputed to be having an affair with a movie star . . . By the end, political stakes were riding on her life, and even more on her death. If she could be murdered in such a way as to appear a suicide in despair at the turn of her love, what a point of pressure could be maintained afterward against the Kennedys."

To be sure, absolutely no evidence exists to support such a hypothesis, as Mailer admits. This is the way he puts it: "There seems next to nothing of such evidence." Right there, to be sure, is a telltale lie. There is not "next to nothing" to support his case. There is nothing.

But having floated his theory, Mailer goes on to develop and extend it. "Yet if we are to grant her this much effect upon the development of one American hero"— Bobby Kennedy — "why not assume even more and see her death as the seed of assassinations to follow." Oh? The "seed of assassinations to follow"? There we have the full-blown fantasy. Not only was Marilyn Monroe murdered by right-wingers, but all the other assassination victims of the 1960s were too. The political Right bumped off John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, and, who knows, probably Lin Piao too, and most recently made the attempt on Gov. George Wallace. You can forget about Oswald, Sirhan and the other alleged killers.

Curiously, Mailer feels obliged to deny the rumor of a Kennedy-Monroe affair, though at least some evidence exists to support it.

Praises medical care

Editor, The Record:

I wonder how many local residents realize the high quality of medical care available to them in this area? The range of medical specialties practiced by the staff at our hospital is very complete.

During a recent hospitalization for a back injury, part of the treatment required a special X-ray procedure done by Dr. Stanley Rosenblatt, radiologist.

I wish to openly praise Dr. Rosenblatt on his ability to allay my apprehensions about the X-ray and his competence in performing the procedure.

Too often doctors are forgotten when it comes time to say thank you.

To you, Dr. Rosenblatt, I sincerely thank you for your concern and attention.

Where's traffic control?

Editor, The Record:

As I turned right at Gap View Drive onto Rt. 209, driving along at 45 miles per hour, a truck dashed up and tailgated me, so that I could not slow down to turn right at the gift shop.

I was forced to rush onward to Mosier's Dairy as that truck shot past. It must have been doing 60 miles an hour-plus on that narrow "No Passing" section of 209.

Are there no police to stop this? I am now afraid to go on that road again. So are my neighbors, all of whom are law-abiding drivers.

'Jesus Movement'

Corruption by religion?

By RUSSELL KIRK

The "Jesus Movement" among young people has not faded away as yet. Although some manifestations of it may be silly or shallow, in general I am heartened by this renewal of the religious impulse.

But in our time, as in every age, false prophets do terrible mischief. Within the "Jesus Movement" are sects whose fanaticism or charlatanry works the death of spirit.

At a recent convention in Denmark of "Jesus Movement" groups, the leadership excluded from participation the organization called Children of God, or COG, which still has about 2,000 members scattered throughout the world. The genuine Jesus People had ample reason for declaring COG anathema.

COG is directed by a certain David Berg, who calls himself "Moses" and claims divind inspiration. Berg now lives secluded in London, though in recent months he has been seen on the Riviera, in company with female disciples. He publishes "Mo Letters" that sufficiently set forth his strange doctrines. The Mo Letters, incidentally, are spattered with obscene words and drawings.

Many parents write to me of how their children have been seduced away from them by COG. The rage of such parents, and the threat of a criminal prosecution of COG by New York's attorney general, seem to have induced Berg to shift his operations and disciples out of the United States to tumbledown communes in various lands. NBC television recently had a program in which Berg's daughter-in-law described "Moses" as a dirty old man, and such Protestant magazines as Christianity Today and Eternity have exposed this sect's baneful extravagances.

Movement studied

A careful study of COG has been made by two reputable professors — Dr. Edward Ericson, Jr., of the Hoover Institution, and Dr. Paul MacPherson, of the University of Guelph, in Canada. They find COG guilty of several dreary offenses.

First, COG brainwashes the young people whom it attracts; it especially compels them to break off all connection with their parents. "The Children send new recruits to special campuses called 'babe ranches,' Ericson and MacPherson write. "The new convert is given a new name, a biblical (usually Old Testament) one . . . Every effort is made to destroy one's former identity. Converts are told that their family and parents now are the sect and its leaders, not their physical kin." That's not all: "Although parents seldom see their children during the first few months that they are in COG, those who have done so invariably testify that their child's whole personality has been changed. They usually describe the child as appearing drugged, dazed, or hypnotized."

Totalitarian one

Second, COG is an authoritarian group — indeed, a totalitarian one. Berg, demanding absolute obedience from the Babes, equates his word with the word of God. The Children are required to sign a "Revolutionary Contract," of which the final line is this: "I promise to give all my goods and income, let you open my mail, obey rules and officers." COG sends out letters to victimized parents, asking them to send money to their children — funds that pass into "the million-dollar rip-off" of COG. Often those parents have no notion of where their children have been taken.

Third, COG lives by deceit. "Running through the cult is an omnipresent strain of blatant deception," Ericson and MacPherson continue. Berg tells his subordinates "not to co-operate with any media which publish hostile stories, but to promise scoops to reporters who treat them kindly, suggesting that the elders 'could even furnish them with a few harmless ones (Mo Letters) like "Diamonds of Dust," if they would promise to treat them fairly.'" Instructing the faithful in how to deceive the press, Berg writes that "you can just stall, evade, or lead them off on another track."

Fourth, COG teaches hatred of parents, of churches, and of all existing social institutions. In the "Revolutionary Contract," parents are described as "the rotten, decadent, decrepit, hypocritical, self-righteous, inflexible, affluent, self-satisfied, proud, stubborn, disobedient, blind, bloodthirsty, Godless, dead, selfish, churchy, unchangeable older generation."

Those are only some of the principal charges against COG. Sexual license is commended again and again, with obscene language, in Berg's publications. American life is denounced ferociously. Lately Berg has taken to fierce condemnation of Israel and the Jews, whom he accuses of "their flagrant, blasphemous, and unpardonable sin of unbelief!"

3 con job?

From Texas, a mother writes to me of how her son was persuaded to enter a COG commune — taking with him $1,700 that he had drawn out of the bank. The parents obtained a warrant to get him back, on the ground that he was of unsound mind. This is what happened:

— "Ten minutes later my husband arrived at the commune with two deputy sheriffs and a warrant for our son. They drove in the driveway, into the back yard, and found Lee (their son) standing by his truck . . . When the warrant was presented, three cars were parked sideways behind the deputies' car to block the driveway exit. The gate was ordered closed and locked! The head leader shouted, 'Bring out the guns and ammunition, we are going to have a shoot-out and put a stop to this!'

"The deputies were roughed up, but one broke away, got to the car and called for an emergency riot squad stationed two blocks away. With the arrival of the police, the group dispersed, and the gate was opened." Yet after a court test, COG carried off this boy, after all, the court finding him "mentally ill, but not in need of hospitalization."

Such are the methods of COG — whose devotees appear to be not Children of God, but of a very different domination and power. Perverted religion is even more cruel than perverted politics.

The Navy claimed in its environmental report that "permission was granted by the appropriate officials as the fire potential index was not at a level sufficiently high to halt operations."

This is disputed by the GAO, which found the fire potential index wasn't developed until after the March fires.

Again, the Navy's May 1973 environmental impact statement claimed that, "after the fires, the use of live ordnance was discontinued." On the contrary the GAO will charge that 655 live 500-pound bombs and 242 250-pound bombs were dropped on the test range between April 1972 and May 1973.

In Jacksonville, Fla., Navy Capt. E. W. Ingley confirmed to us that live ordnance "certainly" was used but insisted that it amounted to no more than "two or three per cent of the total practice ordnance." He also stressed that the Navy takes "elaborate safety precautions" when using live ordnance. "Naval aviation is national security," he added.

As late as last month, however, Rep. Bill Gunter, D-Fla., protested that bomb drops on July 18 had "needlessly frightened 250 youngsters at one children's camp in the forest."

The freshman from Florida called for the GAO probe after he had a personal experience with the falling bombs. While he was delivering a speech in the Eustis Civic Center near the forest, the building began to shake from the shock waves of the exploding bombs.

TAPES STALEMENT? Sources close to the Supreme Court suggest that the vote on the controversial White House tapes could end in a tie. Justice William Rehnquist, whose vote might break the tie, may have to disqualify himself, they say.

The Supreme Court is expected to rule, in the end, on whether President Nixon must surrender his secret White House tapes to Special Prosecutor Archibal Cox and the Senate Watergate Committee. The case is now awaiting action in the lower courts.

Rehnquist's law clerk, Robert Wild, conceded to us that "there definitely will be a question" whether the justice should participate in the decision. "He hasn't said a word about it," said Wild. "I'm not sure whether he's even looked into it, so there's no decision one way or the other."

The aide stressed it would be "a personal decision." Rehnquist would have to consider his past national security activities as a Justice Department official and his close association with key figures involved in the case.

During his Senate confirmation hearings, he said: "My client, in my position as the assistant attorney general for the Office of the Legal Counsel, is the attorney general and the President."

Supreme Court sources say the case of the White House tapes involved not only eavesdropping but executive privilege. Rehnquist worked on both questions while he was at the Justice Department.

Indeed, he assured the Senate that he would likely disqualify himself on a case involving national security wiretapping.

VESCO'S YACHT: Robert Yesco, the international financier indicted with former Attorney General John Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans in a swindle and coverup case, is now a fugitive from the F-BI. But U.S. Customs agents have cut off one means of flight by seizing his fabulous yacht, the Patricia III, formerly the Romantica, in a Miami boatyard.

Vesco was not aboard when the customs men struck, but the yacht is being held until the United States can decide whether Vesco owes customs duties on the English-built craft.

Nor is this the first time Vesco has had trouble with yachts. In June, we reported how his yacht sliced the anchor cable of another vessel, then sailed off to the Bahamas with Vesco calling: "You know my address. Send me the bill."

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Champion

In Latin, the Romans' language, a battlefield was called a "campus," a word meaning field or plain, because that was where battles were fought. A fighting man was called a "campion" — a man of the battlefield.

"Campion" became "champion" in Old French and in English, and acquired a broader meaning — one who fought for someone or some cause, on the battlefield or in an arena.

Tournaments among fighting men were held frequently during the Middle Ages. Through the process of elimination one man emerged unbeaten. This led to the present meaning of "champion" — one who wins first prize in a competition.

Piano

The piano, invented early in the 18th Century, was an improvement on the harpsichord.

The keys on the harpsichord activated quills that plucked strings, producing notes of the same intensity. An instrument that would produce soft and loud notes was needed for concert music.

Bartellommeo Cristofori, an Italian, invented such an instrument. Its strings were struck by small hammers activated by a keyboard.

Cristofori called the instrument "piano e forte," which in Italian means soft and loud. The name was contracted to "pianoforte" and later to "piano."

Faking Marilyn

In recent weeks I have drawn attention several times to the peculiar appetite that seems to exist for pseudo-history.

For example, we now have on the way a big-budget movie based on the theory that John F. Kennedy was assassinated by retired generals, Texas oilmen, and other assorted right-wingers—despite the public availability of evidence to the contrary. Julius and Ethel Rosenberg have been the beneficiaries of posthumous fictitious rehabilitation. A current academic study demonstrates how seemingly respectable historians consciously faked the evidence in order to transfer responsibility for the Cold War from Joseph Stalin to President Harry Truman.

Though William James noted the existence of a "will to believe," all of this strikes me as going rather far.

The latest specimen is especially weird. In his new book on Marilyn Monroe, Norman Mailer perpetrates any number of intellectual frauds, which the reviewers have not hesitated to point out, but he saves the biggest for the end, and it's a beaut.

Murdered by right-wingers

According to Mailer, Marilyn Monroe did not, as generally believed, commit suicide. No, she was murdered. I probably don't have to tell you who dunnit. But I will. She was murdered by right-wingers.

Mailer makes his case indirectly, using rhetorical questions, rather in the manner of a fellow hawking pornographic post cards, but the theory he floats is that she was murdered as a way of getting at Robert F. Kennedy, who was widely believed to be having an affair with her.

"For who is the first to be certain it was of no interest to the CIA, or to the FBI, or to the Mafia, and half the secret police of the world, that the brother of the President was reputed to be having an affair with a movie star . . . By the end, political stakes were riding on her life, and even more on her death. If she could be murdered in such a way as to appear a suicide in despair at the turn of her love, what a point of pressure could be maintained afterward against the Kennedys."

To be sure, absolutely no evidence exists to support such a hypothesis, as Mailer admits. This is the way he puts it: "There seems next to nothing of such evidence." Right there, to be sure, is a telltale lie. There is not "next to nothing" to support his case. There is nothing.

But having floated his theory, Mailer goes on to develop and extend it. "Yet if we are to grant her this much effect upon the development of one American hero"— Bobby Kennedy — "why not assume even more and see her death as the seed of assassinations to follow." Oh? The "seed of assassinations to follow"? There we have the full-blown fantasy. Not only was Marilyn Monroe murdered by right-wingers, but all the other assassination victims of the 1960s were too. The political Right bumped off John Kennedy, Robert Kennedy Martin Luther King, Malcolm X, and, who knows, probably Lin Piao too, and most recently made the attempt on Gov. George Wallace. You can forget about Oswald, Sirhan and the other alleged killers.

Curiously, Mailer feels obliged to deny the rumor of a Kennedy-Monroe affair, though at least some evidence exists to support it.

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Praises medical care

Editor, The Record:

I wonder how many local residents realize the high quality of medical care available to them in this area? The range of medical specialties practiced by the staff at our hospital is very complete.

During a recent hospitalization for a back injury, part of the treatment required a special X-ray procedure done by Dr. Stanley Rosenblatt, radiologist.

I wish to openly praise Dr. Rosenblatt on his ability to allay my apprehensions about the X-ray and his competence in performing the procedure.

Too often doctors are forgotten when it comes time to say thank you.

To you, Dr. Rosenblatt, I sincerely thank you for your concern and attention.

MRS. DIANE WENGER, R.N.
Head Nurse, 3 North
General Hospital of Monroe Co.

Where's traffic control?

Editor, The Record:

As I turned right at Gap View Drive onto Rt. 209, driving along at 45 miles per hour, a truck dashed up and tailgated me, so that I could not slow down to turn right at the gift shop.

I was forced to rush onward to Mosier's Dairy as that truck shot past. It must have been doing 60 miles an hour-plus on that narrow "No Passing" section of 209.

Are there no police to stop this? I am now afraid to go on that road again. So are my neighbors, all of whom are law-abiding drivers.

'Jesus Movement'

Corruption by religion?

By RUSSELL KIRK

The "Jesus Movement" among young people has not faded away as yet. Although some manifestations of it may be silly or shallow, in general I am heartened by this renewal of the religious impulse.

But in our time, as in every age, false prophets do terrible mischief. Within the "Jesus Movement" are sects whose fanaticism or charlatanry works the death of spirit.

At a recent convention in Denmark of "Jesus Movement" groups, the leadership excluded from participation the organization called Children of God, or COG, which still has about 2,000 members scattered throughout the world. The genuine Jesus People had ample reason for declaring COG anathema.

COG is directed by a certain David Berg, who calls himself "Moses" and claims divind inspiration. Berg now lives secluded in London, though in recent months he has been seen on the Riviera, in company with female disciples. He publishes "Mo Letters" that sufficiently set forth his strange doctrines. The Mo Letters, incidentally, are spattered with obscene words and drawings.

Many parents write to me of how their children have been seduced away from them by COG. The rage of such parents, and the threat of a criminal prosecution of COG by New York's attorney general, seem to have induced Berg to shift his operations and disciples out of the United States to tumbledown communes in various lands. NBC television recently had a program in which Berg's daughter-in-law described "Moses" as a dirty old man, and such Protestant magazines as Christianity Today and Eternity have exposed this sect's baneful extravagances.

Movement studied

A careful study of COG has been made by two reputable professors — Dr. Edward Ericson, Jr., of the Hoover Institution, and Dr. Paul MacPherson, of the University of Guelph, in Canada. They find COG guilty of several dreary offenses.

First, COG brainwashes the young people whom it attracts; it especially compels them to break off all connection with their parents. "The Children send new recruits to special campuses called 'babe ranches,' Ericson and MacPherson write. "The new convert is given a new name, a biblical (usually Old Testament) one . . . Every effort is made to destroy one's former identity. Converts are told that their family and parents now are the sect and its leaders, not their physical kin." That's not all: "Although parents seldom see their children during the first few months that they are in COG, those who have done so invariably testify that their child's whole personality has been changed. They usually describe the child as appearing drugged, dazed, or hypnotized."

Totalitarian one

Second, COG is an authoritarian group — indeed, a totalitarian one. Berg, demanding absolute obedience from the Babes, equates his word with the word of God. The Children are required to sign a "Revolutionary Contract," of which the final line is this: "I promise to give all my goods and income, let you open my mail, obey rules and officers." COG sends out letters to victimized parents, asking them to send money to their children — funds that pass into "the million-dollar rip-off" of COG. Often those parents have no notion of where their children have been taken.

Third, COG lives by deceit. "Running through the cult is an omnipresent strain of blatant deception," Ericson and MacPherson continue. Berg tells his subordinates "not to co-operate with any media which publish hostile stories, but to promise scoops to reporters who treat them kindly, suggesting that the elders 'could even furnish them with a few harmless ones (Mo Letters) like "Diamonds of Dust," if they would promise to treat them fairly.'" Instructing the faithful in how to deceive the press, Berg writes that "you can just stall, evade, or lead them off on another track."

Fourth, COG teaches hatred of parents, of churches, and of all existing social institutions. In the "Revolutionary Contract," parents are described as "the rotten, decadent, decrepit, hypocritical, self-righteous, inflexible, affluent, self-satisfied, proud, stubborn, disobedient, blind, bloodthirsty, Godless, dead, selfish, churchy, unchangeable older generation."

Those are only some of the principal charges against COG. Sexual license is commended again and again, with obscene language, in Berg's publications. American life is denounced ferociously. Lately Berg has taken to fierce condemnation of Israel and the Jews, whom he accuses of "their flagrant, blasphemous, and unpardonable sin of unbelief!"

3 con job?

From Texas, a mother writes to me of how her son was persuaded to enter a COG commune — taking with him $1,700 that he had drawn out of the bank. The parents obtained a warrant to get him back, on the ground that he was of unsound mind. This is what happened:

"Ten minutes later my husband arrived at the commune with two deputy sheriffs and a warrant for our son. They drove in the driveway, into the back yard, and found Lee (their son) standing by his truck . . . When the warrant was presented, three cars were parked sideways behind the deputies' car to block the driveway exit. The gate was ordered closed and locked! The head leader shouted, 'Bring out the guns and ammunition, we are going to have a shoot-out and put a stop to this!'

"The deputies were roughed up, but one broke away, got to the car and called for an emergency riot squad stationed two blocks away. With the arrival of the police, the group dispersed, and the gate was opened." Yet after a court test, COG carried off this boy, after all, the court finding him "mentally ill, but not in need of hospitalization."

Such are the methods of COG — whose devotees appear to be not Children of God, but of a very different domination and power. Perverted religion is even more cruel than perverted politics.

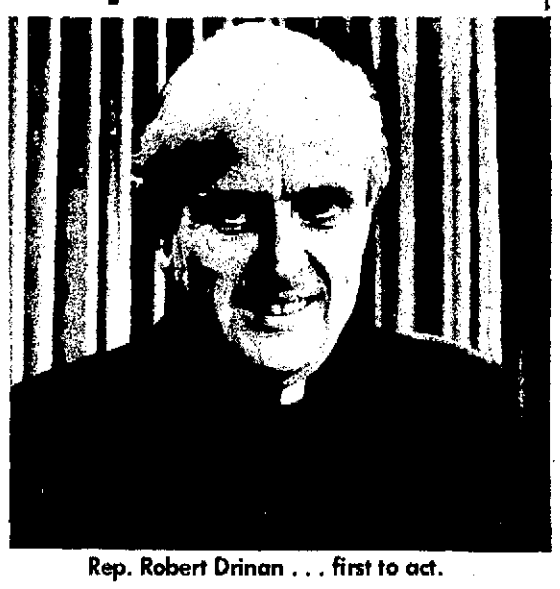

Rep. Drinan — firm liberal with few pretensions

By United Press International

The Rev. Robert Frederick Drinan, the first Roman Catholic priest elected as a voting members of Congress, is the first member of the House to introduce a resolution of impeachment against Prsident Nixon.

Drinan, a firm liberal, was elected in 1970 from his native Boston as a strident antiwar activist. In the primary he defeated Rep. Philip J. Philbin, D-Mass., a 14-term congressman and hawk on the Vietnam war who was slated to become chairman of the House Armed Services Committee.

"I'm not so pretentious I'm going to save the nation," Drinan said in a interview shortly after he took his House seat, and he soon found himself cast among his ideological adversaries.

Rep. Robert Drinan . . . first to act.

The man who had bitterly denounced the old House Committee on Un-American Activities and was an official of the "Committee to Abolish HUAC" readily accepted appointment to the committee after a few days in office. Drinan still serves on its successor, the House Internal Security Committee, as a self-styled "token liberal."

Drinen, 52, is balding, lean and hawk-nosed. He seems to run rather than walk. A former law school dean, he spends a lot of time on the House floor rummaging through a battered brief case and dog-earned congressional folder that bulge with reports, constituents' letters and notes to himself.

He rarely participates in debate, but when he does he speaks in a nervous, rasping voice and frequently leaves fellow members with the impression that he is ill-prepared.

In private conversation he spits out facts in machine gun bursts, but his printed statements, like the legal-size, 13-page explanation of his impeachment resolution, reflect a scholarly background.

Ordained a Jesuit priest in 1953, he studied in Florence, Italy, for a year before he was named dean of the Boston College Law School, where he also taught constitutional law. Among the books he has written is one titled "Religion, the Courts and Public Policy."

Drinan has served as chairman of the Massachusetts Bar Association committee on the administration of justice, chairman of the family law section of the American Bar Association, and chairman of the Massachusetts Advisory committee for the U.S. Civil Rights Commission.

Drinan was the first member of the New England delegation in the House to endorse Sen. George McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination last year.

While in Washington, Drinan resides with the Jesuit community on the Georgetown University campus. He pays living expenses to the Jesuit order but the rest of his $42,500 annual salary goes toward expenses for special services in his Boston congressional district.

And only one precedent exists

Constitution no impeachment aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Constitution makes only brief references to impeachment, leaving to congressional rules and the lone precedent of Andrew Johnson the actual procedure of impeaching a President.

The Constitution gives the House the sole power of impeachment —in effect, investigating and returning an indictment.

It gives the Senate the sole power to try all impeachments, sitting as a court under oath and with the Chief Justice presiding.

A two-thirds majority of the Senate is required to convict. The Constitution specifies that the President, vice president and all civil officers of the government shall be removed from office on impeachment for and conviction of "treason, bribery or other high crimes and misdemeanors."

It also says punishment on conviction cannot extend beyond removal from office and a ban against holding further office, but that the person still is subject to prosecution in the courts.

Another section says the President may grant reprieves and pardons for federal offenses "except in cases of impeachment." That means that if the President were removed from office and succeeded by the vice president, the vice president could not grant him a pardon.

Finally, the Constitution establishes that all crimes "except in cases of impeachment" shall be tried by jury.

Twelve government officials and judges have been impeached by the House and four have been convicted by the Senate. President Andrew Johnson was impeached by the House, but the Senate failed the necessary two-thirds vote for conviction in 1868.

The more common route is through an investigation by a standing or special committee of the House. The committee would collect evidence in much the same manner as a grand jury, and any articles of impeachment returned would be similar to a grand jury indictment. Eleven articles of impeachment were returned against Andrew Johnson.

If and when articles of impeachment are decided on, the House votes on impeachment, with a simple majority required to carry it.

If voted, a group of House members is selected to prosecute the case in the Senate, where all senators sit as a jury after taking an oath to be impartial.

If the Senate votes to convict the President of the articles of impeachment, he is removed from office.

Beef price freeze explosive issue

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hamburger that cost 15 cents to a quarter only a few years ago may sell for $1.50 next month, meat industry experts warned this week.

President Nixon's beef price freeze became the most explosive economic issue in the country. The freeze has been forcing slaughter houses and packing houses to shut down and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butchers Workmen's Union says thousands of its members have been thrown out of work.

The attacks on the freeze in Congress and from farm and packing industry sources finally resulted in the Senate voting 84-6 to lift the freeze at once, on the theory that it would be better to let meat prices rise quickly but give ranchers and the cattle feeders the incentives to step up production rapidly.

But the Administration forces in the House succeeded at least temporarily in retaining the freeze through the Sept. 12 date when it is supposed to expire. The House Rules Committee voted 9-6 not to take up the Senate measure to lift the freeze now.

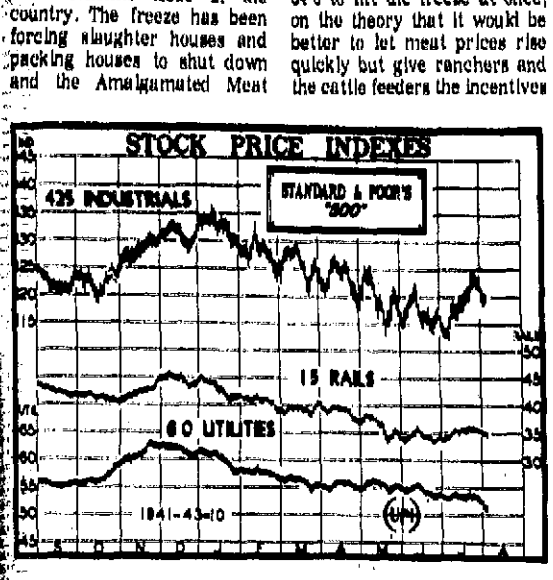

The Administration backed and filled on the beef price issue. At the start of the week Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said he would not yield to demands to lift the freeze. Two days later he said he was seriously considering lifting it. After the Senate vote, a White House spokesman again said it would not be lifted.

The latest government forecast is that U.S. meat production will drop 3 per cent this year and that a 4 per cent rise in imports will have no significant impact in offsetting this drop.

There were reports that the Japanese and Canadians are buying up American cattle and beef at prices well above the Nixon-imposed ceilings. The Canadian speculators expect to sell much of the beef back south of the border at a big profit after the freeze is lifted. The Japanese speculators are buying because the price of beef in fancy restaurants in Tokyo has risen to from $16 to $23 a pound.

A new farm bill designed to create new incentives to farmers to produce more food was due to reach the White House during the weekend after passing the House.

The House finally passed the Alaska pipeline bill but it may take weeks to reconcile it with the bill previously passed by the Senate and get a final measure passed to send to the White House. Meanwhile, the gasoline shortage continued to ease except in the Rocky Mountain region. But Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., charged that the Nixon Phase 4 provision on gasoline prices discriminates unjustly against independent dealers because of the period chosen to base the price limits.

Interest hike cuts prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Against a background of rising interest rates, prices inched lower and trading slowed to a trickle Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume totaled only 9,940,000 shares, second lowest of the year next to 9,830,000 shares traded July 2nd. Friday's first-hour volume—2,460,000 shares—was the lightest in nearly 10 months. Thursday's volume came to 12,080,000 shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 1.27 to 908.87. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index fell 0.18 to 106.49. The average price of a NYSE common share declined 3 cents.

Declines barely topped advances, 684 to 640, among 1,723 issues traded.

The market appeared to sink back into lethargy the past few days, after two weeks of comparatively active buying. Several analysts said the paltry volume was fairly typical of an end-of-week summer session.

A number of analysts actually were encouraged by the trading slowdown. Saul Smerling of Standard & Poor's said, "The market's been doing a lot of discounting these past few months. And now, as Wall Street has seen some of its fears confirmed, volume has dried up, and selling hasn't been severe." He added a technical pullback was due following the recent buying spree.

Leadin the actives, Sperry & Hutchinson dropped ½ to 17½ on 206,700 shares, including a 109,900-share block at 17. Transamerica was second, and rose ¼ to 13 on 132,400 shares. Tandy Corp. followed, off ⅛ at 20¼ on 126,800 shares, including a 100,000-share block at 20.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange turned mixed in moderate trading, highlighted by a giant 1,021,400-share block of McCulloch Oil, which closed at 5¾, off ¾. The Amex index rose 0.02 to 29.35. Volume came to 3,250,000 shares, against 1,740,000 shares traded Thursday.

Beef price freeze explosive issue

NEW YORK (UPI) — The hamburger that cost 15 cents to a quarter only a few years ago may sell for $1.50 next month, meat industry experts warned this week.

President Nixon's beef price freeze became the most explosive economic issue in the country. The freeze has been forcing slaughter houses and packing houses to shut down and the Amalgamated Meat Cutters & Butchers Workmen's Union says thousands of its members have been thrown out of work.

The attacks on the freeze in Congress and from farm and packing industry sources finally resulted in the Senate voting 84-6 to lift the freeze at once, on the theory that it would be better to let meat prices rise quickly but give ranchers and the cattle feeders the incentives to step up production rapidly.

But the Administration forces in the House succeeded at least temporarily in retaining the freeze through the Sept. 12 date when it is supposed to expire. The House Rules Committee voted 9-6 not to take up the Senate measure to lift the freeze now.

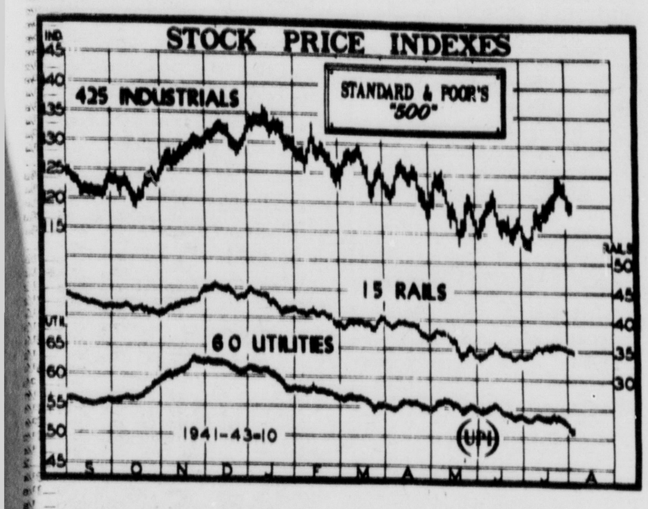

The Administration backed and filled on the beef price issue. At the start of the week Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said he would not yield to demands to lift the freeze. Two days later he said he was seriously considering lifting it. After the Senate vote, a White House spokesman again said it would not be lifted.

The latest government forecast is that U.S. meat production will drop 3 per cent this year and that a 4 per cent rise in imports will have no significant impact in offsetting this drop.

There were reports that the Japanese and Canadians are buying up American cattle and beef at prices well above the Nixon-imposed ceilings. The Canadian speculators expect to sell much of the beef back south of the border at a big profit after the freeze is lifted. The Japanese speculators are buying because the price of beef in fancy restaurants in Tokyo has risen to from $16 to $23 a pound.

A new farm bill designed to create new incentives to farmers to produce more food was due to reach the White House during the wekend after passing the House.

The House finally passed the Alaska pipeline bill but it may take weeks to reconcile it with the bill previously passed by the Senate and get a final measure passed to send to the White House. Meanwile, the gasoline shortage continued to ease except in the Rocky Mountain region. But Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., charged that the Nixon Phase 4 provision on gasoline prices discriminates unjustly against independent dealers because of the period chosen to base the price limits.

Interest hike cuts prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Against a background of rising interest rates, prices inched lower and trading slowed to a trickle Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume totaled only 9,940,000 shares, second lowest of the year next to 9,830,000 shares traded July 2nd. Friday's first-hour volume—2,460,000 shares—was the lightest in nearly 10 months. Thursday's volume came to 12,080,000 shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 1.27 to 908.87. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index fell 0.18 to 106.49. The average price of a NYSE common share declined 3 cents.

Declines barely topped advances, 684 to 640, among 1,723 issues traded.

The market appeared to sink back into lethargy the past few days, after two weeks of comparatively active buying. Several analysts said the paltry volume was fairly typical of an end-of-week summer session.

A number of analysts actually were encouraged by the trading slowdown. Saul Smerling of Standard & Poor's said, "The market's been doing a lot of discounting these past few months. And now, as Wall Street has seen some of its fears confirmed, volume has dried up, and selling hasn't been severe." He added a technical pullback was due following the recent buying spree.

Leadin the actives, Sperry & Hutchinson dropped ½ to 17½ on 206,700 shares, including a 199,900-share block at 17. Transamerica was second, and rose ¼ to 13 on 132,400 shares. Tandy Corp. followed, off ⅛ at 20¼ on 126,800 shares, including a 100,000-share block at 20.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange turned mixed in moderate trading, highlighted by a giant 1,021,400-share block of McCulloch Oil, which closed at 5⅜, off ¾. The Amex index rose 0.02 to 23.35. Volume came to 3,250,000 shares, against 1,740,000 shares traded Thursday.

Economists admit rising inflation can't be halted

Dow Jones-Ottaway News

WASHINGTON — As attacks on their economic policies mounted, White House economists told Congress they can't prevent further inflation, especially in food prices, despite a tightening of budget and monetary control and wage-price curbs.

"The country is faced with a choice between the evils of inflation and the evils of controls," Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said. "We are trying to pick our way between these evils" in a way to do minimum damage to the economy, he told skeptical members of the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Stein and his two fellow members of the council spent 2½ hours Wednesday morning defensively fielding lawmakers' sometimes-barbed questions on topics ranging from the weakness of the dollar and prospects for unemployment to the outbreak of beef shortages and the possibility of a "credit crunch."

Even as the White House advisers defended their economic policies, those policies came under attack from outside forces, including organized labor and the meat industry.

AFL-CIO president, George Meany, speaking to newsmen in Chicago where the labor federation's executive council is meeting, warned that the nation is "facing economic disaster" unless the Administration alters its policies. He predicted the Phase IV economic controls program is likely to produce a recession unless altered.

The federation's council, in a policy statement, urged that all wage and price controls be "phased out as rapidly as possible." Meany said AF-CIO unions are "willing to bite the bullet" and try to cope with the "chaos" that he said is bound to follow a return to an uncontrolled economy.

The Administration's plan to keep the freeze on beef prices until Sept. 12 came under more fire from cattlemen, meat-packers and others at a meeting in Washington. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz listened for more than an hour to their complaints about the beef price ceiling and the shortages it is causing. Although Butz appeared personally sympathetic to their problems, he wouldn't predict removal of the price ceiling before the Sept. 12 date established by President Nixon.

Talking with newsmen following the meeting, Butz said he believed all along that meat price ceilings "economically are a mistake" and that "if I had my druthers I would seriously consider ending the beef ceiling sometime before Sept. 12."

The secretary noted that slaughter is down and that "some hoarding" is contributing to the "very serious" beef supply situation. In addition, Butz said he agreed with the meat industry appraisal that beef shortages are pushing prices of pork and poultry higher. Nevertheless, his answer to newsmen's questions made it clear that he doesn't believe the Nixon Administration is going to change its mind and lift the ceiling.

In his Capitol Hill appearance, White House economist Stein said the beef freeze should be continued through Sept. 12; he minimized the likely disruptions. "All the cattle not being brought to market now will be there after Sept. 12," he said.

Grocery outlook gloomy

Food prices, hoarding, shortages

Dow Jones—Ottaway News

NEW YORK — In an Atlanta supermarket, where one brand of bacon jumped 10 cents a pound in recent days, a butcher confides that the supplier warns of a boost of 30 cents a pound in the next few weeks.

Jim Loyola, manager of a Ralph's Market in Los Angeles, unfurls lists of "not available" items before and after Phase IV. The most recent one contains 30 per cent more items — including canned fruits and vegetables, apple and fruit juices and canned meats — than were unobtainable during the Phase 3½ freeze.

At a Kroger market on Cleveland's East side, a woman arrives early in the morning to claim one of the few remaining beef rib roasts. Another woman, arriving too late, snatches it from her cart. A fight ensues, and store workers settle it by returning the roast to the first shopper.

"This is what we're in for," says Johnny Spino, meat manager at the scene of battle.

Indeed, this is what we're in for — for as far ahead as anyone can predict. Retail prices of many foods have shot up as much as 25 per cent since Phase IV was announced July 18, and they are expected to climb higher before Autumn. Beef, pork and some other foods are in extremely short supply in most cities and aren't available at all in some stores.

Many shoppers are so fearful of shortages that they're buying up extra supplies and hoarding them — thus aggravating the situation. Sales of freezers jumped 45 per cent nationally during the second quarter, the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers says. An Atlanta appliance distributor says sales of home freezers in his area have tripled in the past week or so, and a big northern California dealer says, "we've had more calls for freezers in the past 30 days than we've had this whole year. It's really unbelievable."

But it's hard to believe that any Americans can afford freezers after they leave the grocery stores. Reporters sent on periodic shopping trips over the past few months went out again last Friday. Here are some of their findings:

—Pork chops, generally priced at $1.35 to $1.65 a pound during the freeze, have shot up to $1.70 to $2, a gain of about 25 per cent.

—Bacon that sold for around $1 a pound two weeks ago now commands $1.30 to $1.50, but people still are grabbing it so fast that some stores limit each customer to one or two pounds.

—Whole broiler chickens now sell for 60 to 70 cents a pound, up 20 per cent in recent weeks.

—Extra-large white eggs sell for around $1 a dozen in some cities, up from 70 to 90 cents during the freeze. Some stores have stopped carrying the high-priced eggs. "I won't handle eggs over $1 a dozen. It's ludicrous!" says Harold Slawsby, president of Capital Super Markets in Quincy, Mass.

Several fresh fruits and vegetables are priced sharply higher, too, although some items that are in season are lower. In several cities, milk prices haven't changed since Phase 4 went into effect, but increases are expected soon.

Big as they are, the increases haven't yet matched the price gains in commodity and wholesale markets since July 18 — which means that more increases in retail prices are likely. In the past two weeks, hog prices at Omaha and wholesale chicken prices in Chicago have climbed 30 per cent. The chicken trade is talking about a further increase of about 15 per cent in prices next week. Under Phase IV rules, higher raw-product prices can be passed along to consumers.

"It's going to get worse," predicts Spino, the meat manager in the Cleveland Kroger store where the ladies battled. "I figure that during the last two weeks of August all the farmers will hold back their beef" to wait for higher prices.

Fiscal illiteracy under attack

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don't be too hard on yourself if the simple facts of high finance leave you in a fog.

You, like many Americans, are probably an ignoramus about such matters. You were educationally deprived. In school you didn't really learn a darned thing about economics. We Americans are, says the Joint Council on Economic Education, economic illiterates.

The council is an independent, nonprofit, nonpartisan educational organization aiming to improve and encourage the economic education movement. It hopes sometime to erase economic illiteracy.

The council's platform: every citizen must have the ability to understand and objectively analyze economic issues for his own well-being as well as for the good of national progress.

Its principal medium for expanding and improving economic education is a network of state and local affiliated councils on economic education, college and university centers for economic education and cooperating school systems.

There are 49 affiliated councils in 46 states. Groundwork has been laid to start up additional councils in Arizona and Michigan. Alaska and Vermont are the only two states without activity toward establishing affiliated councils.

The council hopes eventually there will be an economics education segment of curriculum from kindergarten to grade 12. Knowing about economics is no less important than knowing about readin', writing' and 'rithmetic.

What is happening in the schools today in the teaching of economics—more than in the past—is not enough. The council reports:

—Only one state requires economics at the secondary level, but 42 per cent of the secondary schools nationwide offer economics. Twenty-six per cent of all high school graduates these days will have had a separate economics course.

—Most teacher-training programs for business education majors require some economics, but the majority do not consider themselves adequately prepared to teach it in the secondary grades and only 1.2 per cent did their student teaching in economics.

—Prof. David Schwartz of Georgia State University administered a simple economics test to more than 21,000 high school students. More than half of them didn't even know that the U.S. economy is based on private—free—enterprise.

—Using the Test of Economics Understanding the Joint Council tested several hundred junior college students before they took an economics course. The majority missed simple questions dealing with government and freedom of choice in private enterprise, the relationship between productivity and wages, the characteristics of free enterprise and other competing economic systems.

Selective Service reminder

STROUDSBURG — Men are still required to register with the Selective Service when they turn 18, Selective Service Director Byron W. Pepitone announced.

Although the President's authority to induct men expired July 1, Pepitone continued, "the Military Selective Service Act remains in force."

That act provides a manpower pool that can be summoned immediately by requiring the approximately two million men who reach 18 each year to register.

Those who do not register violate the Selective Service Act and are subject to prosecution by the Justice Department.

"They should register at the nearest Local Board," Pepitone said.

Several pets held at SPCA

STROUDSBURG — A male Brittany Spaniel from Hemlock Farms, and a female of the same breed from Mt. Bethel are among the unusual dogs being held at the Monroe County branch of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

There is also a tan and white part-Collie pup found in East Stroudsburg and a black and tan mixed breed male found in Stroudsburg. All of these animals will be looking for new homes if their owners don't reclaim them.

There are also some puppies and young dogs already available, such as "Chips," a five-month-old female Beagle-Terrier; and "Sandy," a year old tan and white housebroken part-Collie.

Also, two four-month-old German Shorthaired Pointer pups, three 10-week-old Beagle-Terrier pups and three seven-week-old part-Beagle puppies.

Cats and kittens, already housebroken to litter pans, include four assorted domestic shorthairs, eight weeks old; two six-week-old Siamese kittens; a solid white female about 10 weeks old named Snoopy; and an eight week-old Calico kitten.

Cats and dogs adopted from Pennsylvania SPCA shelters must be neutered as soon as possible after adoption to keep them from adding to the tremendous overpopulation of animals already swamping humane societies everywhere.

The Monroe County branch is open for adoptions and reclaiming lost pets daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Complaints of cruelty and neglect are investigated and corrected promptly. The phone number is 421-6761

$821,000 estimated for Monroe

Social Security benefits increase

Special to the Record

STROUDSBURG — For residents of Monroe County who are receiving Social Security checks each month, how much bigger will their payments be as a result of the rate increase voted by Congress last month?

What will be the average amount paid to local beneficiaries, compared with what it is now?

On the basis of the latest official figures, it is estimated that the new levels of retirement and disability payments will add approximately $821,000 a year to the total going to the local area.

The estimate is based upon statistics for each county in the United States, contained in the latest annual report of the Social Security Administration. It lists the number of retired workers on the pension rolls as well as their dependents and the amount going to them.

All will benefit under the new legislation. The retired single worker, who has been getting $1,932 a year, on average, will be collecting $2,040.

The average for a former worker and his wife, which has been $3,324, will go to $3,516. The minimum benefit paid will rise from the present $1,014 a year to $1,072.

For the 30 million people in the United States who are getting Social Security benefits, the new schedule, which gives them an adjustment of about 5.9 per cent to compensate for the increase in living costs, will involve some $3.2 billion per year.

Pension payments to Monroe County residents have been at the annual rate of $1,800 per recipient in the past year, it is estimated from the latest figures.

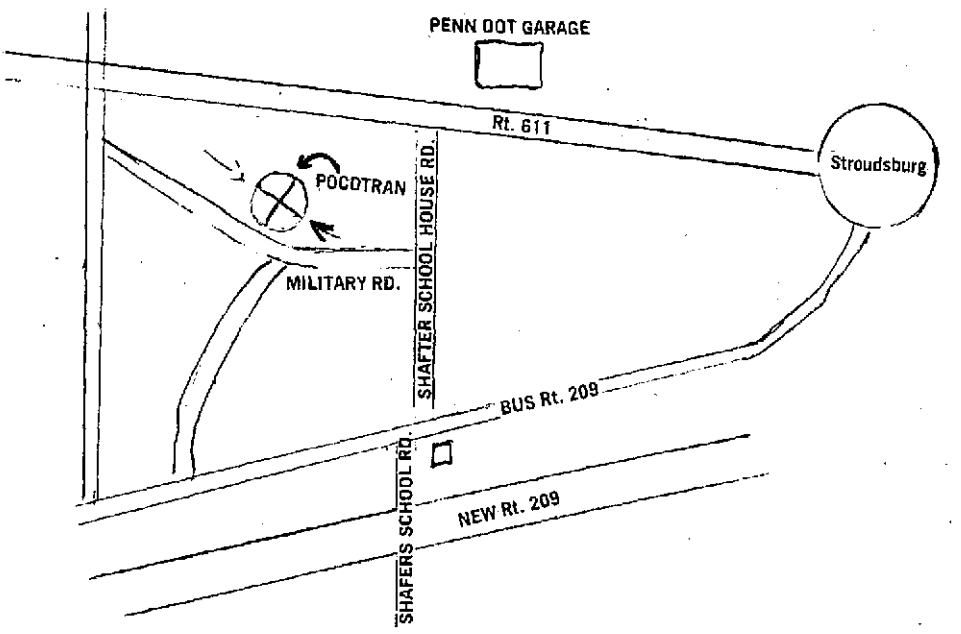

They will go up to $1,900 a year when the new rates become effective next July.

Total payments throughout the local area, based upon the number on the pension rolls, will add up to nearly $15,485,000 a year, it is calculated.

$821,000 estimated for Monroe

Social Security benefits increase

Special to the Record

STROUDSBURG — For residents of Monroe County who are receiving Social Security checks each month, how much bigger will their payments be as a result of the rate increase voted by Congress last month?

What will be the average amount paid to local beneficiaries, compared with what it is now?

On the basis of the latest official figures, it is estimated that the new levels of retirement and disability payments will add approximately $821,000 a year to the total going to the local area.

The estimate is based upon statistics for each county in the United States, contained in the latest annual report of the Social Security Administration. It lists the number of retired workers on the pension rolls as well as their dependents and the amount going to them.

All will benefit under the new legislation. The retired single worker, who has been getting $1,932 a year, on average, will be collecting $2,040.

The average for a former worker and his wife, which has been $3,324, will go to $3,516. The minimum benefit paid will rise from the present $1,014 a year to $1,072.

For the 30 million people in the United States who are getting Social Security benefits, the new schedule, which gives them an adjustment of about 5.9 per cent to compensate for the increase in living costs, will involve some $3.2 billion per year.

Pension payments to Monroe County residents have been at the annual rate of $1,800 per recipient in the past year, it is estimated from the latest figures.

They will go up to $1,900 a year when the new rates become effective next July.

Total payments throughout the local area, based upon the number on the pension rolls, will add up to nearly $15,485,000 a year, it is calculated.

Q. When I had my first child I went to the pre-natal clinic at the General Hospital of Monroe County and received beautiful treatment from everyone. Now I'm pregnant again, but when I went to the clinic again, I was turned down because my husband has Blue Cross and Blue Shield and major medical where he works. A. A spokesman for the clinic described the function of the clinic as follows: It is basically a charity clinic to provide services for those in need of pre-natal care who cannot afford to pay the average costs, which exceed $400.

In your case, your medical insurance does pay for everything. In other words, the clinic is open only to those who can't afford to pay the full cost in one way or another.

We've received countless inquiries asking why The Record does not publish a Sunday edition. So we put the question to the boss, Alan Gould Jr., publisher and general manager of The Record. He Replies:

"A Sunday Pocono Record has been discussed. Many things are involved, principally service and economics.

"The history of small town Sunday papers is not loaded with success stories when they are within easy distribution range of metropolitan centers (such as New York, Philadelphia and even Allentown). Readers expect a hefty Sunday package that The Record is not geared to produce.

"From the service standpoint of providing news, it is simply that not much happens on Saturdays. In fact, it is tougher to find things to report and people in government and business to talk to on Fridays."

Waste transfer station open today

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A swarm of earth churning machines have been shuddering five acres of Hamilton Township into condition for today's opening of a privately owned garbage disposal site.

In the face of state regulations forcing landfills out of business, the opening of the new site may offer relief to homeowners in areas of Monroe County where disposal sites have closed.

Located a quarter mile off Shafer School House Road adjacent to the present Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg-Stroud Twp. Sanitary Landfill, the site is owned by Pocotran Inc., (the corporate name adopted by haulers developing a transfer system to Northampton County).

The widely reported compaction-transfer system to the Grand Central Landfill in Northampton County is an idea conceived by Hermann Vollmer, a garbage hauler from Scotrun. It is taking shape under the direction of Harold Smith, another hauler from Stroudsburg.

Vollmer said today's opening is to allow for the disposal of loose garbage by homeowners and commercial accounts.

He said it will be at least a month before garbage trucks will be dumping at the site when compaction equipment is in place.

In the meantime, Pocotran has stationed 40-cubic-yard open containers at the site, permitting the corporation to move about 100 tons of garbage a day to the Northampton landfill.

Vollmer said a minimum dumping fee of 75 cents is required for a volume roughly equal to a week worth of household garbage.

A special price list for other types of garbage will be available at the site.

Vollmer said he hopes to have compacting equipment in place and have a good start on another transfer station in Tobyhanna Township by October.

The opening of the Monroe County transfer site represents the first tangible development towards a solution to the county's solid waste disposal problem since the search began almost five years ago.

The station has the endorsement of the Monroe County General Authority and the Monroe County Commissioners as an interim solution to the problem.

Governmental officials have been seeking an interim solution because of an approaching expiration date on the East Stroudsburg Sanitary Landfill which is taking garbage for more than half of the county's population.

Vollmer said he is opening the Hamilton Township site with permission from the Department of Environmental Resources and expects a formal permit within three weeks.

The eventual cost of the project involving two Monroe County transfer stations and special compaction and transfer equipment will be $450,000.

Truck terminal may help area economy

By LORA SHARPE
Pocono Record Reporter

TANNERSVILLE — The Roadway Express truck terminal now being built on Rte. 715 in Pocono Township will serve as loading station for much of the northeast — and may also provide the impetus for an area economic boom.

The Roadway trucking terminal, now a large excavation on Rte. 715, was originally slated to employ up to 200 persons.

However, officials now report that 500-600 employes will finally fill Roadway Express' payroll at the Tannersville stop.

Trucking executives recently met with real estate agents to discuss the problem of housing for workers to be transferred to the Tannersville installation.

Although the company plans to recruit many of its employes from the area, it will be bringing 150-200 persons into the area.

Roadway Express, which reports its recent recruiting campaign an amazing success, will pay employes on a higher scale than most Monroe County residents can't even dream about, according to officials of the firm.

Stuart Pipher, chairman of Pocono Township's planning commission, lauds the terminal as "great for the economy." Increased buying power could result from the terminal which he said "might be the best business around."

Building boom

A building boom in the area, Pipher said, is a definite possibility.

Those Roadway employes transferring to Tannersville, officials said, are interested in buying or building permanent homes.

Real estate agents, however, reported to Roadway personnel what every Monroe resident knows — there just aren't that many houses around.

And building in the Poconos, already a haven for the construction business, may be a lot more difficult than anticipated.

Contractors have more construction orders on their hands now than they can handle. And in the current sellers' market — where demand is greater than supply — prices for homes may strain even a Roadway employe's purse strings.

Time is also of the essence to Roadway transfers. The terminal is scheduled to open in October and moving employes don't want to install their families in motels for what might prove to be a long interim.

While real estate agents are doing their best to accommodate Roadway, they can't manufacture listings. Both real estate and Roadway personnel are wishing for a contractor that can erect a multitude of homes in 90 days.

The increase of employes at the terminal, though, will be somewhat gradual.

Only 150 persons, and these will be mostly from the area, will begin working with the terminal by October.

By the end of next year, the terminal will employ 300. The following year, depending on economic trends, the terminal could employ 500-600 persons.

Cross boundary arrests possible under agreement

By STEVE DRACHLER
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Police in Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Stroud Township will soon be able to cross municipal boundary lines to apprehend criminals.

An agreement is expected to be approved soon, technically making a police officer from one municipality a member of the police force of the other two.

Under present statutes, police can only arrest criminals in their assigned jurisdiction.

"Basically, it's going to be a mutual agreement between the three municipalities," said Stroudsburg Mayor Warren F. Loney Sr.

Loney said the problem was similar to one in the Easton area where the city of Easton and surrounding townships have had problems with police crossing municipal boundaries after criminals.

Loney praised the state crime commission for coming up with the suggestion the three groups band together to allow crossing of boundaries.

"It's no merger though," Loney emphasized. "It's just the idea we all would be covered in each other's area."

"What we will do once the solicitors go through the agreement and the councils and supervisors ratify it, is a judge will swear all the policemen in at one big ceremony," Loney said.

"It's all because of recent court decisions that threw out convictions where police crossed boundary lines," said East Stroudsburg's Borough Solicitor Robert Williamson.

"Police would go into each other's territory but wouldn't have any jurisdiction."

Williamson said there had been an informal agreement for mutual aid between the municipalities for some time, but by the law, arrests could only be made when police in hot pursuit crossed a border line.

Williamson said he expects East Stroudsburg Borough Council to take action on the venture during Tuesday's meeting.

Stroud Township Supervisor Nelson Westbrook called the change "a welcome move that will make for better police protection and cooperation between the three municipalities."

The important thing officials agree upon is the three departments will remain separate but will be able to cooperate more efficiently in the future.

"Who wants to lose their identity as a police force," one official said. "I'm sure we don't and I know the others aren't looking for complete merger either.

Police capture escaped convict

Record County Bureau

MOUNT POCONO — A citizen's tip led to the capture of an escaped convict from North Carolina early Friday by borough and state police.

Mount Pocono Borough Police Chief Robert Hartman said a tip from an unidentified caller led police to finding James Hill, a convicted felon, holed up in a Fairview Avenue home.

According to Hartman, Hill had been serving 15-20 years for second degree murder and armed robbery in the McDowell County Prison.

He escaped July 8 and had been seen in the Mount Pocono area a couple of weeks before he was apprehended.

Hill, a Charlottesville, N.C., resident, didn't have a chance to offer police resistance, Hartman said.

He said three borough policemen and three state troopers from Fern Ridge surrounded the house before Hill's capture 5:30 a.m. Friday.

Hill was taken to Monroe County Jail, Stroudsburg, where he is waiting extradition proceedings to North Carolina.

Lancaster truck driver killed in Rte. 33 crash

SCIOTA — A 26-year-old Lancaster man was killed in the wreck of his tractor-trailer rig early Friday morning on Rte. 33 here.

State Police from the Stroudsburg barracks said Donald L. Fritsch of 1725 Wahank Rd., was driving north on Rte. 33 at about 5:40 a.m. when he tried to turn onto the Sciota exit.

Police said the rig ran off the road onto the berm and flopped over onto its left side. Fritsch was trapped in the tractor cab for close to two hours before being freed by volunteers from the Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co.

County coroner Daniel Warner pronounced Fritsch dead at the scene. Police estimated damage to the truck at $15,000. It had been carrying wooden trusses.

Arson conviction upheld

STROUDSBURG — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has upheld the Monroe County conviction of Robert H. Sorge, a New Jersey resident, for arson in connection with the 1969 burning of Figure-tonian Health Spa near Cresco.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court denied Sorge's appeal of his conviction in a 1970 Monroe County court case.

The high court denied the appeal July 31, affirming findings by the state Superior Court and the Monroe County Court of Common Pleas.

Sorge has been at liberty on $20,000 bail. With this most recent decision, he will now have to report for incarceration to the state correctional institution at Dallas.

He had been sentenced Sept. 8, 1971 by Monroe County Judge Arlington W. Williams to spent two and a half to five years in prison and pay a $3,000 fine.

Sorge was tried during the April court term in 1970 and found guilty by a jury. Following the trial he moved for arrest of judgment which was subsequently denied Aug. 10, 1971. He was sentenced about a month later.

Asst. District Attorney Daniel Higgins said Friday the only possible legal appeal from her would be to the U.S. Supreme Court if a constitutional issue is involved.

Higgins discounted the possibility of any constitutional connection to the case.

'Mediathon' set for hospital drive

EAST STROUDSBURG — A 14-hour "Mediathon" will be held Aug. 13 by Stroudsburg radio station WVPO and Blue Ridge Cable Television for the benefit of the General Hospital of Monroe County's expansion fund drive.

Announcement of the combined effort was made Friday by Robert Hoffman, general manager of BRC-TV, and Ronald Drescher, general manager of WVPO.

The Mediathon will be broadcast live from the Crystal Room in the Penn Stroud Hilton Inn. Beginning at 10:50 a.m., the marathon broadcast won't go off the air until 2 a.m. the following morning.

Live entertainment will be provided throughout the broadcast from Pocono Mountain bands and performers.

The expansion drive began early this spring to raise money for the proposed Jordan Primary Care Wing at the hospital.

The $3.6 million project will fund expanded emergency and outpatient facilities; a modern rehabilitation department more than double its present size; a larger x-ray department and space for the location of future surgery and intensive and coronary care units.

The various phases of the drive which has solicited individuals and businesses, have grossed a total of $1,611,000 of the funds needed for the new wing.

This figure is well over the $1.3 million asked for from the community. The remainder will be borrowed by the hospital board.

The use of the Crystal Room has been donated by the Penn Stroud management.

The Penn Stroud will also serve coffee, sandwiches and other refreshments to those participating in the Mediathon.

Water firm to revise rates

Mount Pocono Bureau

MOUNT POCONO — The state Public Utility Commission has approved a rate revision for the Fairview Water Co., Mount Pocono, which will hike bills of 168 residential customers and lower rates of 111 others.

The Mount Pocono area customers now charged on the basis of fixture use, will be placed on a single flat rate of $93 a year regardless of the number of water outlets.

There are 139 metered customers not affected by the change.

George Walker, owner of the water company, said the overall net increase to the company amounts to $854.

He said the changes will offer more equitable rates and will accelerate plans to meter all customers.

There are 279 customers in the borough who are not metered. Walker could not estimate how soon these customers would be placed on meters.

Youngster struck by car

EAST STROUDSBURG — A seven-year-old girl was struck by a car Friday while she was playing on Lackawanna Avenue, East Stroudsburg.

Lisa Miller, seven, 58 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg, suffered only bruises after she was hit by a car operated by Ulysses C. Cobb, Jr., 26, 288 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, at noon, according to police.

Lisa was being chased by a playmate between homes at 70 and 72 Lackawanna Avenue. Her friend stopped at the corner, but Lisa ran into the street in front of Cobb's car, police said.

She was treated and released from the General Hospital of Monroe County.

MOUNT POCONO — A citizen's tip led to the capture of an escaped convict from North Carolina early Friday by borough and state police.

Mount Pocono Borough Police Chief Robert Hartman said a tip from an unidentified caller led police to finding James Hill, a convicted felon, holed up in a Fairview Avenue home.

According to Hartman, Hill had been serving 15-20 years for second degree murder and armed robbery in the McDowell County Prison.

He escaped July 8 and had been seen in the Mount Pocono area a couple of weeks before he was apprehended.

Hill, a Charlottesville, N.C., resident, didn't have a chance to offer police resistance, Hartman said.

He said three borough policemen and three state troopers from Fern Ridge surrounded the house before Hill's capture 5:30 a.m. Friday.

Hill was taken to Monroe County Jail, Stroudsburg, where he is waiting extradition proceedings to North Carolina.

Lancaster truck driver killed in Rte. 33 crash

SCIOTA — A 26-year-old Lancaster man was killed in the wreck of his tractor-trailer rig early Friday morning on Rte. 33 here.

State Police from the Stroudsburg barracks said Donald L. Fritsch of 1725 Wahank Rd., was driving north on Rte. 33 at about 5:40 a.m. when he tried to turn onto the Sciota exit.

Police said the rig ran off the road onto the berm and flopped over onto its left side. Fritsch was trapped in the tractor cab for close to two hours before being freed by volunteers from the Blue Ridge Hook and Ladder Co.

County coroner Daniel Warner pronounced Fritsch dead at the scene. Police estimated damage to the truck at $15,000. It had been carrying wooden trusses.

Arson conviction upheld

STROUDSBURG — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court has upheld the Monroe County conviction of Robert H. Sorge, a New Jersey resident, for arson in connection with the 1969 burning of Figure-tonian Health Spa near Cresco.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court denied Sorge's appeal of his conviction in a 1970 Monroe County court case.

The high court denied the appeal July 31, affirming findings by the state Superior Court and the Monroe County Court of Common Pleas.

Sorge has been at liberty on $20,000 bail. With this most recent decision, he will now have to report for incarceration to the state correctional institution at Dallas.

He had been sentenced Sept. 8, 1971 by Monroe County Judge Arlington W. Williams to spent two and a half to five years in prison and pay a $3,000 fine.

Sorge was tried during the April court term in 1970 and found guilty by a jury. Following the trial he moved for arrest of judgment which was subsequently denied Aug. 10, 1971. He was sentenced about a month later.

Asst. District Attorney Daniel Higgins said Friday the only possible legal appeal from her would be to the U.S. Supreme Court if a constitutional issue is involved.

Higgins discounted the possibility of any constitutional connection to the case.

'Mediathon' set for hospital drive

EAST STROUDSBURG — A 14-hour "Mediathon" will be held Aug. 13 by Stroudsburg radio station WVPO and Blue Ridge Cable Television for the benefit of the General Hospital of Monroe County's expansion fund drive.

Announcement of the combined effort was made Friday by Robert Hoffman, general manager of BRC-TV, and Ronald Drescher, general manager of WVPO.

The Mediathon will be broadcast live from the Crystal Room in the Penn Stroud Hilton Inn. Beginning at 10:50 a.m., the marathon broadcast won't go off the air until 2 a.m. the following morning.

Live entertainment will be provided throughout the broadcast from Pocono Mountain bands and performers.

The expansion drive began early this spring to raise money for the proposed Jordan Primary Care Wing at the hospital.

The $3.6 million project will fund expanded emergency and outpatient facilities; a modern rehabilitation department more than double its present size; a larger x-ray department and space for the location of future surgery and intensive and coronary care units.

The various phases of the drive which has solicited individuals and businesses, have grossed a total of $1,611,000 of the funds needed for the new wing.

This figure is well over the $1.3 million asked for from the community. The remainder will be borrowed by the hospital board.

The use of the Crystal Room has been donated by the Penn Stroud management.

The Penn Stroud will also serve coffee, sandwiches and other refreshments to those participating in the Mediathon.

Water firm to revise rates

Mount Pocono Bureau

MOUNT POCONO — The state Public Utility Commission has approved a rate revision for the Fairview Water Co., Mount Pocono, which will hike bills of 168 residential customers and lower rates of 111 others.

The Mount Pocono area customers now charged on the basis of fixture use, will be placed on a single flat rate of $93 a year regardless of the number of water outlets.

There are 139 metered customers not affected by the change.

George Walker, owner of the water company, said the overall net increase to the company amounts to $854.

He said the changes will offer more equitable rates and will accelerate plans to meter all customers.

There are 279 customers in the borough who are not metered. Walker could not estimate how soon these customers would be placed on meters.

Youngster struck by car

EAST STROUDSBURG — A seven-year-old girl was struck by a car Friday while she was playing on Lackawanna Avenue, East Stroudsburg.

Lisa Miller, seven, 58 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg, suffered only bruises after she was hit by a car operated by Ulysses C. Cobb, Jr., 26, 288 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, at noon, according to police.

Lisa was being chased by a playmate between homes at 70 and 72 Lackawanna Avenue. Her friend stopped at the corner, but Lisa ran into the street in front of Cobb's car, police said.

She was treated and released from the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Yankees continue on skids after 7-2 loss to Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — Mickey Lolich pitched a five-hitter and handed the New York Yankees their seventh loss in eight games Friday night while pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 7-2 victory before a crowd of 43,344.

Detroit, which snapped a five-game losing streak against New York with its ninth win in the last 10 games, banged out 11 hits and scored four runs in the second and three more in the fourth.

A single, a walk and an Aurelio Rodriguez' run-scoring single started the four-run fourth.

Ed Brinkman tapped a slow grounder to short after Rodriguez' single and two runs scored when Gene Michael threw the ball wildly. Tony Taylor completed the scoring with a looping single to right.

Rodriguez walked off loser Sam McDowell, 5-3, to open the fourth and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mickey Stanley after Brinkman singled. Taylor singled to drive out McDowell and Al Kaline greeted reliever Fred Beene with a run-scoring single. Willie Horton then doubled home Detroit's final run to help Lolich improve his record to 11-10.

Lolich still couldn't get out of the game without giving up his 29th home run, one for every start he's made this season. Thurman Munson hit the homer, his 14th, two outs after Bobby Murcer had been hit with a pitch to open the fifth inning.

Murcer left the game after being hit on the right arm with a pitch but the injury was not considered to be serious. He was to be taken to the hospital today for pre-cautionary x-rays.

Mays' 659th career HR helps Mets to 7-3 victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Mays' three-run homer in the seventh inning and John Milner's two-run triple in the first paced the New York Mets to a 7-3 victory Friday night over the cold-stricken St. Louis Cardinals.

Milner's triple came after Don Hahn walked and Cleon Jones singled but as Milner headed into third, he was hit in the back of the head by Ted Sizemore's relay throw. Milner had to leave the game although he only suffered a bruise and was expected back in the lineup Saturday.

Rusty Staub replaced Milner as the runner at third and scored on Jerry Grote's single to give New York a 3-0 lead.

Sizemore's run-scoring single in the third, Bernie Carbo's homer in the fourth and Ted Simmons' run-scoring single in the fifth enabled the Cards to tie the score at 3-3.

Hahn singled home the tie-breaking run in the bottom of the fifth after Ted Martinez singled and moved to second on a sacrifice by winning pitcher Jon Matlack. But it was a three-run homer by Mays, who had struck out in his two previous at-bats, that put the game out of reach in the seventh. It was only the fifth homer of the season for Mays, who is hitting .211 this year but now has 659 career homers.

Matlack picked up his eighth victory against 14 losses while scattering 10 hits. Starter Rich Folkers suffered the loss in a 4 1-3 inning stint.

St. Louis has about a dozen players suffering from either colds or flu and the team physician was flown in from St. Louis to treat the team this weekend.

Cub batterymates combine to blank Montreal, 3-0

MONTREAL (UPI) — Rick Reuschel pitched a four-hitter and batterymate Randy Hundley cracked a solo homer Friday night to spark the Chicago Cubs to a 3-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Reuschel struck out 11 and did not walk a batter in posting his 12th triumph against eight losses. Reuschel also delivered a sacrifice fly in the second inning for the Cubs' first run.

Hundley's homer, his ninth of the season, came in the eighth inning with none aboard off Steve Renko, who suffered his seventh loss against 10 victories.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the second on singles by Andre Thornton and Hundley and Reuschel's sacrifice fly. It was the first major league hit for Thornton.

Chicago made it 2-0 in the seventh when Don Kessinger walked and scored on Ron Santo's double.

Cleveland rolls past Milwaukee

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Oscar Gamble capped a four-run sixth inning with a two-run homer Friday night and added a solo homer in the ninth to spark the Cleveland Indians to a 9-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Indians snapped a 3-3 tie in the sixth when George Hendrick beat out an infield hit and took second on an infield out. Jack Brohamer was safe on shortstop Tim Johnson's error and Frank Duffy singled home Hendrick with the go-ahead run.

Brohamer scored and Buddy Bell reached first when first baseman George Scott dropped the throw on Bell's grounder, but Bell was out trying for second. Gamble followed with his 14th home run of the season.

Tom Timmerman, making his third start for Cleveland, gave up a three-run homer to Darrell Porter in the first inning and blanked the Brewers until he was chased in the eighth after giving up a single to Bob Coluccio and hitting Pedro Garcia with a pitched ball. Tom Hilgendorf came in to preserve Timmerman's fourth victory against three losses.

The Indians pushed across three runs in the fourth on a wild pitch, an infield out and Brohamer's double and added two more in the eighth on back-to-back doubles by Buddy Bell and Gamble.

Orioles tab 8-2 win to split with Bosox

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Mark Belanger cracked three hits and scored three runs and the Baltimore Orioles rallied behind the five-hit pitching of rookie Jesse Jefferson to defeat the Boston Red Sox 8-2 in the second game Friday night and salvage a split of their doubleheader.

Jefferson, who struck out nine, tamed the Red Sox for the second time this season after Luis Tiant hurled Boston to an 8-5 win in the opener with the aid of a seven-run fourth inning.

The split left the Orioles in first place in the American League East by a half game over the Detroit Tigers.

Merv Rettenmund slammed a two-run double in the second game while Tommy Davis, and Paul Blair also lashed three hits apiece in the Orioles' 17-hit attack.

Tommy Harper homered for Boston in the first inning but run-scoring singles by Davis and Powell in a two-run third inning snapped a 2-2 tie against rookie Dick Pole, who was making his major league debut.

In the opener, the Red Sox jumped on Dave McNally and reliever Bob Reynolds for six hits and three walks in the fourth inning to score seven times. Two-run singles by Rico Petrocelli and Dwight Evans highlighted the rally.

Tiant was tagged for eight hits, including a three-run blast by Earl Williams and a solo blast by Terry Crowley, but struck out 10 in notching his 14th victory against nine losses.

Reds, Astros split

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Rookie Dan Driessen paced a 16-hit attack with a single, triple and homer to lead the Cincinnati Reds to an 11-5 victory in the nightcap Friday night after the Houson Astros won the opener, 1-0, in 10 innings behind the four-hit pitching of Don Wilson.

The doubleheader attracted the largest crowd ever at Riverfront Stadium—52,285.

Pete Rose, the National League's leading hitter, also chipped in with three hits, including a bases-loaded double, in the nightcap as the Reds rapped up a victory for reliever Pedro Borbon with a seven-run splurge in the seventh inning.

In winning the second game, the Reds overcame a four-run lead the Astros took in the first inning when Doug Rader capped the uprising with a homer with two aboard off starter Roger Nelson.

The Reds trailed 5-2 when Joe Morgan and Driessen hit consecutive home runs in the third inning.

Driessen's single, his third hit of the game, touched off the seven-run rally in the seventh inning when the Reds rapped four Astro pitchers for six hits, the last of them Rose's bases-loaded double.

Darrell Chaney's throwing error on Tommie Agee's grounder, Roger Metzger's single and Cesar Cedeno's sacrifice fly gave the Astros their winning run in the 10th inning of the first game and provided Wilson with his seventh victory against 12 losses.

Until the 10th, Gary Nolan and Pedro Borbon teamed up to blank the Astros on three hits.

Northwest faces Senior LL final

STROUDSBURG — Northwest of Bethlehem, representing District 20, will clash with Sharon, Ohio, today at 1 p.m. at Pocono Mountain High School in a doubleheader to determine the state champion in the Senior Little League playoffs.

The best-two-of-three series will conclude with a single game Sunday, also at 1 p.m., if a split occurs today.

U.S. captures 'Davis' opener

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Tom Gorman gave the United States a 1-0 lead over Chile in the opening match of the Davis Cup American zone finals Friday, but his marathon match with Jamie Fillol took so long that the scheduled second match was suspended by darkness.

The postponed match between American ace Stan Smith and Chile's Pat Cornejo stood even at one set apiece with the third set deadlocked at 3-3 when it was stopped.

Gorman took an even four hours to dispose of Fillol, 17-15, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. The first set alone took three hours and five minutes and was one of the three longest sets in challenge round cometition that began in 1900.

Two other sets have been extended to 17-15 in the history of the Davis Cup, once in 1914 and again in 1923.

Neither Gorman nor Fillol was able to break service in the first set until Gorman did it in the 32nd and deciding game. Gorman ran up a 40-0 lead in that game and had three set points.

Fillol saved two of them, but lost the third and the set with it.

"I didn't think it was over until I finally lost service," said Fillol later.

Fillol appeared the more tired of the two in the final set and admitted it later.

In the suspended match, Cornejo surprised Smith with a 9-7 victory in the opening set. Smith quickly took the second set, 6-2, and the third set was tied when it was suspended.

Play will resume from that point today and following completion of the Smith-Cornejo match the doubles competition will be held. Two more singles matches will be played Sunday.

The winner of the zone finals will next meet the winner of the Romania-Russia zone matches. Romania and Russia each won a match in that series Friday.

Bengals face test of Dolphins

WILMINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — The way Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson looks at it, Saturday night's opening pre-season game against the Miami Dolphins is the first big test to see if he keeps his starting job.

"I can't afford to let down, pre-season or not," said Anderson as he and the Bengals prepared to depart for Miami Friday. "Virgil Carter is fighting to be the No. 1 quarterback.

"Remember it was in last year's exhibition games that I won the starting job. I want to be the starter this season and the only way I can do it is to look better than Virg in the pre-season games."

Both Anderson, the third year pro out of tiny Augustana (Ill.) College, and Carter, a six-year veteran from Brigham Young, have looked extremely sharp in the first three weeks of training here. Coach Paul Brown gives a slight edge to Anderson.

"I think the competition with Virg is good for both of us and for the team," Anderson said. "It makes both of us work harder and as a result, we're sharper and the team is better."

Despite the competition, the coaches have let Anderson know he's currently the No. 1 quarterback and the result has been a much more confident Anderson at training camp.

Unlike two years ago when Anderson was a raw rookie from a small college and worried about being cut, the 24-year-old is easy-going and sure of himself this year.

Bucs take 3-1 win from Phils

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Willie Stargell belted a two-run homer and Manny Sanguillen added a solo shot Friday night to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

John Morlan, a 25-year-old just called up from Charleston, picked up the victory, his first in the major leagues, with relief help from Ramon Hernandez. Steve Carlton, 10-12, suffered the loss.

Stargell hit his 32nd home run of the season, following a triple by Al Oliver in the first inning, and Sanguillen opened the sixth with his 11th homer of the year.

The Phillies scored in the sixth when Willie Montanez singled with two outs and scored on Greg Luzinski's double to right.

Yankees continue on skids after 7-2 loss to Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — Mickey Lolich pitched a five-hitter and handed the New York Yankees their seventh loss in eight games Friday night while pitching the Detroit Tigers to a 7-2 victory before a crowd of 43,344.

Detroit, which snapped a five-game losing streak against New York with its ninth win in the last 10 games, banged out 11 hits and scored four runs in the second and three more in the fourth.

A single, a walk and an Aurelio Rodriguez' run-scoring single started the four-run fourth.

Ed Brinkman tapped a slow grounder to short after Rodriguez' single and two runs scored when Gene Michael threw the ball wildly. Tony Taylor completed the scoring with a looping single to right.

Rodriguez walked off loser Sam McDowell, 5-3, to open the fourth and scored on a sacrifice fly by Mickey Stanley after Brinkman singled. Taylor singled to drive out McDowell and Al Kaline greeted reliever Fred Beene with a run-scoring single. Willie Horton then doubled home Detroit's final run to help Lolich improve his record to 11-10.

Lolich still couldn't get out of the game without giving up his 29th home run, one for every start he's made this season. Thurman Munson hit the homer, his 14th, two outs after Bobby Murcer had been hit with a pitch to open the fifth inning.

Murcer left the game after being hit on the right arm with a pitch but the injury was not considered to be serious. He was to be taken to the hospital today for pre-cautionary x-rays.

Mays' 659th career HR helps Mets to 7-3 victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Willie Mays' three-run homer in the seventh inning and John Milner's two-run triple in the first paced the New York Mets to a 7-3 victory Friday night over the cold-stricken St. Louis Cardinals.

Milner's triple came after Don Hahn walked and Cleon Jones singled but as Milner headed into third, he was hit in the back of the head by Ted Sizemore's relay throw. Milner had to leave the game although he only suffered a bruise and was expected back in the lineup Saturday.

Rusty Staub replaced Milner as the runner at third and scored on Jerry Grote's single to give New York a 3-0 lead.

Sizemore's run-scoring single in the third, Bernie Carbo's homer in the fourth and Ted Simmons' run-scoring single in the fifth enabled the Cards to tie the score at 3-3.

Hahn singled home the tie-breaking run in the bottom of the fifth after Ted Martinez singled and moved to second on a sacrifice by winning pitcher Jon Matlack. But it was a three-run homer by Mays, who had struck out in his two previous at-bats, that put the game out of reach in the seventh. It was only the fifth homer of the season for Mays, who is hitting .211 this year but now has 659 career homers.

Matlack picked up his eighth victory against 14 losses while scattering 10 hits. Starter Rich Folkers suffered the loss in a 4 1-3 inning stint.

St. Louis has about a dozen players suffering from either colds or flu and the team physician was flown in from St. Louis to treat the team this weekend.

Cub batterymates combine to blank Montreal, 3-0

MONTREAL (UPI) — Rick Reuschel pitched a four-hitter and batterymate Randy Hundley cracked a solo homer Friday night to spark the Chicago Cubs to a 3-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Reuschel struck out 11 and did not walk a batter in posting his 12th triumph against eight losses. Reuschel also delivered a sacrifice fly in the second inning for the Cubs' first run.

Hundley's homer, his ninth of the season, came in the eighth inning with none aboard off Steve Renko, who suffered his seventh loss against 10 victories.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the second on singles by Andre Thornton and Hundley and Reuschel's sacrifice fly. It was the first major league hit for Thornton.

Chicago made it 2-0 in the seventh when Don Kessinger walked and scored on Ron Santo's double.

Cleveland rolls past Milwaukee

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Oscar Gamble capped a four-run sixth inning with a two-run homer Friday night and added a solo-homer in the ninth to spark the Cleveland Indians to a 9-4 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Indians snapped a 3-3 tie in the sixth when George Hendrick beat out an infield hit and took second on an infield out. Jack Brohamer was safe on shorstop Tim Johnson's error and Frank Duffy singled home Hendrick with the go-ahead run.

Brohamer scored and Buddy Bell reached first when first baseman George Scott dropped the throw on Bell's grounder, but Bell was out trying for second. Gamble followed with his 14th home run of the season.

Tom Timmerman, making his third start for Cleveland, gave up a three-run homer to Darrell Porter in the first inning and blanked the Brewers until he was chased in the eighth after giving up a single to Bob Coluccio and hitting Pedro Garcia with a pitched ball. Tom Hilgendorf came in to preserve Timmerman's fourth victory against three losses.

The Indians pushed across three runs in the fourth on a wild pitch, an infield out and Brohamer's double and added two more in the eighth on back-to-back doubles by Buddy Bell and Gamble.

Orioles tab 8-2 win to split with Bosox

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Mark Belanger cracked three hits and scored three runs and the Baltimore Orioles rallied behind the five-hit pitching of rookie Jesse Jefferson to defeat the Boston Red Sox 8-2 in the second game Friday night and salvage a split of their doubleheader.

Jefferson, who struck out nine, tamed the Red Sox for the second time this season after Luis Tiant hurled Boston to an 8-5 win in the opener with the aid of a seven-run fourth inning.

The split left the Orioles in first place in the American League East by a half game over the Detroit Tigers.

Merv Rettennund slammed a two-run double in the second game while Tommy Davis, and Paul Blair also lashed three hits apiece in the Orioles' 17-hit attack.

Tommy Harper homered for Boston in the first inning but run-scoring singles by Davis and Powell in a two—run third inning snapped a 2-2 tie against rookie Dick Pole, who was making his major league debut.

In the opener, the Red Sox jumped on Dave McNally and reliever Bob Reynolds for six hits and three walks in the fourth inning to score seven times. Two-run singles by Rico Petrocelli and Dwight Evans highlighted the rally.

Tiant was tagged for eight hits, including a three-run blast by Earl Williams and a solo blast by Terry Crowley, but struck out 10 in notching his 14th victory against nine losses.

Reds, Astros split

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Rookie Dan Driessen paced a 16-hit attack with a single, triple and homer to lead the Cincinnati Reds to an 11-5 victory in the nightcap Friday night after the Houson Astros won the opener, 1-0, in 10 innings behind the four-hit pitching of Don Wilson.

The doubleheader attracted the largest crowd ever at Riverfront Stadium—52,285.

Pete Rose, the National League's leading hitter, also chipped in with three hits, including a bases-loaded double, in the nightcap as the Reds rapped up a victory for reliever Pedro Borbon with a seven-run splurge in the seventh inning.

In winning the second game, the Reds overcame a four-run lead the Astros took in the first inning when Doug Rader capped the uprising with a homer with two aboard off starter Roger Nelson.

The Reds trailed 5-2 when Joe Morgan and Driessen hit consecutive home runs in the third inning.

Driessen's single, his third hit of the game, touched off the seven-run rally in the seventh inning when the Reds rapped four Astro pitchers for six hits, the last of them Rose's bases-loaded double.

Darrell Chaney's throwing error on Tommie Agee's grounder, Roger Metzger's single and Cesar Cedeno's sacrifice fly gave the Astros their winning run in the 10th inning of the first game and provided Wilson with his seventh victory against 12 losses.

Until the 10th, Gary Nolan and Pedro Borbon teamed up to blank the Astros on three hits.

U.S. captures 'Davis' opener

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Tom Gorman gave the United States a 1-0 lead over Chile in the opening match of the Davis Cup American zone finals Friday, but his marathon match with Jamie Fillol took so long that the scheduled second match was suspended by darkness.

The postponed match between American ace Stan Smith and Chile's Pat Cornejo stood even at one set apiece with the third set deadlocked at 3-3 when it was stopped.

Gorman took an even four hours to dispose of Fillol, 17-15, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. The first set alone took three hours and five minutes and was one of the three longest sets in challenge round cometition that began in 1900.

Two other sets have been extended to 17-15 in the history of the Davis Cup, once in 1914 and again in 1923.

Neither Gorman nor Fillol was able to break service in the first set until Gorman did it in the 32nd and deciding game. Gorman ran up a 40-0 lead in that game and had three set points.

Fillol saved two of them, but lost the third and the set with it.

"I didn't think it was over until I finally lost service," said Fillol later.

Fillol appeared the more tired of the two in the final set and admitted it later.

In the suspended match, Cornejo surprised Smith with a 9-7 victory in the opening set. Smith quickly took the second set, 6-2, and the third set was tied when it was suspended.

Play will resume from that point today and following completion of the Smith-Cornejo match the doubles competition will be held. Two more singles matches will be played Sunday.

The winner of the zone finals will next meet the winner of the Romania-Russia zone matches. Romania and Russia each won a match in that series Friday.

Bengals face test of Dolphins

WILMINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — The way Cincinnati Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson looks at it, Saturday night's opening pre-season game against the Miami Dolphins is the first big test to see if he keeps his starting job.

"I can't afford to let down, pre-season or not," said Anderson as he and the Bengals prepared to depart for Miami Friday. "Virgil Carter is fighting to be the No. 1 quarterback.

"Remember it was in last year's exhibition games that I won the starting job. I want to be the starter this season and the only way I can do it is to look better than Virg in the pre-season games."

Both Anderson, the third year pro out of tiny Augustana (Ill.) College, and Carter, a six-year veteran from Brigham Young, have looked extremely sharp in the first three weeks of training here. Coach Paul Brown gives a slight edge to Anderson.

"I think the competition with Virg is good for both of us and for the team," Anderson said. "It makes both of us work harder and as a result, we're sharper and the team is better."

Despite the competition, the coaches have let Anderson know he's currently the No. 1 quarterback and the result has been a much more confident Anderson at training camp.

Unlike two years ago when Anderson was a raw rookie from a small college and worried about being cut, the 24-year-old is easy-going and sure of himself this year.

Evans' hit gives Braves 5-4 victory

ATLANTA (UPI) — Darrell Evans stroked a one-out single into short rightfield with the bases loaded in the bottom of the ninth inning Friday night to drive in the winning run and give the Atlanta Braves a 5-4 victory over the San Diego Padres.

With one out, pinch-hitter Dick Dietz walked and pinch-runner Roric Harrison scrambled to third on Ralph Garr's single. Braves' slugger Henry Aaron came in as a pinch-hitter and was walked. Atlanta manager Eddie Matthews then put in Chuck Coggin as a pinch-runner for Harrison, who is a pitcher, and it was Coggin who scored the winning run on Evans' short single.

Max Leon pitched two scoreless innings to win his first game of the year against two losses. The loser, in relief for San Diego, was Mike Caldwell.

Bucs take 3-1 win from Phils

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Willie Stargell belted a two-run homer and Manny Sanguillen added a solo shot Friday night to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 3-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

John Morlan, a 25-year-old just called up from Charleston, picked up the victory, his first in the major leagues, with relief help from Ramon Hernandez. Steve Carlton, 10-12, suffered the loss.

Stargell hit his 32nd home run of the season, following a triple by Al Oliver in the first inning, and Sanguillen opened the sixth with his 11th homer of the year.

The Phillies scored in the sixth when Willie Montanez singled with two outs and scored on Greg Luzinski's double to right.

Rentzel's injunction is denied

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A request by suspended Los Angeles Rams receiver Lance Rentzel for a temporary restraining order against the National Football League was denied Friday by a federal judge.

The Rams opened their exhibition season Friday night in the Coliseum here against the Dallas Cowboys.

Rentzel, suspended July 20 because of a marijuana conviction, filed a civil suit Thursday against the NFL and its commissioner, Pete Rozelle, charging violation of his contract.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles H. Carr denied the restraining order in a session in his chambers and set Aug. 15 for further arguments for an injunction against the suspension.

Rentzel, 29, was fined $2,000 and sentenced to 90 days in jail last May for possession of marijuana. An appeal of the conviction is pending.

Fourth Flight: 9:47, E. Mesko Jr. vs. L. Evans, M. Berman vs. L. Abeloff; 9:54, S. Stalmer vs. S. Balcik and E. Stockwell vs. B. Schleman.

Speaking of Glen Brook, the regular Thursday tournament of the Women's Golf Assn., rained out this week, will be played Tuesday, with the same foursomes intact. Tuesday is also the deadline for signing up for the championship tournament.

We again took a shot at Fernwood's golf course Friday and while the results weren't as good as the first shot, the scores weren't really that bad, although they'll go unrevealed.

The course is in fine shape and you really have to rely on accuracy to score well. The front nine is the newer nine on the 18-hole layout, but the entire course is in fine shape and provides a test for a golfer, since you have to hit just about every club in your bag to score well.

Driving accuracy is a must if you are to score well. A foot or so off line and you could have a tree hindering your open sight of the green, which are rich and full, even on the young front nine. As of last week, the course record was 74, two shots over par, so you can see the course is no cakewalk.

Hot round his Tom eight-under

Weiskopf (64) leads Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf, playing so brilliantly lately he hardly needs any help, got a "lucky" break anyway Friday, shot an eight under par 64, and grabbed a three-stroke first round lead in the $240,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

Weiskopf, winner of five of his last eight starts including the British and Canadian Opens, had only a one stroke lead when he went to the 17th hole, pushed his drive into the right rough and appeared headed for a bogey which would have dropped him into a tie.

He miss-hit his second shot, but the ball somehow slithered through a small opening between branches of a tree and rolled up on the green 16 feet from the hole. He made the putt for a birdie.

"It was probably the luckiest three I've ever made in my life," admitted Weiskopf, whose eight tournament streak has earned him $184,805 without a finish lower than fifth place. "We didn't know where the ball went. How it ever got on the green I'll never know."

Weiskopf then reached the green at the 509-yard 18th hole in two shots, and two putted for a final birdie.

His round included four other birdies and an eagle at the 505-yard ninth where he hit a three wood from 240 yards out to within eight feet of the hole and sank the putt for a three. He missed only two greens all day.

The group at five-under par 67 included Bruce Crampton, the tour's top money winner this year, 1961 PGA champion Jerry Barber, who hasn't won a cent on the tour in two years, Gibby Gilbert, Bob Murphy, DeWitt Weaver and Jim Wiechers.

More than half the field of 147 broke par and about two dozen more were at 72 on a day that Crampton called "ideal" for scoring because most of the tee markers were up front and winter rules were in effect on all but five fairways on the rain-drenched course.

More than three inches of rain fell Thursday, when the first round originally was scheduled but was called off.

Four deadlocked after 69s in ladies' Pabst Classic

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Leading money winner Judy Rankin shot a three-under-par 69 Friday to share the first round lead of the $35,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association Pabst Classic with young Laura Baugh, Donna Young and Merle Breer.

One shot behind at 70 was Jan Ferraris, while Carol Mann and Beth Stone each were at 71. Debbie Austin, Robyn Dummett, Clifford Ann Creed and Pam Higgins were at even par 72.

Mrs. Rankin, starting on the back side at the 6,500-yard Riviera Country Club course, got off to a fast start with a birdie on the 10th hole. She lost that stroke, however, when she bogeyed the par 4 11th hole and could have had more trouble on the 12th when she hit into a bunker.

She got in two for her par, however, and said "that really cheered me up."

Mrs. Rankin's other birdies came on the 15th with a 15-foot putt, on the 4th with a 25-footer and on the 7th with a 15-footer.

Miss Baugh, who has become somewhat of a sensation in only five weeks on the tour, was four-under-par after 17 holes, but hit her drive on 18 into a bunker, and had to settle for a bogey.

The 18-year-old Miss Baugh, who held the lead after the first round in her professional debut at Atlanta, Ga., said she "felt like I hit the ball real good."

Miss Baugh birdied the first hole with a seven-foot putt and said she felt then that she would play well.

"I played the first hole real well," she said. "And that's unusual for me. I usually don't start very well. When I do, I usually have a good day."

Mrs. Breer, with her ever-present thermos bottle of milk, had a 34 on the back side (considered the toughest of the two) with birdies on the 10th, 12th and 18th holes and a lone bogey on the 14th when she three-putted from 30 feet.

Mrs. Breer took 32 putts during the round which she said was "pretty good for me the way I've been putting."

Mrs. Young, who won the last tournament (Louisville, Ky.) in which she was a co-leader at the end of the first round, also started on the back side with a birdie on No. 10, and made the turn in 34, getting another birdie on the 16th but a bogey on the 17th.

"I would like to blow up that hole," she said.

Stewart sets mark

ADENAU, Germany (UPI) — Scotsman Jackie Stewart today set an unofficial Nurburgring lap record in practice for Sunday's German Grand Prix, speeding his Tyrrell Ford around the 14.3 mile track in 7:07.8 minutes.

Stewart's best practice time, for an average speed of 119.3 miles per hour was almost six seconds below the official lap record of 7:13.6 minutes held by Belgium's Jacky Ickx, and made the flying Scot a hot favorate to win Sunday's Formula One race.

It is the 11th counting toward the World Drivers Championship.

Official record times, however, are only validated when achieved in the race itself.

Ronnie Peterson of Sweden clocked second fastest in a Lotus Ford with 7:08.3 minutes, followed by Francois Cevert of France in the second Tyrrell Ford with 7:09.3.

Ickx, who left Ferrari earlier this week, lived up to his reputation as one of the masters of this difficult mountain course by taking the fourth fastest time in 7:09.7 in a McLaren Ford.

But the Belgian met his familiar bad luck on the fifth practice lap when a blown engine sidetracked him. He was testing the new car for the first time.

World champion Emerson Fittibaldi of Brazil, still limping from a crash at Zandvoort last week, clocked 7:19.7 minutes to take 12th place in the 23—car field. Fittipaldi was driving his John Player Special Lotus, the same one he crashed during practice runs for the Dutch Grand Prix. He injured both of his feet.

Riggs says Mrs. King has some advantage

HOUSTON (UPI) — Bobby Riggs always has maintained he can beat any woman tennis player but Friday he conceded a five-set match will be to Billie Jean King's advantage when they clash Sept. 20 in a $100,000 winner-take-all game at the Astrodome.

"She pulled the first trick," Riggs said of the Wimbledon champion. "She is one up on me. She wants to wear me down. I have no choice but to go along with it.

"She's 29 and at the peak of her physical powers. Here I am a 55-year-old man with one foot in the grave."

The Riggs-King match will be nationally televised and will be Riggs' second against a leading woman. He allowed Australia's Margaret Smith only three games when they met May 13 in California for a $10,000 stake.

The irrepressive Riggs hardly stopped talking and promoting himself during a 45-minute news conference.

Rentzel's injunction is denied

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A request by suspended Los Angeles Rams receiver Lance Rentzel for a temporary restraining order against the National Football League was denied Friday by a federal judge.

The Rams opened their exhibition season Friday night in the Coliseum here against the Dallas Cowboys.

Rentzel, suspended July 20 because of a marijuana conviction, filed a civil suit Thursday against the NFL and its commissioner, Pete Rozelle, charging violation of his contract.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles H. Carr denied the restraining order in a session in his chambers and set Aug. 13 for further arguments for an injunction against the suspension.

Rentzel, 29, was fined $2,000 and sentenced to 90 days in jail last May for possession of marijuana. An appeal of the conviction is pending.

We again took a shot at Fernwood's golf course Friday and while the results weren't as good as the first shot, the scores weren't really that bad, although they'll go unrevealed.

The course is in fine shape and you really have to rely on accuracy to score well. The front nine is the newer nine on the 18-hole layout, but the entire course is in fine shape and provides a test for a golfer, since you have to hit just about every club in your bag to score well.

Driving accuracy is a must if you are to score well. A foot or so off line and you could have a tree hindering your open sight of the green, which are rich and full, even on the young front nine. As of last week, the course record was 74, two shots over par, so you can see the course is no cakewalk.

Hot round his Tom eight-under

Weiskopf (64) leads Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf, playing so brilliantly lately he hardly needs any help, got a "lucky" break anyway Friday, shot an eight under par 64, and grabbed a three-stroke first round lead in the $240,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

Weiskopf, winner of five of his last eight starts including the British and Canadian Opens, had only a one stroke lead when he went to the 17th hole, pushed his drive into the right rough and appeared headed for a bogey which would have dropped him into a tie.

He miss-hit his second shot, but the ball somehow slithered through a small opening between branches of a tree and rolled up on the green 16 feet from the hole. He made the putt for a birdie.

"It was probably the luckiest three I've ever made in my life," admitted Weiskopf, whose eight tournament streak has earned him $184,805 without a finish lower than fifth place. "We didn't know where the ball went. How it ever got on the green I'll never know."

Weiskopf then reached the green at the 509-yard 18th hole in two shots, and two putted for a final birdie.

His round included four other birdies and an eagle at the 505-yard ninth where he hit a three wood from 240 yards out to within eight feet of the hole and sank the putt for a three. He missed only two greens all day.

The group at five-under par 67 included Bruce Crampton, the tour's top money winner this year, 1961 PGA champion Jerry Barber, who hasn't won a cent on the tour in two years, Gibby Gilbert, Bob Murphy, DeWitt Weaver and Jim Wiechers.

More than half the field of 147 broke par and about two dozen more were at 72 on a day that Crampton called "ideal" for scoring because most of the tee markers were up front and winter rules were in effect on all but five fairways on the rain-drenched course.

More than three inches of rain fell Thursday, when the first round originally was scheduled but was called off.

Four deadlocked after 69s in ladies' Pabst Classic

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Leading money winner Judy Rankin shot a three-under-par 69 Friday to share the first round lead of the $35,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association Pabst Classic with young Laura Baugh, Donna Young and Merle Breer.

One shot behind at 70 was Jan Ferraris, while Carol Mann and Beth Stone each were at 71. Debbie Austin, Robyn Dummett, Clifford Ann Creed and Pam Higgins were at even par 72.

Mrs. Rankin, starting on the back side at the 6,500-yard Riviera Country Club course, got off to a fast start with a birdie on the 10th hole. She lost that stroke, however, when she bogeyed the par 4 11th hole and could have had more trouble on the 12th when she hit into a bunker.

She got in two for her par, however, and said "that really cheered me up."

Mrs. Rankin's other birdies came on the 15th with a 15-foot putt, on the 4th with a 25-footer and on the 7th with a 15-footer.

Miss Baugh, who has become somewhat of a sensation in only five weeks on the tour, was four-under-par after 17 holes, but hit her drive on 18 into a bunker, and had to settle for a bogey.

The 18-year-old Miss Baugh, who held the lead after the first round in her professional debut at Atlanta, Ga., said she "felt like I hit the ball real good."

Miss Baugh birdied the first hole with a seven-foot putt and said she felt then that she would play well.

"I played the first hole real well," she said. "And that's unusual for me. I usually don't start very well. When I do, I usually have a good day."

Mrs. Breer, with her ever-present thermos bottle of milk, had a 34 on the back side (considered the toughest of the two) with birdies on the 10th, 12th and 18th holes and a lone bogey on the 14th when she three-putted from 30 feet.

Mrs. Breer took 32 putts during the round which she said was "pretty good for me the way I've been putting."

Mrs. Young, who won the last tournament (Louisville, Ky.) in which she was a co-leader at the end of the first round, also started on the back side with a birdie on No. 10. and made the turn in 34, getting another birdie on the 16th but a bogey on the 17th.

"I would like to blow up that hole," she said.

Riggs says Mrs. King has some advantage

HOUSTON (UPI) — Bobby Riggs always has maintained he can beat any woman tennis player but Friday he conceded a five-set match will be to Billie Jean King's advantage when they clash Sept. 20 in a $100,000 winner-take-all game at the Astrodome.

"She pulled the first trick," Riggs said of the Wimbledon champion. "She is one up on me. She wants to wear me down. I have no choice but to go along with it.

"She's 29 and at the peak of her physical powers. Here I am a 55-year-old man with one foot in the grave."

The Riggs-King match will be nationally televised and will be Riggs' second against a leading woman. He allowed Australia's Margaret Smith only three games when they met May 13 in California for a $10,000 stake.

The irrepressive Riggs hardly stopped talking and promoting himself during a 45-minute news conference.

Jackie Stewart

Stewart sets mark

ADENAU, Germany (UPI) — Scotsman Jackie Stewart today set an unofficial Nurburgring lap record in practice for Sunday's German Grand Prix, speeding his Tyrrell Ford around the 14.3 mile track in 7:07.8 minutes.

Stewart's best practice time, for an average speed of 119.3 miles per hour was almost six seconds below the official lap record of 7:13.6 minutes held by Belgium's Jacky Ickx, and made the flying Scot a hot favorate to win Sunday's Formula One race.

It is the 11th counting toward the World Drivers Championship.

Official record times, however, are only validated when achieved in the race itself.

Ronnie Peterson of Sweden clocked second fastest in a Lotus Ford with 7:08.3 minutes, followed by Francois Cevert of France in the second Tyrrell Ford with 7:09.3.

Ickx, who left Ferrari earlier this week, lived up to his reputation as one of the masters of this difficult mountain course by taking the fourth fastest time in 7:09.7 in a McLaren Ford.

But the Belgian met his familiar bad luck on the fifth practice lap when a blown engine sidetracked him. He was testing the new car for the first time.

World champion Emerson Fittibaldi of Brazil, still limping from a crash at Zandvoort last week, clocked 7:19.7 minutes to take 12th place in the 23—car field. Fittipaldi was driving his John Player Special Lotus, the same one he crashed during practice runs for the Dutch Grand Prix. He injured both of his feet.

Pleasant Valley sets physicals

BRODHEADSVILLE — The schedule of physical examinations for fall sports candidates at Pleasant Valley High School has been announced.

It is: varsity and junior varsity football, 6:30 p.m. Aug. 14. Field hockey and cheerleaders, 6:30 p.m. Aug. 15. Exams for seventh and eighth grade football candidates will be given during the first week of school.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Having visited more than 35 countries, we're more than passing conscious of hotels, and for too many pre-married years we'd lived in some version of furnished rooms, from tiny bath-down-the-halls to the suites of our financial majority, we have taken serious note of the great hotels of the world we've touched. Most New Yorkers know little about Manhattan hotels simply because they have little reason to patronize hotels except on holiday or on business. They are more conscious of the Ritz, Plaza Athenee, Bristol in Paris than the exquisitely comparable St. Regis, Drake, Regency, Algonquin, Sherry-Netherland or Pierre in New York. The Dorchester, Churchill, Savoy, Claridge's in London, the Peninsula in Hong Kong, are familiar turf to Manhattanites who never have been inside the Americana, Warwick, Summit on the local ground.

Over the years our familiarity with the world's hotels has led us to keep fairly well up on New York hotels, if only to dash off this salute to the Manhattan hotels for the benefit of readers visiting our beat on annual vacations.

First off, many of our favorites are the top hotels; we went through the cheap hotels in our youth and found little to recommend except price and cleanliness. There are hundreds of hotels in New York's five boroughs about which we couldn't possibly know more than a fraction. The New York Convention and Tourist Bureau, a most estimable organization, does package in a handy folder more than 100 of the better hotels in assorted price ranges, and we suggest that anyone not seeing taste-to-taste with our list simply write the bureau at 90 East 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10017 and ask for its "Hotels in New York City" list. It's phone number is (area code 212) 687-1300.

Now for our favorites: The St. Regis, at 5th Ave. and 55th St. has taken over the title of Finest in New York. Its ambience, luxurious and traditional in the European style, is superb, its restaurants admirable, notably the King Cole Room run with exquisite diplomacy by the admirable Mr. Bert, finest headwaiter in town.

The Regency on Park Ave. at 61st St. while comparatively new has attracted the respect and custom of many a continentally-inclined visitor. It steesses its "civilized" amenities for the simple reason it has them.

The Westbury on Madison Ave. at 69th St. is (like the Carlyle) seemingly off the mid-town-beaten-path, but it is one of the most comfortable hotels in town, its restaurant unlike most hotels a gathering place for the richer dowagers who lunch in their own chic neighborhood.

Ann Landers

Golden silence

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about the lady who hasn't spoken to her sister in eight months. When this lady was in the hospital, her husband tried to get intimate with her sister, and Sis, of course, told her about it. Some people have big mouths, don't they?

Thirty years ago, when I was 17, my sister's husband informed me that every young girl should have an experienced teacher to acquaint her with "the facts of life." He offered his services. I told him he was out of his mind and that if he ever suggested such a thing again I'd clobber him. He kept his distance from that day forward.

Now, 20 years later, my husband and I, my sister and her husband are good friends and we enjoy one another's company. I never referred to that ugly incident again but I'm sure he hasn't forgotten it. I know, too, that he is deeply grateful to me for not having run to his wife with the story.

I always wondered why my father's family never got along. It wasn't till later that I learned my aunt was in the same spot when she was young. She told her sister and created a rift in the family that never healed.

There's a moral here. Please put it in a nutshell, Ann.

Spanking insult

By Jean Adams

PADDLED: (Q.) Today was the last straw. I was sunbathing in the back yard and I had my bikini strap down so my chest and neck wouldn't have a white line.

My grandmother (I live with her) came out with her paddle, said I looked like a tramp, took me over her knee and spanked me right there. She gave the neighbors quite a show.

She believes in spanking. I have been living with her since my parents moved abroad four years ago. I am 19 now and she paddles me just as often as she did when I was 15.

My parents, our minister and everyone else I talk to about it say the same thing. They think "old-fashioned discipline" is good for me. What can I do? I haven't got the money to leave.

Red Bottom in Alabama

(A.) You could spend part of your sunbathing time looking for a job. You are old enough to be on your own. Or you could go away to college and grow up some more. If your parents can afford to live abroad they can probably afford to send you to college.

While you are working on your future, take your grandmother on a pool or beach tour so that she can see that bikinis with the straps down are acceptable in today's sun-loving society.

SOUTH

♣ A K 9 8 5 4 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	1♠	3♣	Pass
3♥	Pass	3♠	Pass

Opening lead — queen of spades.

When declarer has a long suit to run, it is sometimes possible for him to accomplish what appears to be impossible. Here is a case of this sort.

South is in six clubs — if you look at all four hands — it would seem that he must go down one. Apparently the best he can do is discard a heart on one of dummy's high spades and later lose two diamonds, or discard a diamond and later lose a heart and a diamond.

However, South can make the slam, despite the dim outlook, if he plays his cards right. He should assume that West, for his overcall, has the ace of diamonds and gear his play to that assumption.

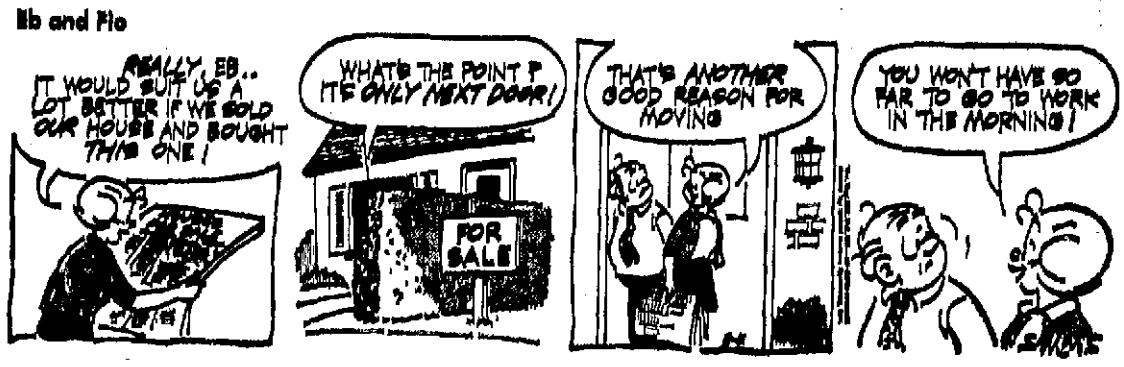

Accordingly, he wins the opening lead with the king of spades, plays the Q-J of trumps, cashes the ace of spades, discarding a heart, and plays four more rounds of trumps to produce this position:

	♠ 2 ♥ K 9 4 ♦ 9
♥ Q J 8 ♦ A 10	N W E S	♠ 9 ♥ 10 7 ♦ Q J
	♥ A 3 ♦ K 8 ♣ 8

Now South plays his last trump and West, who cannot spare a heart, discards a diamond as dummy discards a spade. Declarer thereupon leads the eight of diamonds to West's ace and in that way brings home the slam.

For this method of play to succeed, declarer must find West with five or more hearts, but since it is South's only chance he should assume that West has that holding.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle

Contract Bridge

B. Jay Becker

Impossible

South double.

NORTH
♠ A K 2
♥ K 9 4
♦ 9 5 3

WEST
♠ Q J 10 8 3
♥ Q J 8 6 5
♦ A 10 2

EAST
♠ 9 6 5 4
♥ 10 7
♦ Q J 7 6 4
♣ 6 3

SOUTH
♠ 7
♥ A 3 2
♦ K 8
♣ A K 9 8 5 4 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♠	3♣	Pass
3♥	Pass	3♠	Pass

Opening lead — queen of spades.

When declarer has a long suit to run, it is sometimes possible for him to accomplish what appears to be impossible. Here is a case of this sort.

South is in six clubs — if you look at all four hands — it would seem that he must go down one. Apparently the best he can do is discard a heart on one of dummy's high spades and later lose two diamonds, or discard a diamond and later lose a heart and a diamond.

However, South can make the slam, despite the dim outlook, if he plays his cards right. He should assume that West, for his overcall, has the ace of diamonds and gear his play to that assumption.

Accordingly, he wins the opening lead with the king of spades, plays the Q-J of trumps, cashes the ace of spades, discarding a heart, and plays four more rounds of trumps to produce this position:

Now South plays his last trump and West, who cannot spare a heart, discards a diamond as dummy discards a spade. Declarer thereupon leads the eight of diamonds to West's ace and in that way brings home the slam.

For this method of play to succeed, declarer must find West with five or more hearts, but since it is South's only chance he should assume that West has that holding.

PRESENTS

GRAND OPENING

THE LAFAYETTE

SATURDAY, AUG. 4th & SUNDAY, AUG. 5th

Another first by TITAN, "For Today's Living". Original ideas and techniques have been carried into this two story Colonial, featuring a new concept in bath-rooms, a new European accentuated bathroom, the room where ultra-elegance is always accepted.

It features a two part bath enhanced with gilded carved mirrors and slate grained counter tops on both his and her vanities in provincial cabinets. We have also added the ultimate in personal feminine hygiene, the bidet, long familiar in Europe and now presented for your convenience.

This example of elegance is carried thru out the entire home, which includes a formal dining room, family room and flagstone foyer.

A - for "Today's people" - the home you cannot afford to miss.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Well, that's the first time I've ever had to park on the roof of the parking garage so I guess Sidewalk Days are really moving along.

It's also the first time some of the shopkeepers along Main Street have been subjected to amplified, electrified and new - rockified music but they were adjusting. Didn't seem nearly as loud on Friday as it did on Thursday night, they confessed.

Speaking of first times for things, yesterday was the first time I've had notice of a church supper being canceled because of the price of food. Over the years the price of suppers has risen, from 50 cents to a dollar to dollar and a half, to two as the cost of the main meat dish has risen.

But the dinners still were generally bargains because everybody donated food: the baked beans or the cold slaw, the creamed peas or potato salad, the escalloped tomatoes or all those apple pies and chocolate cakes.

Well, this year practically nobody volunteered to donate food of any kind, so the Wooddale church just gave up the idea.

Although there's another factor to be considered besides the cost of store-bought food: and that is that so much food is being bought instead of raised.

In the days when the kitchen garden flourished and apple trees produced apples without spraying, there were always plenty of tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, potatoes, lima and pole beans, corn for succatash and pumpkins for pies.

What the family prepared for the church supper was that much less they had to can or store in root cellars, so the sacrifice didn't seem so drastic as going to the store and buying the ingredients.

Mrs. Johns showered with baby gifts

STROUDSBURG — A baby shower was held in honor of Mrs. Michael Johns recently, given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shick, held outside on the lawn.

The table was decorated with lilac flowers and a stork centerpiece. Cold salads, baked beans, and assorted cheese and meat were served followed by a decorated cake.

There were gifts from 11 friends with more gifts sent by ten other friends who could not attend.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Well, that's the first time I've ever had to park on the roof of the parking garage so I guess Sidewalk Days are really moving along.

It's also the first time some of the shopkeepers along Main Street have been subjected to amplified, electrified and new - rockified music but they were adjusting. Didn't seem nearly as loud on Friday as it did on Thursday night, they confessed.

Speaking of first times for things, yesterday was the first time I've had notice of a church supper being canceled because of the price of food. Over the years the price of suppers has risen, from 50 cents to a dollar to dollar and a half, to two as the cost of the main meat dish has risen.

But the dinners still were generally bargains because everybody donated food: the baked beans or the cold slaw, the creamed peas or potato salad, the escalloped tomatoes or all those apple pies and chocolate cakes.

Well, this year practically nobody volunteered to donate food of any kind, so the Wooddale church just gave up the idea.

Although there's another factor to be considered besides the cost of store-bought food: and that is that so much food is being bought instead of raised.

In the days when the kitchen garden flourished and apple trees produced apples without spraying, there were always plenty of tomatoes, cucumbers, squash, potatoes, lima and pole beans, corn for succatash and pumpkins for pies.

What the family prepared for the church supper was that much less they had to can or store in root cellars, so the sacrifice didn't seem so drastic as going to the store and buying the ingredients.

Mrs. Johns showered with baby gifts

STROUDSBURG — A baby shower was held in honor of Mrs. Michael Johns recently, given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shick, held outside on the lawn.

The table was decorated with lilac flowers and a stork centerpiece. Cold salads, baked beans, and assorted cheese and meat were served followed by a decorated cake.

There were gifts from 11 friends with more gifts sent by ten other friends who could not attend.

Rallying Sunday scheduled

EAST STROUDSBURG — For many years, the first Sunday of August has had special significance in the life and spirit of the United Methodist Church.

It is called the mid-summer Rallying Sunday with special emphasis upon Sunday School attendance and the administration of the Sacrament of Holy Communion in both the 8:30 and the 11 a.m. services.

Soloists are Mrs. Beulah McConnell at the 8:30 service and Leonard Kranendonk, baritone with the Waring Pennsylvanians, at the 11 a.m. service, singing two selection.

A very special service on Sunday night in the out of doors will be held at the home of Dr. Paul M. Crawn, Stillwater, N. J. Transportation will be provided as well as additional cars.

Missouri's synod shifts right

NEW ORLEANS — (LC) — The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod reelected its president, Dr. J. A. O. Preus, and generally approved conservative positions at its emotion-filled 50th regular convention here, July 6-13.

Significant actions included:

— Adopting as a synodical doctrinal position a theological statement formulated by Dr. Preus.

— Condemning theological positions held by a majority of the faculty members at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis.

— Referring charges against Dr. John Tietjen, president of the seminary, to the institution's board of control.

Major convention issues usually were decided by an approximate margin of 6 to 4 favor of the conservatives, following the election of Dr. Preus by a two-third majority.

One such vote was the 513-394 decision to follow existing procedures and place charges against Dr. Tietjen in the hands of the St. Louis seminary board. An earlier resolution asking for Dr. Tietjen to resign or be dismissed had been withdrawn.

Dr. Tietjen spoke to the convention after the vote, telling delegates that he had refused to resign and "be spared the embarrassment" of floor discussion of accusations atainst his theological stance.

The seminary president said that he had been "grievously wronged" by the convention but held "no ill will toward the delegates, the floor committee, nor the president of Synod."

At a news conference a few minutes later, Dr. Tietjen said, "I have no doubt that before long I will no longer be president of the seminary." The 44-year-old pastor has headed the school since 1969.

Following his response to the convention, Dr. Tietjen received a five-minute standing ovation from many in the convention hall. Supporters surrounded him, distributed black arm bands, and held a worship service in the lobby of the Rivergate Convention Center, site of session.

Two resolutions concerning inter-Lutheran cooperation were considered in the last hour of the convention, but committee recommendations were not approved.

A resolution to place fellowship with the American Lutheran Church, approved in 1969, in a "state of suspension," not breaking fellowship but asserting that consensus has not been reached in four areas, was tabled.

State to debate 2 abortion bills

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania state legislature will debate two abortion bills when it reconvenes Sept. 17.

House bill 923 would prohibit abortions by state or state-aided institutions, physicians paid by the Commonwealth for any services, and hospitals and health care facilities. The bill also prescribes penalties for violators.

Senate Bill 443 provides that these institutions and physicians cannot be held liable "for refusing to perform, participate or cooperate in an abortion or sterilization," according to the Pennsylvania Commission on the Status of Women's weekly report.

Bill 443 passed in the Senate, was amended in the House, and will come before the Senate again in September.

Another bill determining women's rights will come before the legislature prohibits discrimination because of marital status.

Episcopal study grants

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fellowship grants totaling $44,500 have been awarded by The Episcopal Church Foundation to eight clergymen for advance theological study during the 1973-1974 academic year.

Harry S. Nobel, Foundation president, said three fellowships went to first-time recipients and five were given for further work toward doctorates by men previously selected.

Since 1964, when the program was inaugurated, 45 young clergymen dedicated to entering the church's ministry have been awarded grants totaling about $434,000.

Mormon elders in area

STROUDSBURG — Two new missionaries representing the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints arrived in the Stroudsburg area. The new Mormon Elders names are Elder Lyle Pewtress And Elder Greg Capelo.

Pewtress, originally from Idaho Falls, Idaho, has been serving in the Pennsylvania Mission for 10 months.

Capelo's home town is San Diego, Calif. and has been in the mission field for a week.

The two Elders have had one year of college education prior to entering the mission field. Pewtress is majoring in Forest Management, while Capelo is majoring in Telecommunications.

Those interested may contact the Elders at 424-2032.

Effort church to hold school

EFFORT — The United Methodist Church of Effort will hold a vacation Bible school from Aug. 6-10.

The school will run from 7-9 p.m. for all ages from nursery through adult. Lessons and crafts will be featured.

A Bible school picnic will be held Aug. 11 at Beltzville State Park.

the ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

Saul's Attempt on David's Life

And Saul sought to smite David to the wall with the javelin; but he slipped away . . . . and the javelin (went) into the wall.

—I Samuel 19:10

With the passing of the years, Jonathan's devotion to David grew in direct proportion to Saul's hatred for him. In fact, so obsessed was Saul with the idea of killing David that he made no secret of it, even telling Jonathan of his intention. Such was Jonathan's devotion to his friend, however, that he warned David of his father's plan and, at the same time, tried to appease the vengeful Saul. Over and over, he pointed out David's many virtues to the king, but Saul was adamant. Then, one night while seated with a group, which included David, Saul kept toying with a javelin. Suddenly he rose and hurled the weapon, trying to pin David to a wall. But David dodged and fled.

No joy in Mudville?

Catholics glum over school funds

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

"There is no joy in Mudville," said a recent editorial in a Catholic newspaper. "Catholics have struck out in their campaign to find a way to channel substantial amounts of public funds to struggling parochial schools."

That probably is a correct appraisal of the impact of rulings handed down last month by the Supreme Court declaring unconstitutional New York and Pennsylvania laws allowing tax credits and tuition reimbursements for parents who send their children to parochial schools.

The language used by the Court's 6-3 majority in these rulings was so sweeping it is difficult to see how any other legislative approach to public succor of parochial education would have any chance of being held constitutional.

Some Catholic officials still cling to hope the court might accept some kind of voucher plan under which all parents would receive a government voucher for the education of each child. These vouchers could be used to send a child to a public school, a parochial school, or a non church-related private school, as his parents chose.

But lawyers who have studied the June 25 rulings have serious doubts whether a voucher plan would even get a hearing by the Court. The opinion said rather bluntly that it would be pointless for state legislatures to continue devising clever legal formulas to try to get around the Court's basic edict—reiterated several times in the past two years—that public money must not be used to support religious education, directly or indirectly.

Another possibility under discussion among Catholics is a drive for a constitutional amendment to authorize public aid to parochial schools. But there are deep misgivings whether such an amendment could win the necessary ratification by three-fourths of the 50 state legislatures. Moreover, many highly placed Catholics feel they already have their hands full in this area with the current drive for an amendment to legalize state restrictions on abortion.

"Perhaps some constitutional genius will come up with a new way out, but at this point it is hard to imagine what new legal avenues remain to be explored," says the Catholic magazine Commonwealm "That being so, it is essential that American religious leaders face the new situation squarely.

Commonweal urges Catholics to turn their energies to full utilization of the alternative methods of religious education that still are available. These include after-hours religious classes (so-called released classes (so-called releaseddtime time programs) and dual enrollment of children in public and parochial schools (usually called shared-time programs.)

Neither plan has encountered court objection. But Catholics have not energetically explored these options as long as there seemed any hope of obtaining large-scale government support for traditional parochial schooling.

Despite gloomy forecasts from some Catholic quarters, it is highly unlikely that the latest Supreme Court rulings will "wipe out" America's parochial schools.

Although Catholic schools have declined in number from 14,296 in 1965 to 11,258 this year, and their enrollment has shrunk from 6,095,846 to 4,243,788 over the same period, they still constitute the world's largest private educational system.

The parochial school system was created when American Catholics were far less affluent than they are now. Keeping their church schools in business solely with private support may entail costly sacrifices.

The Light Of Understanding

The lighthouse has been a great boon to mariners and seafaring people. Its beacon light dispels the darkness and uncertainty and marks the position of rocks and treacherous shoals. Terrors that accompany the darkness, especially on stormy nights, vanish when the light breaks through.

Fears and superstitions and ignorance are banished by the light of understanding. Knowledge is a great lighthouse and so is the Church. Regular attendance will enable you to throw off the shackles of fear and uncertainty. Your church is the lighthouse that points the way.

Saul's Attempt on David's Life

And Saul sought to smite David to the wall with the javelin; but he slipped away . . . . and the javelin (went) into the wall.

—I Samuel 19:10

With the passing of the years, Jonathan's devotion to David grew in direct proportion to Saul's hatred for him. In fact, so obsessed was Saul with the idea of killing David that he made no secret of it, even telling Jonathan of his intention. Such was Jonathan's devotion to his friend, however, that he warned David of his father's plan and, at the same time, tried to appease the vengeful Saul. Over and over, he pointed out David's many virtues to the king, but Saul was adamant. Then, one night while seated with a group, which included David, Saul kept toying with a javelin. Suddenly he rose and hurled the weapon, trying to pin David to a wall. But David dodged and fled.

No joy in Mudville?

Catholics glum over school funds

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

"There is no joy in Mudville," said a recent editorial in a Catholic newspaper. "Catholics have struck out in their campaign to find a way to channel substantial amounts of public funds to struggling parochial schools."

That probably is a correct appraisal of the impact of rulings handed down last month by the Supreme Court declaring unconstitutional New York and Pennsylvania laws allowing tax credits and tuition reimbursements for parents who send their children to parochial schools.

The language used by the Court's 6-3 majority in these rulings was so sweeping it is difficult to see how any other legislative approach to public succor of parochial education would have any chance of being held constitutional.

Some Catholic officials still cling to hope the court might accept some kind of voucher plan under which all parents would receive a government voucher for the education of each child. These vouchers could be used to send a child to a public school, a parochial school, or a non church-related private school, as his parents chose.

But lawyers who have studied the June 25 rulings have serious doubts whether a voucher plan would even get a hearing by the Court. The opinion said rather bluntly that it would be pointless for state legislatures to continue devising clever legal formulas to try to get around the Court's basic edict—reiterated several times in the past two years—that public money must not be used to support religious education, directly or indirectly.

Another possibility under discussion among Catholics is a drive lfor a constitutional amendment to authorize public aid to parochial schools. But there are deep misgivings whether such an amendment could win the necessary ratification by three-fourths of the 50 state legislatures. Moreover, many highly placed Catholics feel they already have their hands full in this area with the current drive for an amendment to legalize state restrictions on abortion.

"Perhaps some constitutional genius will come up with a new way out, but at this point it is hard to imagine what new legal avenues remain to be explored," says the Catholic magazine Commonwealm "That being so, it is essential that American religious leaders face the new situation squarely.

Commonweal urges Catholics to turn their energies to full utilization of the alternative methods of religious education that still are available. These include after-hours religious classes (so-called released classes (so-called releaseddtime time programs) and dual enrollment of children in public and parochial schools (usually called shared-time programs.)

Neither plan has encountered court objection. But Catholics have not energetically explored these options as long as there seemed any hope of obtaining large-scale government support for traditional parochial schooling.

Despite gloomy forecasts from some Catholic quarters, it is highly unlikely that the latest Supreme Court rulings will "wipe out" America's parochial schools.

Although Catholic schools have declined in number from 14,296 in 1965 to 11,258 this year, and their enrollment has shrunk from 6,095,846 to 4,243,788 over the same period, they still constitute the world's largest private educational system.

The parochial school system was created when American Catholics were far less affluent than they are now. Keeping their church schools in business solely with private support may entail costly sacrifices.

The Light Of Understanding

The lighthouse has been a great boon to mariners and seafaring people. Its beacon light dispels the darkness and uncertainty and marks the position of rocks and treacherous shoals. Terrors that accompany the darkness, especially on stormy nights, vanish when the light breaks through.

Fears and superstitions and ignorance are banished by the light of understanding. Knowledge is a great lighthouse and so is the Church. Regular attendance will enable you to throw off the shackles of fear and uncertainty. Your church is the lighthouse that points the way.

In the top photo, students at the Outward Bound School at Hurricane Island, Maine, are learning an important lesson — what to do when your boat capsizes at sea. At bottom, they've righted their longboat and are bailing it out. What they probably don't realize yet is they're about to be dunked again as a part of their rigorous survival-type training. ABC News examines the Outward Bound concept Friday 10-10:30 p.m., on "B. J. and Eddie Outward Bound."

Who's that?

The young man in this photo, Robert, eight years old and his sister, Arnett, are shown on the porch of their modest home in Seattle. Later, the family moved to Los Angeles, where Robert, during his high school days, was brought to the Mack Sennett Studios by his actor-brother and was paid five dollars for a day's work as an extra. He went on to appear in some hundred films and to star in TV series. Who is young Robert? It's Robert Young, of "Marcus Welby, M.D.," the ABC Television Network series, which airs Tuesdays 10-11 p.m.

Summit sees end of era

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The meetings here this week between President Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka mark the end of an era which began with the surrender on the deck of the battleship "Missouri" in Tokyo harbor nearly 28 years ago.

Senior American officials contend that the Nixon-Tanaka conversations emphasized "the maturing of the whole Japanese-American relationship."

They point out that the devastated and crippled country the United States helped to its feet is now the world's third largest producer, with a gross national product of around $300 billion. It is a major competitor in world markets, where Japanese and American interests sometimes clash.

And while Tokyo still clings to its nuclear security blanket—the mutual defense pact with the United States—the Japanese are not at all sure how much this is worth.

Will visit Russia

While strengthening their conventional forces somewhat, the Japanese appear to subscribe more and more to the theory that the yen is mightier than the sword.

Tanaka came to Washington as the representative of a nation whose good will, cooperation and support is solicited on a number of fronts—the United States, Russia, China and Southeast Asia.

Russia, which Tanaka will visit this fall, sees Japan as a valuable potential ally and friend. Moscow would like to see the Japanese exercise a stabilizing influence on China and at the same time provide some of the tens of billions of dollars the Kremlin needs in order to extract and exploit petroleum resources in Siberia.

The Chinese appear to believe that reconciliation with Japan would serve as a counterweight to the Russians in the Asian political balance and might also loosen Japan's ties with the United States.

Stability wanted

Southeast Asia is hoping primarily for continued increase in the Japanese aid and investment program there, since Tokyo is the area's closest and most effective source of assistance.

The United States wants a stable Japan as a good influence in Asia and also hopes to enlist Tokyo in the global battle against financial and economic ills which plague humanity. Nixon, presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers talk about the global role they hope Japan will play. U.S. officials provide no specifics but say they want Japan to focus on the following key areas:

—Trade reform, in particular at the Tokyo meeting this fall of the countries adhering to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

—International financial arrangements to stabilize the exchange market and bring more reality into this phase of world finance.

—The energy problem, which U.S. officials are able to define in only the vaguest terms when it comes to talking on a global basis.

—Arrangements to stabilize supply and demand of agricultural products to avoid international imbalances.

Unpopular at home

One of the ironies about Tanaka is that he finds himself more popular abroad than at home—a situation which could seriously hamper his ability to retain his post as premier and carry out any international commitments he may make here or in other countries.

Aside from the normal perils of political leadership, Japanese polls show that the decline in Tanaka's popularity at home is due primarily to his reducing exports to the United States in order to cut the foreign trade imbalance which plagues Nixon. The U.S. deficit in trade with Japan last year was $4.2 billion. This year it will probably be between $2 and $2.5 billion, partly because the United States banned soybean exports for a period.

The Japanese also are worried about Nixon's ability to handle his political and economic problems. For that reason, Tanaka probably will check things out with China and Russia again before he finally decides on what course to take.

Who's that?

The young man in this photo, Robert, eight years old and his sister, Arnett, are shown on the porch of their modest home in Seattle. Later, the family moved to Los Angeles, where Robert, during his high school days, was brought to the Mack Sennett Studios by his actor-brother and was paid five dollars for a day's work as an extra. He went on to appear in some hundred films and to star in TV series. Who is young Robert? It's Robert Young, of "Marcus Welby, M.D.," the ABC Television Network series, which airs Tuesdays 10-11 p.m.

Europe has its Haldemans and Ehrlichmans, too

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

BRUSSELS (UPI) — When French President Georges Pompidou dumped his premier last summer and appointed another, Paris insiders said the inspiration for both hiring and firing came from Pierre Juillet.

Pierre who? Most Frenchmen would not recognize the name. Yet Juillet is one of the most powerful persons in France—a member of that small, shadowy fraternity of right-hand men with ready access to the ears and offices of the world"s leaders.

Juillet's counterparts in Europe include a very proper London clubman, a veteran Communist thinker and a blunt, hard-working archbishop. In Washington, his opposite numbers until recently were H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and the fate of these two has focused new attention on the powers behind the thrones of Europe.

Like Haldeman and Ehrlichman, most of Europe's right-hand men hold no elective office. Like them, they are loyal and self effacing men, more interested in the substance of power than its glitter. They hold their jobs through a combination of hard work, absolute discretion and a talent as indispensible adviser, doorkeeper, praetorian guard, nanny and Mr. Fixit to the mighty.

One of the insiders, with loyalty to the office rather than the man, has served four successive prime ministers. Another recently quit in the middle of a scandal. And one—shades of Haldeman and Ehrlichman—is a real live Prussian.

There may even be a man like this in the Kremlin. Josef Stalin had one—Alexander N. Poskrebyshev, who vanished the day Stalin died and has lived in anonymous retirement ever since. But, says one Soviet official, if Poskrebyshev has a successor, "We would never tell you about it."

United Press International correspondents around Europe looked into the corridors of power in their capitals and filed these reports:

Sir Burke St. John Trend is "one of Britain's least-known public figures," reports UPI's Joseph W. Grigg from London.

Trend climbed the traditional ladder, from a first-class honors degree (Oxford) through the civil service (Treasury) and clubs (Atheneum) to become secretary to the cabinet in 1963.

In the 10 years since then, Trend, a slim dark-suited man of 59, has served four prime ministers from both Labor and Conservative parties — Harold Macmillan, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, Harold Wilson and, currently Edward Heath.

Trend's job is to make sure the British system of government by cabinet works. He makes sure ministers have the right information, stands guard over government secrets and checks the memoirs of politicians.

A colleague describes Trend as "a cross between candid friends of the prime minister and amateur referee in a professional game of politics... the hardest-working mandarin in Whitehall... a man who thrives on work and remaining anonymous."

Trend retires this autumn to become rector of Lincoln College at Oxford. The new secretary—only the fifth since World War I-will be John Hunt, 53, a diffident, balding civil servant.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman were often called "Nixon's Germans." In Germany (reports UPI's Wellington Long) the man who does that job for Chancellor Willy Brandt is Horst Grabert, a former engineer who was active in anti-Nazi activities as a teenager and, as a result, spent two years in the infamous Oranienburg labor camp.

Grabert, a 45-year-old Berliner, worked his way up through the Social Democratic Party when Brandt was mayor of Berlin. In 1972, he came to Bonn as state secretary in the chancellory—the man in charge of Brandt's office.

Grabert handles Brandt's appointment book and prepares incoming documents, thus controlling the boss' visitors and reading. It is a position of vast power but there have been complaints of bias.

Grabert calls himself a "Prussian," but not of the knee-jerk variety. "One must serve," he says, "but one must also have a sense of responsibility."

Pompidou's Juillet, 53, joined the Gaullist movement in 1947 and has worked for Pompidou in 1962, carrying out such delicate missions as the reorganization of the secret services and a purge of the main Gaullist party.

The pipe-puffing Juillet is a lawyer by education and a sheep farmer by avocation. But his game is backstage power and he plays it in a secretive , highly individual way, slipping in and out of Paris and , by his own demand, keeping whatever working hours he pleases. His title—"in charge of mission in the presidential office"—gives no hint of his power.

Juillet once summed up his view of his work to a Gaullist insider: "I feel like being a feudal man. I choose my overlord to whom I pay allegiance. But I remain the master on my own soil."

In Finland, Antero Jyranki, 37, used to be head of staff to President Urho Kekkonen, says Helsinki correspondent Philip M. Stone.

Jyranki was rapidly achieving political power, but he resigned this summer after a scandal in which a Swedish newspaper printed excerpts of Kekkonen's talks with Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev. Jyranki denied all wrongdoing, but said he quit because his testimony in a court case on the scandal undercut his ability to do his job.

Even the Vatican has its top insider —a tireless churchman named Archbishop Giovanni Benelli (reports Wilborn Hampton from Rome). Although his official title is only "substitute secretary of state," Benelii holds more power than his nominal superior, Secretary of State Cardinal Jean Villot.

Benelli is not universally popular. He is called "His Efficiency" behind his back—a play on his title of "His Excellency." He is a blunt man and not above hurting feelings.

Benelli, like Pope Paul VI, came up through the Curia—the Church bureaucracy. He works 15-hour days, interests himself in the tiniest details of Vatican affairs and even reads all papal speeches before approving their release to their press. All Vatican documents pass his desk and he sees the Pope daily.

Benelli's strength lies in his capacity for "great activity and quick decisions," in the words of one Vatican official. He is known as the man in charge of carrying out Pope Paul's demands and so other churchmen jump when he speaks.

Among Communist leaders, only Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito has a clearly visible left-hand man, reports UPI's Nesho Djuric from Belgrade. This is Edvard Kardelj, a 63-year-old former teacher who has been at Tito's side, in war and in power, for 35 years.

Kardelj used to be Foreign Minister and Deputy Premier

Biggest change in China in women's fashions

By CHARLES R. SMITH

SHANGHAI (UPI) — They're wearing hot pants in China now.

Nothing sexy, suggestive or very fashionable—just cool and comfortable.

Some great changes have taken place in China during recent months, but few things have changed more dramatically than women's fashions. And the trend is just beginning.

During two previous trips to China in the past 10 months I did not see a single adult woman wearing a dress or skirt. All were clad in those baggy blue pants and matching jackets or, occasionally, the pants with only a white or colored blouse and no jacket. An uncovered leg was never seen.

In a two-week, six-city tour with an American congressional delegation last month, I saw thousands of women wearing skirts or dresses. Not a few wore shorts that you could put in the hot pants class.

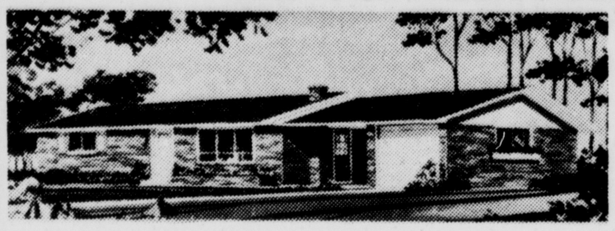

It may be the weather, for most of China is hot and humid in July. But for the summers since the Cultural Revolution it has been just as hot and just as humid and China's females have stuck to the long pants, shunning skirts and dresses.

The change in fashions apparently dates from June 19, when Chiang Ching, the wife of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, turned up unexpectedly at a basketball match between visiting American teams and Chinese squads in Peking.

She wore a midi-length white dress—about the same length of the skirts or dresses now being worn by Chinese women —with matching white shoes and handbag.

Before the Cultural Revolution, the women of Shanghai always were in the vanguard of any new fashion trends. But today, the women in more out of the way places, such as Sian, Wushih and Soochow—where far more women seem to be wearing shorts appear to be ahead of those in Shanghai and Peking in taking to the new fashion trend.

Summit sees end of era

By STEWART HENSLEY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The meetings here this week between President Nixon and Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka mark the end of an era which began with the surrender on the deck of the battleship "Missouri" in Tokyo harbor nearly 28 years ago.

Senior American officials contend that the Nixon-Tanaka conversations emphasized "the maturing of the whole Japanese-American relationship."

They point out that the devastated and crippled country the United States helped to its feet is now the world's third largest producer, with a gross national product of around $300 billion. It is a major competitor in world markets, where Japanese and American interests sometimes clash.

And while Tokyo still clings to its nuclear security blanket—the mutual defense pact with the United States—the Japanese are not at all sure how much this is worth.

Will visit Russia

While strengthening their conventional forces somewhat, the Japanese appear to subscribe more and more to the theory that the yen is mightier than the sword.

Tanaka came to Washington as the representative of a nation whose good will, cooperation and support is solicited on a number of fronts—the United States, Russia, China and Southeast Asia.

Russia, which Tanaka will visit this fall, sees Japan as a valuable potential ally and friend. Moscow would like to see the Japanese exercise a stabilizing influence on China and at the same time provide some of the tens of billions of dollars the Kremlin needs in order to extract and exploit petroleum resources in Siberia.

The Chinese appear to believe that reconciliation with Japan would serve as a counterweight to the Russians in the Asian political balance and might also loosen Japan's ties with the United States.

Stability wanted

Southeast Asia is hoping primarily for continued increase in the Japanese aid and investment program there, since Tokyo is the area's closest and most effective source of assistance.

The United States wants a stable Japan as a good influence in Asia and also hopes to enlist Tokyo in the global battle against financial and economic ills which plague humanity. Nixon, presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Secretary of State William P. Rogers talk about the global role they hope Japan will play. U.S. officials provide no specifics but say they want Japan to focus on the following key areas:

—Trade reform, in particular at the Tokyo meeting this fall of the countries adhering to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

—International financial arrangements to stabilize the exchange market and bring more reality into this phase of world finance.

—The energy problem, which U.S. officials are able to define in only the vaguest terms when it comes to talking on a global basis.

—Arrangements to stabilize supply and demand of agricultural products to avoid international imbalances.

Unpopular at home

One of the ironies about Tanaka is that he finds himself more popular abroad than at home—a situation which could seriously hamper his ability to retain his post as premier and carry out any international commitments he may make here or in other countries.

Aside from the normal perils of political leadership, Japanese polls show that the decline in Tanaka's popularity at home is due primarily to his reducing exports to the United States in order to cut the foreign trade imbalance which plagues Nixon. The U.S. deficit in trade with Japan last year was $4.2 billion. This year it will probably be between $2 and $2.5 billion, partly because the United States banned soybean exports for a period.

The Japanese also are worried about Nixon's ability to handle his political and economic problems. For that reason, Tanaka probably will check things out with China and Russia again before he finally decides on what course to take.

Europe has its Haldemans and Ehrlichmans, too

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH

BRUSSELS (UPI) — When French President Georges Pompidou dumped his premier last summer and appointed another, Paris insiders said the inspiration for both hiring and firing came from Pierre Juillet.

Pierre who? Most Frenchmen would not recognize the name. Yet Juillet is one of the most powerful persons in France—a member of that small, shadowy fraternity of right-hand men with ready access to the ears and offices of the world's leaders.

Juillet's counterparts in Europe include a very proper London clubman, a veteran Communist thinker and a blunt, hard-working archbishop. In Washington, his opposite numbers until recently were H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, and the fate of these two has focused new attention on the powers behind the thrones of Europe.

Like Haldeman and Ehrlichman, most of Europe's right-hand men hold no elective office. Like them, they are loyal and self effacing men, more interested in the substance of power than its glitter. They hold their jobs through a combination of hard work, absolute discretion and a talent as indispensible adviser, doorkeeper, praetorian guard, nanny and Mr. Fixit to the mighty.

One of the insiders, with loyalty to the office rather than the man, has served four successive prime ministers. Another recently quit in the middle of a scandal. And one—shades of Haldeman and Ehrlichman—is a real live Prussian.

There may even be a man like this in the Kremlin. Josef Stalin had one—Alexander N. Poskrebyshev, who vanished the day Stalin died and has lived in anonymous retirement ever since. But, says one Soviet official, if Poskrebyshev has a successor, "We would never tell you about it."

United Press International correspondents around Europe looked into the corridors of power in their capitals and filed these reports:

Sir Burke St. John Trend is "one of Britain's least-known public figures," reports UPI's Joseph W. Grigg from London.

Trend climbed the traditional ladder, from a first-class honors degree (Oxford) through the civil service (Treasury) and clubs (Atheneum) to become secretary to the cabinet in 1963.

In the 10 years since then, Trend, a slim dark-suited man of 59, has served four prime ministers from both Labor and Conservative parties — Harold Macmillan, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, Harold Wilson and, currently Edward Heath.

Trend's job is to make sure the British system of government by cabinet works. He makes sure ministers have the right information, stands guard over government secrets and checks the memoirs of politicians.

A colleague describes Trend as "a cross between candid friends of the prime minister and amateur referee in a professional game of politics... the hardest-working mandarin in Whitehall... a man who thrives on work and remaining anonymous."

Trend retires this autumn to become rector of Lincoln College at Oxford. The new secretary—only the fifth since World War I-will be John Hunt, 53, a diffident, balding civil servant.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman were often called "Nixon's Germans." In Germany (reports UPI's Wellington Long) the man who does that job for Chancellor Willy Brandt is Horst Grabert, a former engineer who was active in anti-Nazi activities as a teenager and, as a result, spent two years in the infamous Oranienburg labor camp.

Grabert, a 45-year-old Berliner, worked his way up through the Social Democratic Party when Brandt was mayor of Berlin. In 1972, he came to Bonn as state secretary in the chancellory—the man in charge of Brandt's office.

Grabert handles Brandt's appointment book and prepares incoming documents, thus controlling the boss' visitors and reading. It is a position of vast power but there have been complaints of bias.

Grabert calls himself a "Prussian," but not of the knee-jerk variety. "One must serve," he says, "but one must also have a sense of responsibility."

Pompidou's Juillet, 53, joined the Gaullist movement in 1947 and has worked for Pompidou in 1962, carrying out such delicate missions as the reorganization of the secret services and a purge of the main Gaullist party.

The pipe-puffing Juillet is a lawyer by education and a sheep farmer by avocation. But his game is backstage power and he plays it in a secretive, highly individual way, slipping in and out of Paris and, by his own demand, keeping whatever working hours he pleases. His title—"in charge of mission in the presidential office"—gives no hint of his power.

Juillet once summed up his view of his work to a Gaullist insider: "I feel like being a feudal man. I choose my overlord to whom I pay allegiance. But I remain the master on my own soil."

In Finland, Antero Jyranki, 37, used to be head of staff to President Urho Kekkonen, says Helsinki correspondent Philip M. Stone.

Jyranki was rapidly achieving political power, but he resigned this summer after a scandal in which a Swedish newspaper printed excerpts of Kekkonen's talks with Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev. Jyranki denied all wrongdoing, but said he quit because his testimony in a court case on the scandal undercut his ability to do his job.

Even the Vatican has its top insider —a tireless churchman named Archbishop Giovanni Benelli (reports Wilborn Hampton from Rome). Although his official title is only "substitute secretary of state," Benelli holds more power than his nominal superior, Secretary of State Cardinal Jean Villot.

Benelli, like Pope Paul VI, came up through the Curia—the Church bureaucracy. He works 15-hour days, interests himself in the tiniest details of Vatican affairs and even reads all papal speeches before approving their release to their press. All Vatican documents pass his desk and he sees the Pope daily.

Benelli's strength lies in his capacity for "great activity and quick decisions," in the words of one Vatican official. He is known as the man in charge of carrying out Pope Paul's demands and so other churchmen jump when he speaks.

Among Communist leaders, only Yugoslav President Josip Broz Tito has a clearly visible left-hand man, reports UPI's Nesho Djuric from Belgrade. This is Edvard Kardelj, a 63-year-old former teacher who has been at Tito's side, in war and in power, for 35 years.

Kardelj used to be Foreign Minister and Deputy Premier.

Biggest change in China in women's fashions

By CHARLES R. SMITH

SHANGHAI (UPI) — They're wearing hot pants in China now.

Nothing sexy, suggestive or very fashionable just cool and comfortable.

Some great changes have taken place in China during recent months, but few things have changed more dramatically than women's fashions. And the trend is just beginning.

During two previous trips to China in the past 10 months I did not see a single adult woman wearing a dress or skirt. All were clad in those baggy blue pants and matching jackets or, occasionally, the pants with only a white or colored blouse and no jacket. An uncovered leg was never seen.

In a two-week, six-city tour with an American congressional delegation last month, I saw thousands of women wearing skirts or dresses. Not a few wore shorts that you could put in the hot pants class.

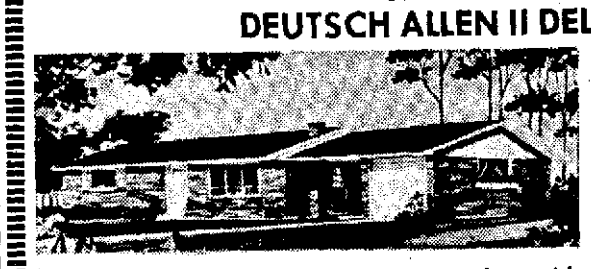

It may be the weather, for most of China is hot and humid in July. But for the summers since the Cultural Revolution it has been just as hot and just as humid and China's females have stuck to the long pants, shunning skirts and dresses.

The change in fashions apparently dates from June 19, when Chiang Ching, the wife of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, turned up unexpectedly at a basketball match between visiting American teams and Chinese squads in Peking.

She wore a midi-length white dress—about the same length of the skirts or dresses now being worn by Chinese women —with matching white shoes and handbag.

Before the Cultural Revolution, the women of Shanghai always were in the vanguard of any new fashion trends. But today, the women in more out of the way places, such as Sian, Wushih and Soochow—where far more women seem to be wearing shorts appear to be ahead of those in Shanghai and Peking in taking to the new fashion trend.

Rainbow Mountain fair balloons in talent

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — A hot air balloon and a band of entertaining sheiks are the latest additions to the Rainbow Mountain Crafts Festival, to be held August 10-12 in Flemington, N.J.

The 75 foot high, blue and white stripe balloon, which will be on display at the three-day festival, is being sponsored by the Chalet Club of New York City.

Philip Hallstein, 23, will pilot the balloon on a flight over the festival, and distribute ballooning information to visitors.

The "Sheiks" are the Shimmerville Sheiks, a musical group from near Bethlehem, which will provide entertainment.

The Sheiks, who perform in a Mr. Bojangles style of panhandling, play country-folk music, with selections from such artists as Bob Dylan, Earl Scruggs, and Merle Haggard.

Other musical entertainment will be offered by Chuck and Lois Snyder of La Haska.

Several residents from the Poconos are expected to be among the nearly 100 craftsmen who will display their wares in the four-acre field off Rte. 202.

Pocono craftsmen who have already filed applications for the festival include Mary Phalan, Skytop, photography; John Keller, Hawley, hand-tooled leather; John Quick, East Stroudsburg, pottery; Kate Godown, Twin Lakes, photography and macrame; Janet Krape, Stroudsburg, silver jewelry; Susie Benedict, Milford, macrame; and Mike Ulman, Blooming Grove, wood-carving.

Other crafts which will be represented at the fair will be slate jewelry, tiffany stained glass, weaving, copper work, silver and goldsmithing, pipe-making, and ceramics.

According to fair coordinator Billy Bragg, "80 to 90 per cent" of the craftsmen will give demonstrations throughout the festival.

"We're hoping to break even on the festival," Bragg said. "Some promoters are just in the business of crafts fairs for the money. We're craftsmen ourselves and want to put on a festival for craftsmen to get their money's worth."

Applications are still being accepted for spaces at the festival. The fee for a six by ten foot booth area is $25. An additional space can be purchased for $10.

Craftsmen who wish to participate in the Rainbow Mountain Festival can contact Bragg at 201-782-7462 or write to Rainbow Mountain Crafts Festival, R.D. 1, Box 302, Flemington, N.J. 088220.

To reach the festival site from the Poconos, take Rte. 33 to Easton and follow Rte. 22 east to Clinton, N.J. At Clinton, take Rte. 31 south to the Flemington traffic circle.

Restoration underway at Millbrook Village

MILLBROOK — Bit by bit the National Park Service is slowly reconstructing an early American village in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area in Millbrook, N.J.

Millbrook Village, a booming living center during the late 1800's, will hopefully come to life again during the 20th Century if members of the Millbrook Village Society and the DWGNRA have their way.

The Millbrook Society, a citizen's organization, and officials from the National Park Service have already restored a hotel, blacksmith's shop and two houses.

They are currently in the process of constructing two more homes, a general store, a church, a one-room schoolhouse and a grist mill.

According to National Park Service Historian Omega East, Millbrook was basically an agricultural center during the 1800's and reflected the type of small town communities that flourished throughout the United States.

The grist mill, built by Abraham Garis in 1832, was responsible for the economic growth of the area. The mill was destroyed by fire in 1922, shortly after operations had ceased.

East said the old Bushkill Mill will be brought to the site of the Garis Mill and will be in operation by the summer of 1974.

Two buildings, the church and the old general store that were burned to the ground by a fire in 1972, are also being replaced.

The dedication for the church is planned to take place during the annual Millbrook Days on October 7 and 8.

Homes at Millbrook Village include the well-to-do country home of George Traugher refurbished with furnishings from the 1870's to 1890's, the more modest home of Elias Garis, the VanKampen home, and the Hill house.

At the Hill house a weaving demonstration will be offered on weekends.

Millbrook Village is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily until after Labor Day. It will be open weekends up until November 1 and offer visitors special activities during the celebration of Millbrook Days on October 7 and 8.

Information concerning guided tours and demonstrations can be obtained at the information station located in the Millbrook Hotel.

Millbrook Village, about seven miles north of Blairstown, can be reached by Old Mine Road from Interstate 80, Rtes. 521 or 206.

Theatre gets funnier than comics with 'Charlie Brown' production

For its initial venture into the fabulous world of musical comedy, the Tanglwood Dinner Theatre has chosen to present "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown", scheduled to run August 7 through 12.

Based on the popular syndicated comic strip, "Peanuts" by Charles Schulz, and featuring music and lyrics by Clark Gesner, "Charlie Brown" is the "funnies" come to life, with all the humor and charm of the original strip plus the added bounce of a delightful score.

Russell Treyz will direct the Tanglwood company which will feature Tom Cuff in the title role of Charlie Brown, a role he has played with great success several times before.

Snoopy, the dashing, baseball-playing beagle, who brings down the house with his rendition of "Suppertime", will be played by Broadway star, George Hall.

Hall, a veteran of the New York nightclub circuit with stints at the Village Vanguard and Upstairs at the Downstairs to his credit, has appeared on Broadway in "Lend An Ear", "High Button Shoes", and "There's A Girl In My Soup", among other shows, and is also a familiar television personality from his many appearances on "The Secret Storm, "Edge of Night", "Love of Life", and many other programs.

Comedianne Marilyn Holgan will be Lucy, and the rest of the "Peanuts" gang, including Shroeder, Linus (and his blanket), and Peppermint Patti will be on hand.

Maggie Bell, presently finishing up her B.A. in Music at Wilkes College, Wilkes-Barre, will provide the musical accompaniement.

Miss Bell has taught music in the area for several years and has previously worked as accompaniest at the Little Theatre and Showcase Theatre in Wilkes-Barre.

"Charlie Brown" is surely a musical for all ages and Tanglwood stands ready to welcome young and old to a spirited and entertaining evening of song and dance.

Catching U.S.

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Melbourne and Sydney have joined the big league of world crime capitals.

On a population basis Melbourne has four times more rapes and murders than London, more than twice as many assaults and as many robberies. "In the major Australian cities we approximate the American pattern of violence rather than the English pattern," criminologist Dr. Paul Wilson of the Queensland University said.

Gourmand takes on slimmer look with delightful dietary recipes

By the Gorged Gourmand

STROUDSBURG — Since I was cut off in the middle of my dietary delights last week, I decided to continue along the low calorie line for another column.

My Errol Flynn swashbuckling must have got a little carried away and I never got further than describing the preparations for low calorie kabobs.

But I've still have several dishes which can be prepared without great suffering to the waistline.

Needless to say, I don't want to ruin my reputation as a gorged gourmand, so while I may be getting only half the calories I compensate my eating twice as much.

Home economist Joyce Kline offered further suggestions for summertime meal planning which I'd like to pass along to all my hungry readers.

An ideal main dish, with only 150 calories per serving, is chicken Hawaiian. Ingredients to serve six people (or one famished gourmand) include one cup cottage cheese, two tablespoons milk, two cups diced cooked chicken, one-half cup chopped celery, one-quarter cup chopped pimento, two teaspoons lemon juice, one-quarter teaspoon salt, and six slices chilled pineapple, fresh or canned in unsweetened juice.

To prepare the recipe, beat the cottage cheese until it's fairly smooth. Add milk. Then fold in the chicken, celery, pimento, lemon juice, and salt. Chill. Place a pineapple slice on a lettuce leaf and top with one-half cup of chicken salad and Voila! — the dish is ready for the most ravenous appetite.

Naturally, you're going to want something to go along with the chicken, a chef's salad topped with non-fat French dressing, for example.

To obtain this creation, blend together one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-eighth teaspoon dry mustard, one tablespoon chives, one-half teaspoon sugar, one quarter cup tarragon or red wine vinegar, and one-quarter cup cold water.

My favorite part of any meal, dessert, is yet to come, and it's still possible to enjoy sweets without picking up all of the calories that usually go along with them.

Two possible desserts are sugarless lemon tarts and apple-cake pudding.

For the tarts, it's necessary to have pastry for a nine-inch pie shell, two tablespoons cornstarch, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, and three tablespoons lemon juice.

Other ingredients include one-cup hot water, one tablespoon of a liquid sugar substitute, one egg yolk (beaten), and one teaspoon butter.

Cut the pastry into ten circles to fit ten small tart pans. Bake in a 425 degree oven about 12 minutes, and then cool.

Combine the cornstarch, salt and lemon rind, and blend in lemon juice to make a smooth paste. Gradually add hot water and a liquid sugar substitute.

Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thick. Stir a small amount of the hot mixture into beaten egg yolk, then return to the pan and cook two minutes longer.

Finally, remove from the heat, add butter, cool, and spoon the filling into the tart shells.

This recipe makes ten tarts, each containing 82 calories. If made with sugar, each would contain 120 calories.

If you prefer to try the apple-cake pudding (or if you're like me and eat two different desserts as a matter of course) preheat your oven to 350 degrees and grease a one-quart casserole.

In a small bowl, with your mixer at low speed, beat one egg, one-quarter cup all-purpose flour, one-quarter teaspoon baking soda, one-quarter teaspoon ground cloves, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon, and one-eighth teaspoon salt until blended.

Increase the speed to high and beat for two minutes. Using a rubber spatula, stir in one and one-half cups finely chopped peeled cooking apples (about one large or three small apples) and spread the batter into the casserole.

Bake 35 to 40 minutes until the top springs back when lightly touched. Serve warm or cold. The recipe, set for a serving of six, contains only 140 calories per serving.

And here I thought food had to be fattening to be good!

Concert hosts brass quintet

MILLBROOK — The Eastern Brass Quintet will give the eighth performance this season at the Water Gap Concerts held 7:30 p.m. today at the Delaware Water Gap Recreational Area one-half mile south of Millbrook.

The quintet consists of two trumpets, trombone, tuba, and French horn, and the musicians who play them are Charles Baxter, Robert Fanning, Richard Green, Tucker Jolly and William Wich.

The outdoor concerts are sponsored by Artists for Environment Foundation in affiliation with the National Park Service. All performances begin at 7:30 p.m. and are free.

Those who come to the concert should bring something to sit on and a flashlight for after the performance. In the event of rain, the concerts will be held at the First Presbyterian Church in Blairstown.

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — A hot air balloon and a band of entertaining sheiks are the latest additions to the Rainbow Mountain Crafts Festival, to be held August 10-12 in Flemington, N.J.

The 75 foot high, blue and white stripe balloon, which will be on display at the three-day festival, is being sponsored by the Chalet Club of New York City.

Philip Hallstein, 23, will pilot the balloon on a flight over the festival, and distribute ballooning information to visitors.

The "Sheiks" are the Shimmerville Sheiks, a musical group from near Bethlehem, which will provide entertainment.

The Sheiks, who perform in a Mr. Bojangles style of panhandling, play country-folk music, with selections from such artists as Bob Dylan, Earl Scruggs, and Merle Haggard.

Other musical entertainment will be offered by Chuck and Lois Snyder of La Haska.

Several residents from the Poconos are expected to be among the nearly 100 craftsmen who will display their wares in the four-acre field off Rte. 202.

Pocono craftsmen who have already filed applications for the festival include Mary Phalan, Skytop, photography; John Keller, Hawley, hand-tooled leather; John Quick, East Stroudsburg, pottery; Kate Godown, Twin Lakes, photography and macrame; Janet Krape, Stroudsburg, silver jewelry; Susie Benedict, Milford, macrame; and Mike Ulman, Blooming Grove, wood-carving.

Other crafts which will be represented at the fair will be slate jewelry, tiffany stained glass, weaving, copper work, silver and goldsmithing, pipe-making, and ceramics.

According to fair coordinator Billy Bragg, "80 to 90 per cent" of the craftsmen will give demonstrations throughout the festival.

"We're hoping to break even on the festival," Bragg said. "Some promoters are just in the business of crafts fairs for the money. We're craftsmen ourselves and want to put on a festival for craftsmen to get their money's worth."

Applications are still being accepted for spaces at the festival. The fee for a six by ten foot booth area is $25. An additional space can be purchased for $10.

Craftsmen who wish to participate in the Rainbow Mountain Festival can contact Bragg at 201-782-7462 or write to Rainbow Mountain Crafts Festival, R.D. 1, Box 302, Flemington, N.J. 088220.

To reach the festival site from the Poconos, take Rte. 33 to Easton and follow Rte. 22 east to Clinton, N.J. At Clinton, take Rte. 31 south to the Flemington traffic circle.

Continue around the traffic circle and turn onto Rte. 202 north for a short distance. A large field on the right hand side of the road marks the festival site.

Antiques travel to Poconos

By BEATRICE F. GARFIELD

Traveling around the country visiting antiques shops is great fun.

It's not, however, always necessary.

Sometimes the antiques travel to you.

Next week, for example, several thousand collectibles from shops along the Eastern seaboard will present themselves to visitors to the General Hospital Antiques Show to be held at the East Stroudsburg High School August 10-12.

A number of the 40-odd dealers who have been returning year after year, cognizant of the high standards of the show's patrons, select their choicest merchandise for display.

The quality of antique furniture is particularly fine, featuring corner cupboards, blanket chests, slant-top desks, Sheraton wing chairs, early pine apothecary chests, a cherry tilt-top bird-cage table and a school-master's desk with its original red paint.

There will be a glittering array of collectible glass, exemplifying nearly every decorative technique: engraved, enameled, cut, blown, overlay, iridescent and cameo.

Many of the early pieces are attributed to Sandwich, and several of the others bear signatures of those craftsmen and factories which collectors prize most highly — Hawkes, Galle, Durand, Le Gras, Pairpoint, Handel, Steuben and Louis Tiffany.

Interior decorators as well as antiquarians always enjoy seeing the booths where the dealers have arranged the objects — cradles, decoys, lamps, looking-glasses, furniture and fireplace-equipment — in period settings, grouped with other pieces of appropriate style and locale. We wish more dealers realized the practicality — as well as the charm — of such arrangements.

Among the collections of English china on display will be a number of British coronation items, a category which has long had a loyal but modest following.

Interest has suddenly zoomed with the recent death of the Duke of Windsor who, you may recall, ruled briefly as Edward VIII nearly forty years ago.

British collectors, we are told, are offering high prices nowadays for the tea pots, tumblers, coins and cups which had been made in 1937 in anticipation for the coronation which never was held, and prices have trebled in just the past few months.

Don't rush by those booths which feature paper antiques — old valentines, posters, prints of local scenes, political memorabilia and Monroe County histories.

Three years hence communities planning meaningful bicentennial celebrations will be scurrying about in search of all these colorful bits of nostalgia and historical documentation.

Even the collector of old post cards, like their ubiquitous senders, will probably be "having a wonderful time," for prices on many fine, original historic items are certain to rise.

(We tell you this, of course, in strictest confidence.)

Be sure to remember the dates of the show: Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 8-10.

And remember the place: the East Stroudsburg High School. Happy hunting!

Restoration underway at Millbrook Village

MILLBROOK — Bit by bit the National Park Service is slowly reconstructing an early American village in the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area in Millbrook, N.J.

Millbrook Village, a booming living center during the late 1800's, will hopefully come to life again during the 20th Century if members of the Millbrook Village Society and the DWGNRA have their way.

The Millbrook Society, a citizen's organization, and officials from the National Park Service have already restored a hotel, blacksmith's shop and two houses.

They are currently in the process of constructing two more homes, a general store, a church, a one-room schoolhouse and a grist mill.

According to National Park Service Historian Omega East, Millbrook was basically an agricultural center during the 1800's and reflected the type of small town communities that flourished throughout the United States.

The grist mill, built by Abraham Garis in 1832, was responsible for the economic growth of the area. The mill was destroyed by fire in 1922, shortly after operations had ceased.

East said the old Bushkill Mill will be brought to the site of the Garis Mill and will be in operation by the summer of 1974.

Two buildings, the church and the old general store that were burned to the ground by a fire in 1972, are also being replaced.

The dedication for the church is planned to take place during the annual Millbrook Days on October 7 and 8.

Homes at Millbrook Village include the well-to-do country home of George Traugher refurbished with furnishings from the 1870's to 1890's, the more modest home of Elias Garis, the VanKampen home, and the Hill house.

At the Hill house a weaving demonstration will be offered on weekends.

Millbrook Village is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily until after Labor Day. It will be open weekends up until November 1 and offer visitors special activities during the celebration of Millbrook Days on October 7 and 8.

Information concerning guided tours and demonstrations can be obtained at the information station located in the Millbrook Hotel.

Millbrook Village, about seven miles north of Blairstown, can be reached by Old Mine Road from Interstate 80, Rtes. 521 or 206.

Theatre gets funnier than comics with 'Charlie Brown' production

For its initial venture into the fabulous world of musical comedy, the Tanglwood Dinner Theatre has chosen to present "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown", scheduled to run August 7 through 12.

Based on the popular syndicated comic strip, "Peanuts" by Charles Schulz, and featuring music and lyrics by Clark Gesner, "Charlie Brown" is the "funnies" come to life, with all the humor and charm of the original strip plus the added bounce of a delightful score.

Russell Treyz will direct the Tanglwood company which will feature Tom Cuff in the title role of Charlie Brown, a role he has played with great success several times before.

Snoopy, the dashing, baseball-playing beagle, who brings down the house with his rendition of "Suppertime", will be played by Broadway star, George Hall.

Hall, a veteran of the New York nightclub circuit with stints at the Village Vanguard and Upstairs at the Downstairs to his credit, has appeared on Broadway in "Lend An Ear", "High Button Shoes", and "There's A Girl In My Soup", among other shows, and is also a familiar television personality from his many appearances on "The Secret Storm, "Edge of Night", "Love of Life", and many other programs.

Comedianne Marilyn Holgan will be Lucy, and the rest of the "Peanuts" gang, including Shroeder, Linus (and his blanket), and Peppermint Patti will be on hand.

Maggie Bell, presently finishing up her B.A. in Music at Wilkes College, Wilkes-Barre, will provide the musical accompaniement.

Miss Bell has taught music in the area for several years and has previously worked as accompaniest at the Little Theatre and Showcase Theatre in Wilkes-Barre.

"Charlie Brown" is surely a musical for all ages and Tanglwood stands ready to welcome young and old to a spirited and entertaining evening of song and dance.

Catching U.S.

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — Melbourne and Sydney have joined the big league of world crime capitals.

On a population basis Melbourne has four times more rapes and murders than London, more than twice as many assaults and as many robberies. "In the major Australian cities we approximate the American pattern of violence rather than the English pattern," criminologist Dr. Paul Wilson of the Queensland University said.

Gourmand takes on slimmer look with delightful dietary recipes

By the Gorged Gourmand

STROUDSBURG — Since I was cut off in the middle of my dietary delights last week, I decided to continue along the low calorie line for another column.

My Errol Flynn swashbuckling must have got a little carried away and I never got further than describing the preparations for low calorie kabobs.

But I've still have several dishes which can be prepared without great suffering to the waistline.

Needless to say, I don't want to ruin my reputation as a gorged gourmand, so while I may be getting only half the calories I compensate my eating twice as much.

Home economist Joyce Kline offered further suggestions for summertime meal planning which I'd like to pass along to all my hungry readers.

An ideal main dish, with only 150 calories per serving, is chicken Hawaiian. Ingredients to serve six people (or one famished gourmand) include one cup cottage cheese, two tablespoons milk, two cups diced cooked chicken, one-half cup chopped celery, one-quarter cup chopped pimento, two teaspoons lemon juice, one-quarter teaspoon salt, and six slices chilled pineapple, fresh or canned in unsweetened juice.

To prepare the recipe, beat the cottage cheese until it's fairly smooth. Add milk. Then fold in the chicken, celery, pimento, lemon juice, and salt. Chill. Place a pineapple slice on a lettuce leaf and top with one-half cup of chicken salad and Voila! — the dish is ready for the most ravenous appetite.

Naturally, you're going to want something to go along with the chicken, a chef's salad topped with non-fat French dressing, for example.

To obtain this creation, blend together one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-eighth teaspoon dry mustard, one tablespoon chives, one-half teaspoon sugar, one quarter cup tarragon or red wine vinegar, and one-quarter cup cold water.

My favorite part of any meal, dessert, is yet to come, and it's still possible to enjoy sweets without picking up all of the calories that usually go along with them.

Two possible desserts are sugarless lemon tarts and apple-cake pudding.

For the tarts, it's necessary to have pastry for a nine-inch pie shell, two tablespoons cornstarch, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one teaspoon grated lemon rind, and three tablespoons lemon juice.

Other ingredients include one-cup hot water, one tablespoon of a liquid sugar substitute, one egg yolk (beaten), and one teaspoon butter.

Cut the pastry into ten circles to fit ten small tart pans. Bake in a 425 degree oven about 12 minutes, and then cool.

Combine the cornstarch, salt and lemon rind, and blend in lemon juice to make a smooth paste. Gradually add hot water and a liquid sugar substitute.

Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until thick. Stir a small amount of the hot mixture into beaten egg yolk, then return to the pan and cook two minutes longer.

Finally, remove from the heat, add butter, cool, and spoon the filling into the tart shells.

This recipe makes ten tarts, each containing 82 calories. If made with sugar, each would contain 120 calories.

If you prefer to try the apple-cake pudding (or if you're like me and eat two different desserts as a matter of course) preheat your oven to 350 degrees and grease a one-quart casserole.

In a small bowl, with your mixer at low speed, beat one egg, one-quarter cup all-purpose flour, one-quarter teaspoon baking soda, one-quarter teaspoon ground cloves, one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon, and one-eighth teaspoon salt until blended.

Increase the speed to high and beat for two minutes. Using a rubber spatula, stir in one and one-half cups finely chopped peeled cooking apples (about one large or three small apples) and spread the batter into the casserole.

Bake 35 to 40 minutes until the top springs back when lightly touched. Serve warm or cold. The recipe, set for a serving of six, contains only 140 calories per serving.

And here I thought food had to be fattening to be good!

Concert hosts brass quintet

MILLBROOK — The Eastern Brass Quintet will give the eighth performance this season at the Water Gap Concerts held 7:30 p.m. today at the Delaware Water Gap Recreational Area one-half mile south of Millbrook.

The quintet consists of two trumpets, trombone, tuba, and French horn, and the musicians who play them are Charles Baxter, Robert Fanning, Richard Green, Tucker Jolly and William Wich.

The outdoor concerts are sponsored by Artists for Environment Foundation in affiliation with the National Park Service. All performances begin at 7:30 p.m. and are free.

Those who come to the concert should bring something to sit on and a flashlight for after the performance. In the event of rain, the concerts will be held at the First Presbyterian Church in Blairstown.

Art portfolio panels gallery

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

SHAWNEE — It's not the Metropolitan Museum of Art, but it certainly brightens up the living room. That can easily be said of the Shawnee Gallery located in the home of Miss Elnora Hauser in Shawnee.

Miss Hauser, an artist and arts and crafts teacher for emotionally disturbed and brain damaged children in West Chester County, N.Y., has converted her summer home in Shawnee to an art gallery displaying a wide range of her works.

A native of the area, Miss Hauser does not limit herself to one artistic mode of expression or one restricted theory of art.

Lining her walls are abstract paintings such as a watercolor entitled "In the Aquarium," where fish eyes and forms can be seen peering through a menagerie of colors.

On the other extreme, a realistic painting entitled "Ledges and Old Tree" brings a forest scene to life in pen, brush and ink wash.

Although Miss Hauser uses the more conventional methods of artistic expression including watercolors, oils, pen and ink and mixed media, she also is adept at handling such elements as Elmer's Glue, a Burn-O-Matic torch, melted wax, glass powder, copper strips, tissue paper and pieces of wood.

This summer Miss Hauser is spending much of her time working in silk-screen designs and batiks.

A batik is basically "melted wax impregnated in cloth by intense heat. The wax is ironed out of the cloth, but different colors remains. Later, you crumple the cloth and place it in a dye bath, which leaves black lines wherever the cloth was crumpled," Miss Hauser said.

She explained batiks originated in Polynesia and are also quite popular in Mexico. There are two of these unique creations hanging in her gallery, but unfortunately they are not for sale.

Other works of art that dot her living quarters are marketable, however, and range in price from $50 to $500.

The $500 work named "Mysterious Trees" was done on masonite and designed with Elmer's Glue. Miss Hauser placed the glue on the masonite and then burned it with a torch after perceiving a discernable pattern.

When this process was completed, she used acrylic paints in creating the finished product.

The names and prices of her acrylic collection include "The Temptation of St. Anthony" — $150, "Blue Mushroom and Butterflies" — $150, "Autumn Plants" — $110 and "Mysterious Trees" — $500.

Miss Hauser describes her approach to art as "stream of consciousness," when an idea forms in the unconscious and sprouts to life in the conscious.

She verbalized her feelings concerning art by quoting two passages from a book entitled "Love and Will" by Dr. Rollo.

Dr. Rollo states, "Both artist and neurotics speak and live from the subconscious and unconscious depths of their society. The artist does this positively, communicating what he experiences to his fellowmen.

"The artist finds deeper planes of consciousness where we can participate in human experience and nature below superficial appearances."

Miss Hauser said she could easily support this statement by referring to her work with emotionally disturbed and retarded children.

Mexican themes spice art

Shawnee Gallery

As a teacher in the New York Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES), Miss Hauser has drawn out the latent creative talents in children with mental and emotional problems.

"Patience is the important thing in working with anyone on a creative level," Miss Hauser said.

She admits there is a certain amount of frustration in her job, which is balanced off by final rewards.

"Sometimes it's hard to measure improvement in a troubled child, but if one looks closely it's usually there," she said.

In addition to her paintings, Miss Hauser makes wood collages and collages composed of magazine and newspaper pictures. A wood collage, "Aztec" is priced at $75.

After spending some time in Mexico, many of Miss Hauser's paintings revolve around a Mexican theme and are named "Mexican Town", "Mexico 1960", "Mexican Church", "Mexican Village" and "Good Friday Procession, Mexico."

Although the word "Mexico" might ring a bell of sameness, the paintings, on the contrary, reflect a variety of artistic processes including collage, oils, brush and ink and ink drawing.

Miss Hauser also makes glass copper rings, which she dubs "TLC Rings" for "tender loving care" because of their fragile quality.

The rings are made from strips of copper with colorful glass powder sprinkled on them and sell for $4 or $5.

Miss Hauser attributes her interest in arts and crafts to her father's work in carpentry and her mother's artistic inclination.

She has gone on to study arts and crafts at the Corcoran School of Art, Washington, D.C.; Columbia University, New York City; Brooklyn Museum Art School, New York; Hunter College, New York; Showhegan School of Painting and Sculpture and the Instituto Allende, San Miguel De Allende, Mexico.

Some of the places Miss Hauser has exhibited her works include National Academy Galeries, New York City; Institute of History and Art, New York; University of Missouri; Everhart Museum, Scranton; Northeast Regional Shows, Hazleton; galleries in Mexico City and San Miguel De Allende and various A.B. Wyckoff Annual Exhibitions.

Pocono Wild Animal Farm outdoor panorama

This ambitious creature, a llama, not only enjoys having his picture taken, but turns out to be rather photogenic as well. The llama is used as a beast of burden in South American countries bordering the Andes.

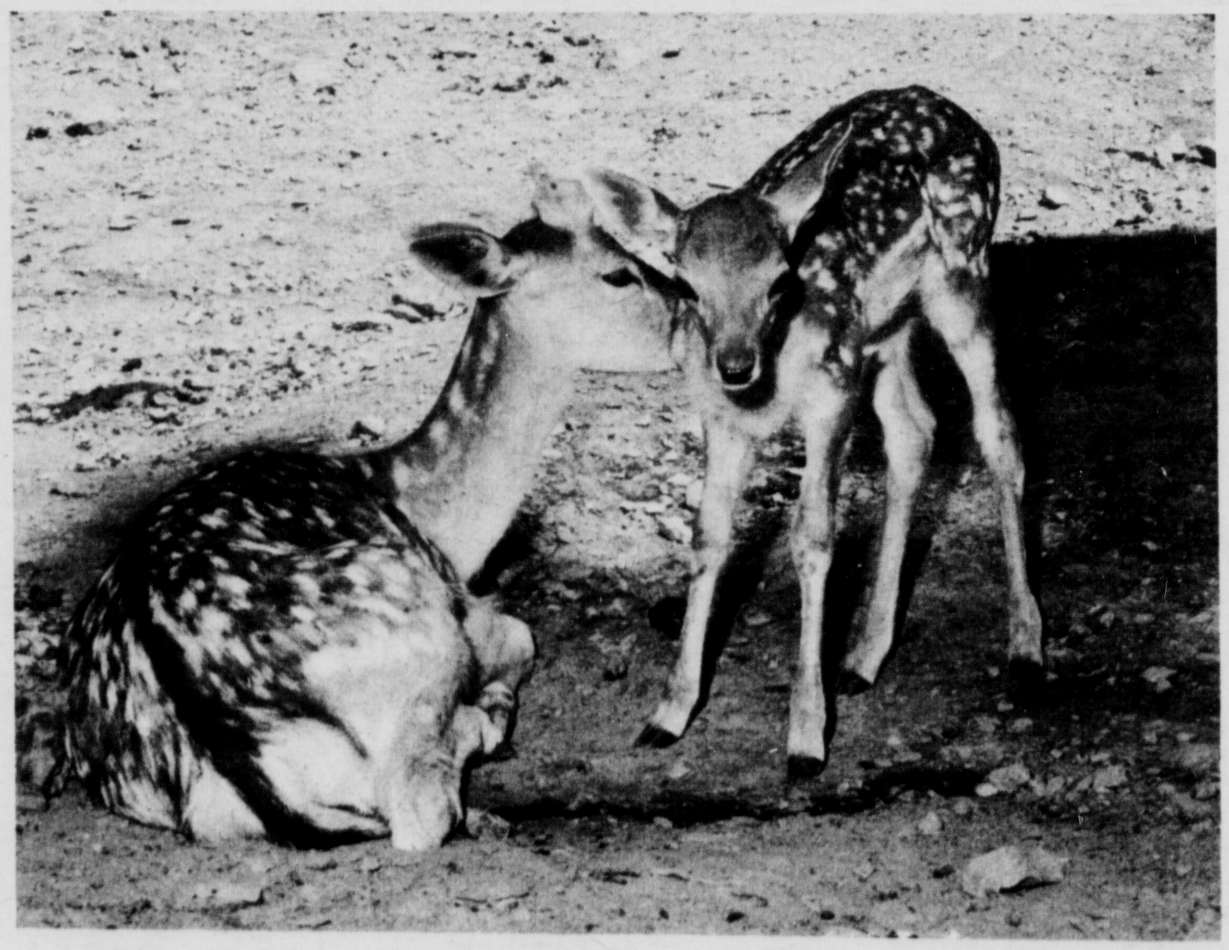

A family gathering?

Deer, llamas and sheep roam freely in the Pocono Wild Animal Farm happy to be pampered, petted and fed.

Although he might seem like an approachable fellow, the North American black bear does not mingle freely with the human crowds. He will allow visitors to observe him, however, as he prepares for his morning stroll.

(Staff photos by Brian Heller)

Did you hear about the . . .

These two deer have their own brand of gossip. Right now they are probably talking about that strange man with the camera.

'Woolly' press reception

Wild karakul crunches reporters notes

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Beware of the black karakul, native of Turkestan, but presently residing at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm.

Worse than the cookie monster, this creature, whose name rivals Lewis Carroll's jabberwockey, has a ravenous appetite and will stop at nothing when it is hungry.

The black karakul is one of the first animals a visitor meets upon entering the Wild Animal Farm. If an unwary guest, doesn't have a plentiful supply of food provided by the farm, this woolly beast will eat almost anything else including a reporter's notes.

After a detailed conversation with Mary Leister, owner of the Wild Animal Farm, this reporter strolled through the animal area talking casually with his hostess.

Suddenly, there was a slight tug at my notes, and a startled and bewildered look on the face of Mrs. Leister.

The black karakul had struck. Slowly, it jaunted in happy circles complacently eating every last word Mrs. Leister had muttered during our hour long interview.

Mrs. Leister chased the greedy mammal, but it defied capture as it eagerly swallowed its latest meal.

"You know," she noted, "one man lost a ten dollar bill waving it in front of a karakul."

A visitor watching the entire proceedings yelled out, "He probably thought it was lettuce."

Mrs. Leister noted that the karakul is just one of many animals allowed to wander freely within the confines of the farm.

"Deer, donkeys, llamas and peacocks are among the animals that mingle openly with the crowds. However, larger animals and some rare species of deer like the barasingha or "swamp deer" from India are kept in cages," she said.

The Pocono Wild Animal Farm founded in 1948 by Mrs. Leister's husband, Dr. Claude W. Leister, is currently celebrating its 25th anniversary.

Dr. Leister, distinguished zoologist, naturalist and former curator of the Bronx Zoo, New York City, died in 1963 and Mrs. Leister has carried out the tradition of "public pleasure, entertainment and education" embodied in the farm for the past ten years.

This year the farm features a new addition to the animal family in the form of an Australian wallaby. Wallabies are nothing more than a miniature kangaroo and have become one of the more popular sights at the outdoor zoo.

Mrs. Leister said the cost of animal food over the past few years has risen 100 per cent and the price of one animal can run as high as $3,000.

"We have not raised our admission price and don't expect to, but you can see how such rising costs have caused a strain in our budget," Mrs. Leister said.

Despite rising food and animal costs, Mrs. Leister explained the farm is staying ahead of the game because of the good attendance.

"In some cases, third generations in a family have come to visit," she said.

One of the unique features that has attracted more and more people to the Wild Animal Farm is the Dr. Clause W. Leister Bird Sanctuary. The sancturay has foreign birds such as the crowned crane from East Africa and the Australian emu, the second largest bird next to the ostrich.

These rare birds are kept in cages, while local birds can be spotted in wooded treetops.

Mrs. Leister said an embargo on the importation of foreign birds is now in effect because of a disease that broke out in California.

According to Mrs. Leister, birds imported from South America began spreading the disease in California and the government immediately closed all United States ports to any more foreign bird traffic.

Other animals that can be seen at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm include black bear, zebra, camels, giant tortoise, tapir, monkeys, yaks, porcupines, skunk, raccoons, reindeer and rabbits.

For students and schools interested in learning about wild animals, the Wild Animal Farm sponsors volunteers who will present lectures and films pertaining to issues concerning wildlife.

Mrs. Ruth Kinney is the chairwoman of the volunteer group composed of Mrs. Horace Butler, Mrs. Lester Brown, Mrs. Russell Cramer and Mrs. Robert MacMillian.

"We also have a 15 minute color movie entitled "More Fun than a Zoo", which is professionally distributed upon request," Mrs. Leister said.

Admission to the Pocono Wild Animal Farm is 75 cents for children under 12 and $1.50 for adults.

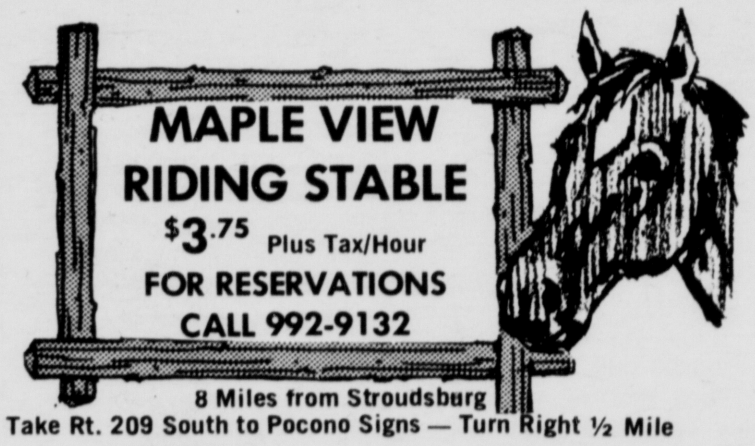

The Wild Animal Farm, located on Rte. 611 one mile south of Stroudsburg, is open daily through October.

Black karakul

The black karakul, a native sheep of Turkestan of southern Russia, is not only noted for a ravenous appetite, but is also used in making Persian and Turkish rugs. According to Mrs. Leister, the karakul was probably the animal Jason sought in his search for the golden fleece.

Mexican themes spice art

As a teacher in the New York Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES), Miss Hauser has drawn out the latent creative talents in children with mental and emotional problems.

"Patience is the important thing in working with anyone on a creative level," Miss Hauser said.

She admits there is a certain amount of frustration in her job, which is balanced off by final rewards.

"Sometimes it's hard to measure improvement in a troubled child, but if one looks closely it's usually there," she said.

In addition to her paintings, Miss Hauser makes wood collages and collages composed of magazine and newspaper pictures. A wood collage, "Aztec" is priced at $75.

After spending some time in Mexico, many of Miss Hauser's paintings revolve around a Mexican theme and are named "Mexican Town", "Mexico 1960", "Mexican Church", "Mexican Village" and "Good Friday Procession, Mexico."

Although the word "Mexico" might ring a bell of sameness, the paintings, on the contrary, reflect a variety of artistic processes including collage, oils, brush and ink and ink drawing.

Miss Hauser also makes glass copper rings, which she dubs "TLC Rings" for "tender loving care" because of their fragile quality.

The rings are made from strips of copper with colorful glass powder sprinkled on them and sell for $4 or $5.

Miss Hauser attributes her interest in arts and crafts to her father's work in carpentry and her mother's artistic inclination.

She has gone on to study arts and crafts at the Corcoran School of Art, Washington, D.C.; Columbia University, New York City; Brooklyn Museum Art School, New York; Hunter College, New York; Showhegan School of Painting and Sculpture and the Instituto Allende, San Miguel De Allende, Mexico.

Some of the places Miss Hauser has exhibited her works include National Academy Galeries, New York City; Institute of History and Art, New York; University of Missouri; Everhart Museum, Scranton; Northeast Regional Shows, Hazleton; galleries in Mexico City and San Miguel De Allende and various A.B. Wyckoff Annual Exhibitions.

Pocono Wild Animal Farm outdoor panorama

This ambitious creature, a llama, not only enjoys having his picture taken, but turns out to be rather photogenic as well. The llama is used as a beast of burden in South American countries bordering the Andes.

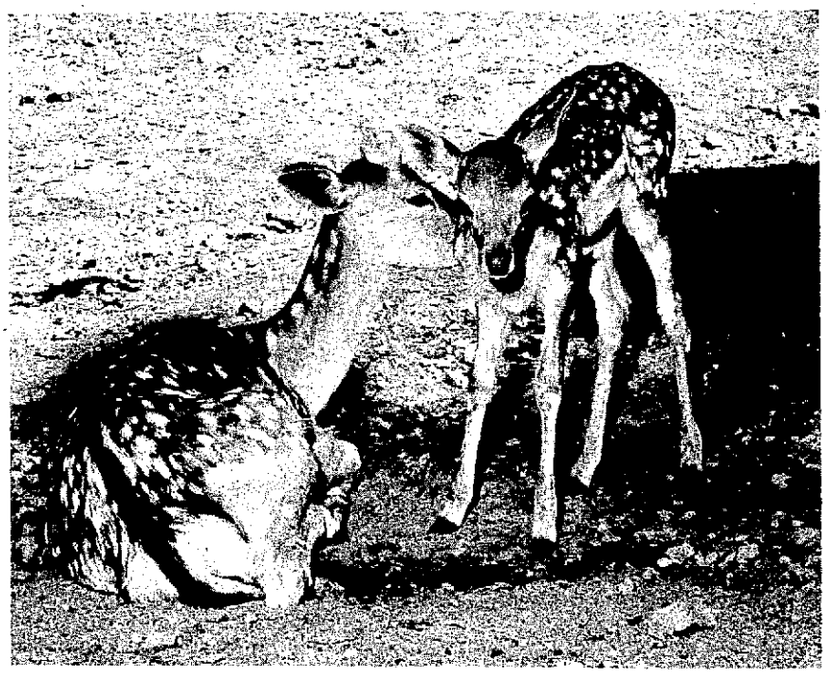

A family gathering?

Deer, llamas and sheep roam freely in the Pocono Wild Animal Farm happy to be pampered, petted and fed.

Although he might seem like an approachable fellow, the North American black bear does not mingle freely with the human crowds. He will allow visitors to observe him, however, as he prepares for his morning stroll.

(Staff photos by Brian Heller)

Did you hear about the . . .

These two deer have their own brand of gossip. Right now they are probably talking about that strange man with the camera.

Was Bert Parks at Tobyhanna?

Now here she is, Miss Barnyard America . . .

Proud owners of dogs, cats, and even a donkey, lined up their charges at last Sunday's Pocono Farms pet show. Cha Cha and Tango, a couple of poodles, took honors as best of show.

TOBYHANNA — They paraded by the judges, some needing a bit of coaxing. Others proudly passed, eager to be winners.

A beauty contest, well not exactly, even though there were many beauties among entries.

Approximately 180 people attended the first pet show last Sunday held on the lawn of the country club overlooking the cool and placid glacial lake at Pocono Farms in Tobyhanna.

There were dogs, cats, a poney, donkey, goat, guinea pig, rabbit, frog, and many anxious pet owners.

Jack Atkins, club manager and chef, and Carl Paulus, Pocono Farms tennis pro, were the judges and their task wasn't easy because all the contestants were out to win.

Some of the contestants were dressed in original designs. Two toy poddles, owned by Gwendel and Robbie Talijan, "Cha Cha" and "Tango" looked like they were ready to break into the dance of their names as they jumped around in their colorful tutus and bows. They naturally were chosen best of show.

Jeff Kohuth's Keeshound seemed ready to pull him across the lawn for a wild romp and Matthew Taylor's green clad cat won the Best Cat of the Show ribbon.

"Timothy" a toy poddle shown by owner Joan Yurman took the Cutest Show Dog award in his red bandana.

Mark Rachman carried his pet frog "Penny" in a glass container and won the prize for the smallest pet, and rightly so since it wasn't any bigger than a penny. No one was sure if it was male or female, but it was a winner.

Winner of the friendliest pet of the show was Joan Cromechy's "Mullitt." When asked its breed Joan said, "Part Golden Retriever and God knows what." Well it was friendly anyway.

Rina Rachman proudly passed the judges with "Mitten" her sleek black rabbit and walked away with the prize for the pet with the shortest tail.

Even pet shows have a runner-up and "Burgerbits" a pigmy goat owned by Peggy Henry strutted away with the second shortest tail prize.

"Elka" a queenly German Shepard, owned by Ann Marie Nataro, took the prize for the longest hair.

The winner having the longest tail went to "Jennie" a not so stubborn donkey from Pocono Farms Horse Center shown by Mary Jane Driscoll. Jennie was bedecked with ribbons for the show.

Not to be outdone, beribboned "Sugar" a shetland pony from the Horse Center followed with the next to longest tail.

A shiny black Scotty appropriately named "Scottie" by his ownders Paul and Ricky Wheelis behaved like a perfect gentleman and topped other pets for the most obedient award.

A team of four Border Collies bravely pulled two "wild cats" caged in a shopping cart. The team and "wild beasts" were sponsored by Pocono Farms Horse Center and received the most unusual award.

The "wild ones" were described on a sign attached to their cage as "Simon the greatest tiger of the East feared by all" and "Bert the killer leopard." Everyone could tell they were really dangerous as they slept in the sun.

In charge of the brave team of collies were Sue Marshall, Ronnie Woodhouse and Bobby McCregor.

The fair was followed by music, dancing and an outdoor barbecue.

I.Q. inaccurate

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Intelligence quotient (I.Q.) test scores, used extensively in schools for years, are not accurate measures of learning ability, according to University of Minnesota researchers.

"We spend fortunes on IQ-testing every year," said S. Jay Samuels, professor in the education college. "But the IQ test is probably a biased instrument. It doesn't measure what a child is able to learn, but only what he has learned in the past."

'Woolly' press reception

Wild karakul crunches reporters notes

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Beware of the black karakul, native of Turkestan, but presently residing at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm.

Worse than the cookie monster, this creature, whose name rivals Lewis Carroll's jabberwockey, has a ravenous appetite and will stop at nothing when it is hungry.

The black karakul is one of the first animals a visitor meets upon entering the Wild Animal Farm. If an unwary guest, doesn't have a plentiful supply of food provided by the farm, this woolly beast will eat almost anything else including a reporter's notes.

After a detailed conversation with Mary Leister, owner of the Wild Animal Farm, this reporter strolled through the animal area talking casually with his hostess.

Suddenly, there was a slight tug at my notes, and a startled and bewildered look on the face of Mrs. Leister.

The black karakul had struck. Slowly, it jaunted in happy circles complacently eating every last word Mrs. Leister had muttered during our hour long interview.

Mrs. Leister chased the greedy mammal, but it defied capture as it eagerly swallowed its latest meal.

"You know," she noted, "one man lost a ten dollar bill waving it in front of a karakul."

A visitor watching the entire proceedings yelled out, "He probably thought it was lettuce."

Mrs. Leister noted that the karakul is just one of many animals allowed to wander freely within the confines of the farm.

"Deer, donkeys, llamas and peacocks are among the animals that mingle openly with the crowds. However, larger animals and some rare species of deer like the barasingha or "swamp deer" from India are kept in cages," she said.

The Pocono Wild Animal Farm founded in 1948 by Mrs. Leister's husband, Dr. Claude W. Leister, is currently celebrating its 25th anniversary.

Dr. Leister, distinguished zoologist, naturalist and former curator of the Bronx Zoo, New York City, died in 1963 and Mrs. Leister has carried out the tradition of "public pleasure, entertainment and education" embodied in the farm for the past ten years.

This year the farm features a new addition to the animal family in the form of an Australian wallaby. Wallabies are nothing more than a miniature kangaroo and have become one of the more popular sights at the outdoor zoo.

Mrs. Leister said the cost of animal food over the past few years has risen 100 per cent and the price of one animal can run as high as $3,000.

"We have not raised our admission price and don't expect to, but you can see how such rising costs have caused a strain in our budget," Mrs. Leister said.

Despite rising food and animal costs, Mrs. Leister explained the farm is staying ahead of the game because of the good attendance.

"In some cases, third generations in a family have come to visit," she said.

One of the unique features that has attracted more and more people to the Wild Animal Farm is the Dr. Clause W. Leister Bird Sanctuary. The sancturay has foreign birds such as the crowned crane from East Africa and the Australian emu, the second largest bird next to the ostrich.

These rare birds are kept in cages, while local birds can be spotted in wooded treetops.

Mrs. Leister said an embargo on the importation of foreign birds is now in effect because of a disease that broke out in California.

According to Mrs. Leister, birds imported from South America began spreading the disease in California and the government immediately closed all United States ports to any more foreign bird traffic.

Other animals that can be seen at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm include black bear, zebra, camels, giant tortoise, tapir, monkeys, yaks, porcupines, skunk, raccoons, reindeer and rabbits.

For students and schools interested in learning about wild animals, the Wild Animal Farm sponsors volunteers who will present lectures and films pertaining to issues concerning wildlife.

Mrs. Ruth Kinney is the chairwoman of the volunteer group composed of Mrs. Horace Butler, Mrs. Lester Brown, Mrs. Russell Cramer and Mrs. Robert MacMillian.

"We also have a 15 minute color movie entitled "More Fun than a Zoo", which is professionally distributed upon request," Mrs. Leister said.

Admission to the Pocono Wild Animal Farm is 75 cents for children under 12 and $1.50 for adults.

The Wild Animal Farm, located on Rte. 611 one mile south of Stroudsburg, is open daily through October.

Black karakul

The black karakul, a native sheep of Turkestan of southern Russia, is not only noted for a ravenous appetite, but is also used in making Persian and Turkish rugs. According to Mrs. Leister, the karakul was probably the animal Jason sought in his search for the golden fleece.

'Irregular Verb' regularized at playhouse

Celeste Holm

MOUNTAINHOME — Currently starring on the silver screen as Aunt Polly in the new film classic, "Tom Sawyer," Celeste Holm comes to the Pocono Playhouse stage August 6 for a week's run in "The Irregular Verb to Love."

Also starring in the production will be Broadway and television actor Wesley Addy, Miss Holm's husband.

The Rankins, portrayed by Addy and Miss Holm, live on Fifth Avenue, New York, in an apartment overlooking the Central Park Zoo, where he is the doting director of his animal charges.

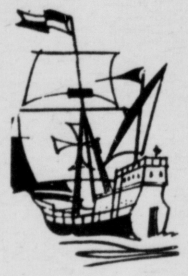

She is also an animal lover, committed to an ecological protest. Her explosive capers on behalf of the furry beasts and her ploys to tidy up some of the love problems members of her unconventional, but highly amiable, family have gotten into are combined by authors Hugh and Margaret Williams into a timely and hilarious comment on the social scene.

Participants in this frolic, in which the irregular verb is regularized, include Brian Farrell as the Rankin's son, who has brought his non-English-speaking girl friend (Stephanie Satie) back from Greece, and the Rankins' daughter, (Cheri Throop), whose amatory "problem" is assuming larger proportions daily.

Miss Holm and company come direct to the Playhouse from a highly successful tour of the Mid and South West, with Denver the last stop before the Mountainhome engagement.

Tickets are available for both "The Irregular Verb to Love" and "The Jockey Club Stakes" at the Playhouse box office, 595-7456, and its agencies in Scranton, 346-1666 at the Jermyn Motor Inn, and at Scureman's Pharmacy in Honesdale, 253-1390.

Playgoers in Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton and Phillipsburg may reserve tickets call to ENterprise 1-0899.

Was Bert Parks at Tobyhanna?

Now here she is, Miss Barnyard America . . .

Proud owners of dogs, cats, and even a donkey, lined up their charges at last Sunday's Pocono Farms pet show. Cha Cha and Tango, a couple of poodles, took honors as best of show.

TOBYHANNA — They paraded by the judges, some needing a bit of coaxing. Others proudly passed, eager to be winners.

A beauty contest, well not exactly, even though there were many beauties among entries.

Approximately 180 people attended the first pet show last Sunday held on the lawn of the country club overlooking the cool and placid glacial lake at Pocono Farms in Tobyhanna.

There were dogs, cats, a poney, donkey, goat, guinea pig, rabbit, frog, and many anxious pet owners.

Jack Atkins, club manager and chef, and Carl Paulus, Pocono Farms tennis pro, were the judges and their task wasn't easy because all the contestants were out to win.

Some of the contestants were dressed in original designs. Two toy poddles, owned by Gwendel and Robbie Talijan, "Cha Cha" and "Tango" looked like they were ready to break into the dance of their names as they jumped around in their colorful tutus and bows. They naturally were chosen best of show.

Jeff Kohuth's Keeshound seemed ready to pull him across the lawn for a wild romp and Matthew Taylor's green clad cat won the Best Cat of the Show ribbon.

"Timothy" a toy poddle shown by owner Joan Yurman took the Cutest Show Dog award in his red bandana.

Mark Rachman carried his pet frog "Penny" in a glass container and won the prize for the smallest pet, and rightly so since it wasn't any bigger than a penny. No one was sure if it was male or female, but it was a winner.

Winner of the friendliest pet of the show was Joan Cromechy's "Mullitt." When asked its breed Joan said, "Part Golden Retriever and God knows what." Well it was friendly anyway.

Rina Rachman proudly passed the judges with "Mitten" her sleek black rabbit and walked away with the prize for the pet with the shortest tail.

Even pet shows have a runner-up and "Burgerbits" a pigmy goat owned by Peggy Henry strutted away with the second shortest tail prize.

"Elka" a queenly German Shepard, owned by Ann Marie Nataro, took the prize for the longest hair.

The winner having the longest tail went to "Jennie" a not so stubborn donkey from Pocono Farms Horse Center shown by Mary Jane Driscoll. Jennie was bedecked with ribbons for the show.

Not to be outdone, beribboned "Sugar" a shetland pony from the Horse Center followed with the next to longest tail.

A shiny black Scotty appropriately named "Scottie" by his owners Paul and Ricky Wheelis behaved like a perfect gentleman and topped other pets for the most obedient award.

A team of four Border Collies bravely pulled two "wild cats" caged in a shopping cart. The team and "wild beasts" were sponsored by Pocono Farms Horse Center and received the most unusual award.

The "wild ones" were described on a sign attached to their cage as "Simon the greatest tiger of the East feared by all" and "Bert the killer leopard." Everyone could tell they were really dangerous as they slept in the sun.

In charge of the brave team of collies were Sue Marshall, Ronnie Woodhouse and Bobby McCregor.

The fair was followed by music, dancing and an outdoor barbecue.

I.Q. inaccurate

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Intelligence quotient (I.Q.) test scores, used extensively in schools for years, are not accurate measures of learning ability, according to University of Minnesota researchers.

"We spend fortunes on IQ-testing every year," said S. Jay Samuels, professor in the education college. "But the IQ test is probably a biased instrument. It doesn't measure what a child is able to learn, but only what he has learned in the past."

'Irregular Verb' regularized at playhouse

Celeste Holm

MOUNTAINHOME — Currently starring on the silver screen as Aunt Polly in the new film classic, "Tom Sawyer," Celeste Holm comes to the Pocono Playhouse stage August 6 for a week's run in "The Irregular Verb to Love."

Also starring in the production will be Broadway and television actor Wesley Addy, Miss Holm's husband.

The Rankins, portrayed by Addy and Miss Holm, live on Fifth Avenue, New York, in an apartment overlooking the Central Park Zoo, where he is the doting director of his animal charges.

She is also an animal lover, committed to an ecological protest. Her explosive capers on behalf of the furry beasts and her ploys to tidy up some of the love problems members of her unconventional, but highly amiable, family have gotten into are combined by authors Hugh and Margaret Williams into a timely and hilarious comment on the social scene.

Participants in this frolic, in which the irregular verb is regularized, include Brian Farrell as the Rankin's son, who has brought his non-English-speaking girl friend (Stephanie Satie) back from Greece, and the Rankins' daughter, (Cheri Throop), whose amatory "problem" is assuming larger proportions daily.

Miss Holm and company come direct to the Playhouse from a highly successful tour of the Mid and South West, with Denver the last stop before the Mountainhome engagement.

Tickets are available for both "The Irregular Verb to Love" and "The Jockey Club Stakes" at the Playhouse box office, 595-7456, and its agencies in Scranton, 346-1666 at the Jermyn Motor Inn, and at Scureman's Pharmacy in Honesdale, 253-1390.

Playgoers in Allentown, Bethlehem, Easton and Phillipsburg may reserve tickets call to ENterprise 1-0899.
